'Something Big' Sensed By Jittery China Capital

Reports Indicate Battle Is Near For Suchow Line Guarding Nanking

BULLETIN

Nanking, China (Monday), Nov. 8 (U.P.).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek said today that despite recent reverses the government was determined to continue its fight against communism. He called on all China to be "prepared for another eight years struggle."

Nanking, Nov. 7 (AP).—Tension rose steadily today in this nervous Chinese capital, where it was felt that "something big" was brewing on both the political and military fronts of the civil war.

Unofficial reports indicated a battle for the Suchow defense line that guards Nanking was developing slowly but steadily.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek continued his week-long series of day and night closed-door conferences.

Most official sources insisted that the government leader was determined to protect this and other great Yangtze Valley cities from the rampant Reds and would neither consent to move China's capital nor seek peace negotiations.

Hundreds of government officials, meanwhile, were urgently attempting to move their families from Nanking. Among them were many who still insisted publicly that the United States was "premature" in warning American citizens to get out.

Progovernment war dispatches said the Communists were believed to have captured Fengtai, 120 miles northwest of Nanking.

This would expose the flank of government forces defending Pengpu, on the Suchow railway, 108 miles northwest of Nanking.

The attack on Pengpu appeared an attempt to bypass the strong government garrison at Suchow, 100 miles farther north.

Communist tactics appeared to be their old standby of cutting government communications and then polishing off the isolated enemy whenever convenient.

Gen. Pai Chung-hsi, former war minister, was reported unofficially to have accepted reluctantly command of the Suchow front. Chiang Kai-shek had offered it to him a second time after he and Gen. Fu Tso-yi had turned it down.

Fu was back in his North China headquarters in Peiping.

Spencer Moosa, veteran Associated Press correspondent in Peiping, quoted informed persons as saying Fu had obtained full power to defend North China as he saw fit, without reference to Chiang.

Fu also was said to have received assurances he would get promised arms from Chiang.

On the surface, it appeared a determined effort would be made to hold North China. There were other signs, however. Moosa reported that families of air force officers were packing to move to Nanking and Shanghai. Several

Truman Victory Predicted in July By MacArthur

Tokyo, Nov. 7 (AP).—War Crimes Prosecutor Joseph B. Keenan said today President Truman's reelection was predicted by General MacArthur last July. Keenan quoted MacArthur:

"Mr. Truman has been forthright as a President and he has met the issues as they have arisen forthrightly. It is my view that those who are selling his chances short will be very surprised the morning after the election. It is my belief that he knows the American people and that the American people know him. They both speak a common language.

"However, I myself have always been a Republican in politics."

Crusade In Europe

Gen. Eisenhower's Own Story:

In Which He Comes to Washington, Determines How to Fight Japan

"What should be our general line of action?" Marshall asked when Eisenhower reported early on a Sunday morning. "Our base must be Australia," Eisenhower told him. The East, he said, might excuse failure, but not abandonment. "We must take great risks," he added

Washington in wartime has been variously described in numbers of pungent epigrams, all signifying chaos. Traditionally the Government, including the service departments, has always been as unprepared for war and its all-embracing problems as the country itself; and the incidence of emergency has, under an awakened sense of overwhelming responsibility, resulted in confusion, intensified by a swarming influx of contract seekers and well-meaning volunteers.

This time, however, the War Department had achieved a gratifying level of efficiency before the outbreak of war. So far as my own observations during the months I served there would justify a judgment, this was due to the vision and determination of one man, General Marshall. Naturally he had support. He was backed up by the President and by many of our ablest leaders in Congress and in key positions in the Administration. But it would have been easy for General Marshall, during 1940-'41, to drift along with the current, to let things slide in anticipation of a normal end to a brilliant military career — for he had earned, throughout the professional Army, a reputation for brilliance.

Followed the Hard Way

Instead he had for many months deliberately followed the hard way, determined that at whatever cost to himself or to any one else the Army should be decently prepared for the conflict which he daily, almost hourly, expected.

I reported to General Marshall early on Sunday morning, Dec. 14, and for the first time in my life talked to him for more than two minutes at a time. It was the fourth time I had ever seen him. Without preamble or waste of time the Chief of Staff outlined the

Israel Denies Military Aid From Russia

Purchase of Arms From Czechoslovakia, Elsewhere Admitted

By Kenneth Bilby

Tel Aviv, Nov. 7 (NYHT).—The Israeli government stated tonight that it had received no military assistance in any form from the Soviet Union and that not one Russian national was in a group of foreign volunteers who have fought with the Israeli army.

Asked about Jewish purchases of arms from Czechoslovakia, which had never been denied by the government, a foreign ministry spokesman replied, "It has naturally been our policy to buy arms wherever we could do so. We have made purchases in other countries besides Czechoslovakia."

The spokesman described as "a tissue of malicious lies" reports which have cropped up that secret Russian supply lines were feeding war material in to the Jewish state.

Predominantly Their Own

The spokesman made the first official revelation that volunteers from several European countries, the United States and the British Dominions had been fighting under the Israeli flag. He insisted, however, that the Israeli army consisted predominantly of Israeli citizens or Jews who had come here with the intention of establishing residence.

These statements were made just before the Russian legation gave the largest dinner party in Israel's brief history at its new ministry here, commemorating the

Police Retrieve Bride's Lost Nose; It's Sewed Back On

Newhall, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP).—A pretty bride, 25, has her own nose back again today but she was without it for awhile.

Mrs. Flora Lee Griffin's nose was cut off when she went through a car's windshield yesterday. Highway patrolmen hurried her to a hospital. Dr. E. C. Innis sent them back after the nose. They found it on the running board and rushed it back to the hospital.

Dr. Innis sewed the nose back on the bride's face. Today, it "looks pretty good."

2d Death in Alley Within Week

Man Dies in 12-Floor Plunge From Office in Press Building

George E. Donaldson, a 29-year-old Washington correspondent from Syracuse, N. Y., was killed yesterday when he plunged from his twelfth floor office in the National Press Building to an alley.

Donaldson hurtled about 10 floors without a sound, struck a tin roof about 20 feet above the alley with a resounding impact, and crashed to the pavement a few yards behind a startled pedestrian, according to an eyewitness.

The body, which had been falling erect, was catapulted head downward to the alley after striking the tin roof, which was considerably dented by the impact.

Witness to the plunge was Martin L. Kite, jr., 21, of 1709 New Hampshire ave. nw., who had driven into the alley, about 100 feet from where the body crashed, to deliver supplies to a nearby restaurant.

William C. Stanley, 637 F st. nw., who was standing in the alley with his back to the Press Building, heard the crash behind him. When he turned and saw what had occurred, he notified police. Donaldson was pronounced dead on the scene at 11:45 a. m.

Kite said he happened to look up, while sitting in his truck, and saw the body when it was about two floors below the open window of Donaldson's office.

"There wasn't a sound until it bounced with an awful impact on that tin roof," said Kite.

Donaldson plunged to his death only a few feet from the spot where James D. Heinlein, 34-year-old Washington attorney, was killed when he leaped from the roof of the Munsey Trust Co. building last Monday.

Reds Parade Armed Might At Moscow

Stalin Absent But Timoshenko Echoes Attack on West at Revolution Fete

Moscow, Nov. 7 (AP).—Marshal S. K. Timoshenko called on the Soviet army today to remain in complete military preparedness but said the growing forces of peace "will not allow a new war."

The Soviet war hero spoke in Red Square as the government observed the thirty-first anniversary of the Russian revolution by parading its military might before foreign diplomats and military observers.

Timoshenko was flanked by top Soviet leaders, including Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin, Minister of Armed Forces, as he reviewed the parade of troops, tanks and vehicles through the thronged square. Planes flew overhead.

Stalin Is Absent

Prime Minister Stalin was absent, presumably on his annual vacation.

After the parade, in which Soviet air forces played a predominant part, Timoshenko mounted Lenin's mausoleum and addressed the army and the Russian people. He followed closely the line laid down recently by Stalin, that the western powers are trying to unleash a new war and that their efforts are doomed to failure.

The same theme was stressed by Bulganin, who said in an order of the day that Russia's "peace-loving policies" are being opposed by certain circles in Britain and the United States but said this opposition is "destined to fail."

Despite the attacks of both Timoshenko and Bulganin on the western powers, observers noted an absence of banners and slogans against the United States and Britain in the line of march of civilian demonstrators which followed the military parade. In previous years, these banners had always had a prominent place.

Observers also noted the military display was no greater than last year's parade. The main difference was the greater emphasis on aviation. The Russians showed almost all types of military planes from four-engine bombers to modern jet fighters.

Timoshenko said the "peace-loving policy of our state is meeting resistance from Anglo-American warmongers" and added "the true friends and supporters of peace more and more are becoming convinced of the need for an active struggle against warmongers."

"The policy of the present leaders of the United States and Britain," he said, "is a policy of aggression, a policy of unleashing a new war.

"But the policy of the warmongers is doomed to collapse since the social forces in favor of peace are unswervingly growing and will not allow a new war to be imposed."

Bulganin's order of the day appeared on the front page of Pravda, Communist Party newspaper, and Izvestia, government newspaper

Games Begin

Navy Planes, Ships Strike At Argentia

Argentia, Newfoundland, November 7 (U.P.).—A mighty fleet of 100 ships and hundreds of planes simulated aerial blows at Argentia today in the United States Navy's greatest postwar maneuvers in the strategic North Atlantic.

Today's air attacks were aimed at "softening up" Argentia for amphibious landings by Marines in the early hours tomorrow. Before the landings, the Battleship Missouri and other ships will clear the way for the landing force with a heavy "bombardment."

More than 36,000 Navy and Marine officers and men and 500 airplanes are participating in the giant mock battles.

Large flights of bombers and fighters swarmed in from Vice Admiral D. B. Duncan's Second Task Fleet for dawn bombings and strafings today. But the alert defenders of Argentia had all but a few of their available planes airborne and ready to meet the "enemy."

The top Navy command reported successful operations by all parts of the fleet in these maneuvers, which have a tremendous strategic significance in the defense of the Atlantic Seaboard.

For Newfoundland is on a direct air route for any trans-Polar

West Europe Military Chiefs Map Plans

Montgomery Holding Parleys Aimed at Coordinating Forces

Hereford, Germany, Nov. 7 (AP).—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery tonight began the first of a series of military talks designed to weld the armies of Western Europe into a unified force.

It is reliably understood that plans for the interchangeability of men as well as weapons will figure largely in the conferences. The problem before the military leaders of Western Europe is how to make soldiers of different nations work together down to the smallest command levels.

Montgomery is chairman of the military committee of the Western European Union, composed of Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

This evening Montgomery conferred at Melle with the British and French military governors, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson and Gen. Pierre Koenig. They will be joined there tomorrow by the American military governor, Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

(That meeting, said the United Press, will be held in the greatest secrecy. Newspaper correspondents, at Montgomery's request, will not even be permitted to approach the meeting place.)

Reliable sources said Montgomery is seeking views on a coordinated plan for pooling the now diverse and scattered military forces of the countries in the Western European Union.

Precedent-Making Appeal

Greece Stays Execution of 10 After U. N. Plea for Mercy

Paris, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—The United Nations by a precedent-making appeal succeeded today in winning a stay of execution for 10 Greek labor union leaders sentenced to death for aiding the Communists.

Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, president of the U. N. General Assembly, cabled the appeal for mercy to King Paul and Premier Themistocles Sofoulis hardly 12 hours before the labor leaders would have been notified that they were doomed to die within 72 hours.

A few hours later it was announced in Athens that the appeal had been granted and that the death sentences would be reviewed by a reprieves board.

(Well-informed sources in Athens reported at the same time that Premier Sofoulis might delay his resignation, scheduled for Monday, because the Greek situation is now before the U. N. Political Committee.)

Evatt asked that the sentences be suspended while the U. N. Political Committee debated the general Greek question.

"In my personal judgment the execution of the sentences at this juncture would seriously interfere with attempts at conciliation which may result in lasting benefit to Greece and the people of Greece," Evatt wired in the name of the 58 U. N. members.

It had been understood here that the labor men would have been executed tomorrow, but Athens dispatches said they would have been notified of the final sentence tomorrow and that the executions would have followed 72 hours later.

The U.N. Assembly's action was unprecedented. The only remotely similar instance was when the U.N. Balkans Commission asked the Greek government to postpone a series of executions of leftists. The sentences were suspended but carried out later.

The U.N. Political Committee is to resume debate on the Greek situation Monday and it may vote on a resolution condemning Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia for aiding Greek guerillas. Action on the resolution was postponed Saturday when eastern European countries raised the question of the execution of the labor men.

De Gaullists Victorious in Council Race

Party Chalks Up Smashing Win in First Legislative Trial It Has Run

Paris (Monday), Nov. 8 (AP).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle won a smashing victory today in a legislative election which the general may exploit to hasten his campaign for return to power.

Nearly complete returns in yesterday's voting for the Council of the Republic—the upper house of parliament — gave De Gaulle's Rally of the French People (RPF) about 40 per cent of the 269 seats at stake.

This is well short of a majority of the council, but it is practically impossible for any one party to win outright control of parliament because of the number of parties in the country.

Opposition Overwhelmed

This was the first legislative election in which RPF has run. It overwhelmed the opposition, including the Communists.

A De Gaulle spokesman claimed 121 seats had been won by RPF, but statisticians at the Interior Ministry gave it only 99 so far. The semiofficial French News Agency gave it 107.

Interior Ministry figures, with only seven seats missing, were: RPF, 99 seats (of which 55 belong to the Rally outright, while the others are affiliated.); Radical Socialists (Conservatives) and affiliates, 50; Socialists, 48; Independents (not RPF), 21; Communists, 16; Catholic Popular Republicans, 15; Rightist Republican Liberty Party, 6; Independent Moslems, 6; Independent Algerians, 1.

Regardless of which figures are accepted, De Gaullists won twice as many seats as their nearest competitor, the middle-of-the-road Radical Socialists. One of those elected was Pierre de Gaulle, the general's brother, president of the Paris City Council (mayor).

The Communists dropped from 84 seats in the previous council to 16, largely because of a change in the voting system which permitted all non-Communist parties to form coalitions against them.

RPF has no clear-cut social program. Its chief plank is anti-communism.

Tightly-Organized Faction

While the Council of the Republic has no real powers, De Gaulle is expected to use his strength to exert influence on the National Assembly. He wants the Assembly to dissolve itself and hold general elections which he says would give him a mandate from the people to take over the government.

A tightly organized Gaullist faction—the largest in the Council of the Republic—will be ready to harrass on any and all issues a middle-of-the-road government which stays in power by virtue of a thin majority in the National Assembly.

The election, however, did not reflect accurately French public opinion at this time, nor was it intended to. First, the 100,011 electors who participated in the poll were in their turn selected by local and national officials who took office more than a year ago. Second, the law was such that it tended to work against the Communists or any other party unable to draw on coalition support.

Dewey Is Given Rousing Welcome By Tucson Crowd

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 7 (U.P.).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York flew into Tucson today for a vacation and was greeted by a crowd of 5000 that burst through meager police lines to swarm around the plane.

"I am happy to be here, and astounded at the welcome," Dewey told the crowd.

Dewey will vacation here with his wife and two sons, Financier Roger and Mrs. Straus, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl T. Hogan and their son.

Poll-Type Procedure

Samples From Tax Returns To Be Checked for Cheaters

By The Associated Press

Trying to evade Federal income tax will be riskier than ever when returns on 1948 income are filed after New Year's.

The Internal Revenue Bureau is going to use a poll-type procedure —despite that election upset—as a means of catching up with persons who try to cheat on taxes.

It will work this way:

Tax agents will pick at random a limited number of returns from each grouping of returns according to the taxpayers' occupation, locality and income bracket.

The agents will examine each return chosen and, even if it looks to be perfectly all right, call upon the taxpayer and have him substantiate its accuracy.

If the process shows a tendency by particular groups—according to occupation, location or income bracket—to file "bad" returns, the bureau will concentrate on checking other returns from the suspect group.

This sampling system of finding what groups to concentrate upon for investigation will supplement, but not supplant, the tax checking methods hitherto used.

The old system is pretty much a matter of individual cases—checking up when a particular return looked suspicious, but not looking for a group pattern.

Naturally, however, closer attention was paid to the bigger returns —say, for instance those above $10,000 a year income—and sometimes "spot" checks were made by locality or occupation.

Under the new system, there's a bigger chance for any taxpayer—no matter how honest his return looks—to get a call from an agent.

6000 Killed In North, Korea Hears

Seoul, (Monday), Nov. 8 (AP).—Officials of the South Korean government said today they had received reports of mass uprisings in Soviet-occupied North Korea in which 6000 or more Koreans have been killed.

There was no confirmation from other sources.

Home Minister T. Y. Yoon told newsmen he believed the attempted revolts in eight northern cities, including Pyongyang, North Korean capital, had failed.

However, another cabinet member, who declined use of his name, said he had been advised fighting was still in progress. He estimated there were 150,000 persons involved in the uprisings. The revolt belt, he said, extended from Haeju, near the thirty-eighth parallel dividing the United States and Soviet sectors, to Hamheung, East Coast post.

Yoon said his informants, whom he believed reliable, pictured the rebellion against the Communist regime as "one of desperation rather than a coordinated plan to overthrow the northern government."

Unions Accept Plan to Settle Ship Strike

Roth Formula May End 67-Day-Old West Coast Tie-Up

San Francisco, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—The CIO Longshoremen's Union and Marine Cooks and Stewards announced tonight they had accepted the Roth formula for resumption of peace negotiations in the 67-day-old West Coast maritime strike.

The announcement represents the first major break in the bitter deadlock which has virtually paralyzed Pacific Coast shipping since September 2 and was expected to lead to an early settlement of the entire dispute.

The unions' statement said:

"Negotiations are expected to be resumed in short order under an agreement which makes the San Francisco Employers' Council and the National CIO conciliators when called upon in the event of disputes which threaten strikes or lockouts."

"The agreement provides that if no settlement is reached after 10 days of negotiations, the employers final offer shall be submitted by the unions to their memberships."

N. Y. Union, Shippers Will Meet Today

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—AFL longshoremen officials will meet with shippers Monday over a dispute which threatens a dockers' tieup Tuesday on the East and Gulf Coasts.

Stevedores here and in Philadelphia voted overwhelmingly yesterday to turn down what was termed a "final" employers' wage offer. Their vote heightened the possibility of a strike by the union—the International Longshoreman's Association—when a court restraining order expires Tuesday.

The joint meeting Monday will come after the union holds a 10:30 a. m. (EST) meeting.

Key West Hails Arrival Of Victorious President

Chief Executive To Rest 2 Weeks; Barkley Expected To Join Party

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Key West, Fla., Nov. 7.—President Truman flew down to Florida for rest and sunshine today, after 31,500 miles of barnstorming.

He arrived in this farthest-south city of the United States to find the whole populace out to greet him. Bands serenaded him, and cries of "viva" arose from citizens of Cuban ancestry.

The victor in the exciting 1948 presidential race drove into Key West along Division street, which soon is to be renamed "Truman avenue." In last Tuesday's election, he beat the field here by a ratio of 10 votes to 1.

Among those who turned out to hail Mr. Truman today were the nuns of the Convent of Mary Immaculate, wearing their long black habits.

Across the street were suntanned girls in playsuits, all waving gaily at the President.

A banner stretched across Division street carried something new in the way of a greeting to Mr. Truman.

"Welcome, Uncle Harry," it read.

Barkley Due Shortly

Mr. Truman will spend the next two weeks swimming, fishing, and loafing. It could be, too, that he might spend some time talking politics.

Eben Ayers, assistant White House press secretary, announced this evening that Vice President-elect Alben W. Barkley will arrive Tuesday or Wednesday. With him will be Leslie Biffle, who in January is to return to his old job of secretary of the Senate.

The Chief Executive also has invited Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, his campaign manager. McGrath is expected here in the middle of the week.

This is Mr. Truman's fifth visit to Key West. The last time he was here, in March, the Dixiecrat movement was beginning to gain headway in the South. He refused to let it upset him, and that continued to be the case all through the strange 1948 campaign.

Takes to Slacks

The President's quarters are in the commandant's house on the United States submarine base. It is a white-painted house of West Indian architecture, with a palm-shaded garden and a view of the Atlantic.

The temperature today was 80 degrees, and Mr. Truman changed quickly from a brown business suit to slacks and an athletic shirt.

In the party that flew down with Mr. Truman in the Independence were Admiral William D. Leahy, his chief of staff; Dr. John R. Steelman, the assistant to the President; Dr. William D. Hassett, White House secretary; Clark M. Clifford, counsel to the President; Stanley Woodward, State Department protocol officer; William

Textile Workers Vote to Demand 10c Hourly Raise

Boston, Nov. 7 (AP).—Representatives of 120,000 CIO textile workers in 350 cotton and rayon mills in New England and the Middle Atlantic States voted today to demand a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase.

Emil Rieve, general president of the Textile Workers of America (CIO), said the demand was ratified by more than 400 delegates in accordance with wage-reopening clauses in contracts the union has with the plants.

Rieve said the demand, if met, would go into effect next January 15 and would raise the minimum wage in the cotton and rayon industry to $1.07 an hour and would raise the straight-time average hourly earnings to $1.30 in union mills.

GOP to Expedite Campaign Probes

GOP Chance Of Regaining Senate Slim

By The Associated Press

Democrats may have won four-year control of the Senate in last Tuesday's election.

Unless there is a sharp reversal in sentiment in the next two years, Republicans apparently face a stiff, uphill battle in 1950 to overcome the 54-42 margin their opponents will have when the new Senate organizes in January.

This could mean that during his next term, President Truman might never be called upon to deal—as he has in the last two years—with a wholly GOP-dominated Congress, even if the Republicans recapture the House.

The Democrats had an undoubted edge in last week's battle for Senate control because such a large number of their party members up for election were from the South.

Seven Seats Needed

While the Democrats won't have quite as good a break two years from now the Republicans still may have to win 18 out of 19 contests to gain the seven seats they would need for control.

In 1950, seats of 20 Democrats and 12 Republicans will be at stake.

Of the 20 Democratic posts, nine are in the States where the Republicans would have to produce the kind of miracle President Truman manufactured in order to win.

These States include Louisiana, Arkansas, Georgia, Arizona, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Oklahoma. All but Arizona and Oklahoma are certain Democratic States and the latter two usually go along.

On the other hand, Republicans can bank solidly on only four of the 12 seats they have at stake—those in Vermont, New Hampshire, North Dakota and South Dakota.

By the United Press

Senate and House Republicans plan to rush work on campaign investigations in nearly a dozen States before the Democrats take over the congressional machinery in January, it was revealed yesterday.

Committees in both houses still under GOP rule plan early meetings to decide which inquiries should be pushed to completion, which should be reported to Congress January 3, on the basis of information gathered to date, and which can be dismissed.

Most of the complaints aired so far have been against Democratic campaign activities. But the Democrats warned the Republicans before the election upset that they might find plenty of GOP doings to question if they seek political gain through the investigations.

The Senate Elections Subcommittee, under Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.), is scheduled to meet to discuss campaign charges in four States. All the allegations were made before the election. No new ones have been reported since the voting that turned the Republicans out of power.

Action Must Be Now

B. Nelson Deranian, chief counsel for the Senate group, told the United Press "everybody knows that when Congress convenes there will be a different committee set-up, and any action will have to be taken before the Senate convenes."

He said committee investigators have done preliminary work in Oklahoma, Texas, West Virginia and Rhode Island and that their findings presumably will be presented to the subcommittee for a decision on further action.

Chairman Ross Rizley (R., Okla.) of the special House Campaign Expenditures Committee, said he expects to call his group together "after a short vacation." He said it will "analyze reports of investigators in both Republican and Democratic races where charges have been made and investigated, and will file a full and complete report prior to convening of the Eighty-first Congress." Rizley was defeated for election to the Senate by former Oklahoma Gov. Robert S. Kerr.

Preliminary Checks Made

House committee officials said preliminary checks had been made or completed in House races in New York, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Kentucky and California, and in Democratic fund-raising practices in Michigan. They said "several investigations undoubtedly will be pursued."

In addition, the House Expenditures Subcommittee on Propaganda has been looking into GOP complaints that Federal officials "invaded" New Mexico to help former Agriculture Secretary Clinton P. Anderson in his successful bid for the Senate.

Among the House races that will get attention from Rizley's group is that of Representative Vito Marcantonio (A-L., N. Y.), who was re-elected last Tuesday. R. Ralph Burton, committee counsel, said investigators had found "questionable" registrations by Marcantonio supporters, one person giving "an unoccupied house" as his address.

Hospital Admits Mystery Youth Found in Ward

Police and hospital authorities are puzzling over an unidentified 18-year-old white youth found wandering around the Gallinger Hospital administrative ward early Saturday evening.

The youth who has been admitted to the psychopathic ward has refused to tell authorities his name or where he is from. The hospital said he is not an amnesia victim.

He is described as about 5 feet 9 inches tall, with light brown hair and brown eyes, and weighing about 145 pounds. When found he was wearing a blue shirt, blue dungaree trousers, a gray coat and cap, and black shoes but no socks.

Aiken Pledges Cooperation

By The Associated Press

Senator Aiken (R., Vt.) said yesterday he has written President Truman a personal letter "offering full cooperation" with Democrats on forward-looking legislation during the next four years.

At the same time, Aiken and other GOP members of Congress, who class themselves as the liberal wing of the Republican Party, promised a fight to "throw out the Old Guard leadership of the party."

Senator Young (R., N. Dak.) told a reporter there will be a "hell of a battle to shake up the leadership" among Republicans, both in Congress and the party.

Aiken, Young and a third Republican, Senator Flanders of Vermont, said they are anxious to drop partisan political sniping during the next session of Congress and work for any of President Truman's proposals that are for the good of the country.

Specific Programs Named

Aiken said he had written President Truman that he will vote for Social Security expansion, development of national resources, Federal aid to education and a permanent long-range Federal farm support program.

He added that he is positive a large number of like-minded Republicans will do the same thing. Aiken was active in support of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the defeated GOP presidential candidate. The Senator previously has backed the sort of programs he advocates for the new Congress.

"I had hoped that Dewey would get in and be able to renovate the party," Aiken said, "but now we'll have to do our own House-cleaning if we are ever to elect a Republican President."

President Truman's surprising victory proves, Aiken continued, that the "voters and the public are suspicious of the Old Guard machines of the Republican Party. Voters feared they would not get the right kind of cooperation and legislation."

For Expansion

Early Social Security Step Truman Plan

By The Associated Press

Expansion of Social Security coverage to 20 million additional employed persons, and at least a 50 per cent boost in old age benefits, will be proposed to Congress by President Truman in January, Democratic sources revealed yesterday.

The President probably also will ask:

1. A quick increase in Social Security taxes, ranging from 50 to 100 per cent, to finance the extended program. Under present law the tax on employes' pay and employers' payrolls is due to jump from 1 per cent each to 1½ per cent, but not until January 1, 1950.

2. Extension of coverage for unemployment insurance to persons now excluded because they are employed by small firms, and to persons working for the Federal Government; also, an increase in unemployment benefits, especially to unemployed persons with families.

3. Broadening of the Social Security program to include insurance against loss of earnings due to illness or disability.

Similar proposals were shelved in the Eightieth Congress.

However, leading Democrats in Washington yesterday agreed that, with Democrats now holding a firm grip on congressional control, Social Security expansion should be the easiest phase of Mr. Truman's legislative program to press through.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, in the presidential campaign, also called for Social Security expansion.

Mr. Truman's security program in the past also has embraced a plan for health insurance. But he has kept this separate from his general recommendations. With the opposition crying "socialized medicine," this proposal has been virtually ignored by Congress.

Around 30 million persons now are covered by old-age insurance, but when the act first was passed, large groups—farmers, professional persons, self-employed businessmen and domestic workers—were left out, principally because of administrative difficulties.

Mr. Truman contends simple procedures now have been evolved to collect contributions and pay benefits.

cabinet and reconsider his government policy in view of the recent revolt in southern Korea.

Appearing personally before the Assembly to defend his administration, Rhee accused his detractors of "unknowingly playing into the hands of the Communists."

Cho Hun Yung, one of the Assembly members opposing Rhee, told the group: "Unless the government changes its policy to respect the wishes of the people, its popularity will continue to decline."

Rhee denied his government did not reflect the will of the people and said it was carrying out their wishes.

Cho Hun Yung said that although the recent revolt was instigated by Communists, the people joined them because the present government has made serious mistakes in its administration.

Committee Appointed To Spur Scrap Drive

By the United Press

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer yesterday appointed an iron and steel scrap drive committee to step up the flow of scrap from industry, farms and auto wreckage yards.

Members are leading trade association executives, representing industries which are potential sources of large amounts of obsolete iron and steel machinery. Sawyer asked them to make it their "personal concern" to "clean house" and move their scrap to mills and foundries.

Vaughan, Army aide; Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, White House physician; Capt. Robert L. Dennison, Navy aide; Col. Robert B. Landry, Air Force aide, and Assistant Secretary Ayers.

White House press secretaries Matthew J. Connelly and Charles G. Ross are expected later in the week.

The First Lady and Miss Margaret Truman are planning to come down for the second week of the President's vacation. It will be their first visit here.

On the way from Washington to Key West, Mr. Truman stopped off at New Bern, N. C., to attend services in the First Baptist Church.

He was the third Chief Executive to visit New Bern, and the townsfolk turned out en masse for the occasion. George Washington was a visitor in 1791 while on a Southern tour and after him came James Monroe in 1819.

There was a story behind Mr. Truman's visit. Last September the pastor of the church, the Rev. Thomas W. Fryer, called at the White House to present the Chief Executive with a gavel.

Because it was the polite thing to do, he told Mr. Truman that he ought to visit the church in New Bern sometime.

"I appreciate that invitation," the President said. "I hope I will be able to drop by sometime."

The Rev. Mr. Fryer thought that would be the end of it.

The proverbial feather would have floored him recently when White House secret service men brought word that Mr. Truman really was coming down.

Dixie Electoral Vote Deal To Bar Truman Is Reported

By the United Press

Radio Commentator Charles Parmer said yesterday he had learned that States Rights Democrats are planning a "sensational political maneuver" to deprive President Truman of the election if he refuses to bury his civil rights program for the next four years.

Speaking over station WEAM, Arlington, Va., Parmer said "a southern statesman of outstanding integrity" (whom he did not name) told him about the plan "which, if carried through and if successful, might close the White House doors to Mr. Truman on January 20," Inauguration Day.

He said Senators Byrd (D., Va.) and George (D., Ga.) have been chosen by the States Righters to "spearhead a movement" to obtain "a most solemn pledge that the Administration will not again propose to Congress its civil rights program."

If that pledge is not given, Parmer went on, the plan calls for enough southern presidential electors to withhold their electoral college votes from Mr. Truman to throw the election into the House of Representatives "where a real upset might happen."

Southern Democrats already hold enough congressional "balance of power" in a coalition with Republicans, to defeat important parts of the President's legislative program if they want.

Defeated at the polls in their "States Rights" drive to oust Mr. Truman, many members of the Dixie bloc reportedly are ready to return to the regular Democratic fold and compromise on major issues if the price isn't too high. But observers believe they will balk at any compromise on the President's Civil Rights program, which started the Southern revolt last spring.

Parmer said the States' Rights group was going even farther than this, and planning to exact a pledge to scuttle the controversial anti-poll tax, antilynching, antisegregation and fair employment practice bills for four years.

To Truman or McGrath

Demand for the pledge, he said, will be made either to President Truman directly or to Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath, "together with northern Democrats in the Senate."

He said that since the election attempts are being made "to sew up all southern Democratic electors—to get them to vote for Governor (J. Strom) Thurmond in the electoral college if the pledge is not given."

He went on to say that the 87 southern Democratic electors, added to the 38 elected on the Thurmond-Wright ticket, would total 123 votes—"not enough to elect, but more than enough to throw the contest into the House."

George, Not Consulted, Is Opposed to Plan

Vienna, Ga., Nov. 7 (U.P.)—Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) said today he had not been approached by States' Rights Democrats about the reported "sensational" plan to deprive President Truman of the election unless he reneges on civil rights.

George said the whole idea sounded "odd" to him. He would not favor it, he said, because he did not believe it would work.

Lost Documents Of Boswell Put in Single Collection

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Long-lost manuscripts shedding new light on two great figures of English literature, Samuel Johnson and James Boswell, have at last been gathered into a single collection, Col. Ralph Isham collector, announced today.

So rich is the information, declared Herman Liebert of Yale, that a new edition is now required of the most famous of all biographies, Boswell's "The Life of Samuel Johnson."

"But 50 scholars working for 50 years could not exhaust the material Col. Isham has acquired," said Liebert.

Their importance lies in the fact that when Boswell wrote the "Life" he suppressed much good material in the interest of good taste.

"Put all this together and we have one of the greatest collections in the world," said Dr. James Clifford of Columbia University, an eighteenth century authority.

Douglas Is Favored If Marshall Retires

By the United Press

Lewis W. Douglas, United States Ambassador to Britain, is a standout favorite in congressional circles to become Secretary of State if Gen. George C. Marshall persists in his desire to retire.

Douglas has the backing of many legislators whose ideas presumably would be given weight when and if it comes time to pick Marshall's successor. The Ambassador visited President Truman Saturday preparatory to returning to London.

If Marshall does leave, these officials emphasized, it will be solely on his own insistence because Mr. Truman has the highest regard for the war-time chief of staff.

Douglas Strongly Backed

Douglas is 54, dapper, a successful legislator, businessman, educator—and a Democrat. He is said to have strong backing among influential figures in both parties who say the six years he served in the House, plus his service as one-time director of the budget, help equip him for Marshall's post.

Douglas was the President's "quarterback" in selling the European recovery program to the GOP-controlled Congress last spring, and his days of testimony before Senate and House committees received respectful attention.

Douglas now commands the admiration of many congressional leaders, including Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, who in January will exchange his role as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee with Senator Tom Connally, Texas Democrat.

The Michigan Republican went out of his way to laud Douglas' services during the ERP debate and at that time regarded him, along with Paug G. Hoffman, as eminently suitable to administer the program. Hoffman was appointed with Vandenberg's backing.

Attended European Parley

An important consideration in the State Department appointment is Douglas' close connection with the preparatory talks carried on in London and Paris on mutual defense efforts by the Western powers.

Douglas sat in with the five Brussels pact nations — Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—as they set up their joint defense program.

The program calls for American aid in the form of some type of military lend lease. In the purview of Western diplomats, it also requires an interlocking system of alliances assuring western Europe of outright Canadian and American military support in event of war.

Both phases are under discussion here and probably will be presented Congress for consideration early next year. Douglas, as Secretary of State, would be well equipped to present and defend the program to Congress, his friends say.

Recess Ends

High Court May Decide On Red Case

By the United Press

The Supreme Court may agree today to rule on the constitutionality of the anti-Communist section of the Taft-Hartley labor-management law.

The American Communications Association (CIO) is asking the court to toss out the section which was designed by Congress to rid unions of Communist leadership. The provision requires national and local union officers to sign statements that they are not Communists before the union may use the services of the National Labor Relations Board.

The justices return to the bench today after a two-week recess. They are expected to hand down the first decisions of the term.

Awaiting attention is the first test case challenging the right of congressional committees to demand that witnesses disclose alleged Communist affiliations. John Howard Lawson, Hollywood writer, has asked the court to give immediate review of his contempt of Congress convention for refusing to tell the House Un-American Activities Committee whether he is a Communist.

Lawson contends the case is of urgent importance. He seeks to bypass the United States Court of Appeals and get an immediate Supreme Court ruling.

The court also may rule tomorrow on the constitutionality of the House Un-American Activities Committee. A challenge has been brought by Gerhart Eisler, an admitted Communist, and 11 members of the joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, called by the Government a Communist-front organization.

Twice last spring the court declined to rule on similar claims. If the Eisler and the refugee committee cases are turned down, the constitutionality of the committee would be firmly established.

A lower Federal Court in New York upheld, 2 to 1, the constitutionality of the non-Communist affidavit requirement. Refusal by the Supreme Court to hear the appeal by the American Communications Associations would, in effect, uphold the section.

Late today, the court is scheduled to turn its attention to State laws of Nebraska, North Carolina and Arizona which prohibit the closed shop, union shop and similar mandatory union membership provisions in labor contracts.

Organized labor is prepared to go before the bench to argue that the bans violate the Constitution. The decision in these State cases could also decide the constitutionality of the closed-shop ban in the Taft-Hartley law.

23 Captains To Be Made Rear Admirals

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Sixteen Navy chiefs will gather here next week for some closed-door conferences which will put hundreds of the fleet's senior captains on the "hot seat" for the 10 days.

On orders from Secretary John L. Sullivan they will pick 23 of the captains for promotion to rear admiral and doom well over a hundred others to retirement next June.

Warmest spots on the anxiety bench will be held by 186 veterans of World War I, many of whom also had outstanding records in the second World War. They include members of the Naval Academy classes of 1916 through 1920, who have been passed over before for advancement to admiral.

To Retire If Not Chosen

If not chosen this time they will retire. The others will get another crack at it a year from now.

Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet, heads the selection board of five vice admirals and nine rear admirals which convenes at the Navy Department November 15. The Navy announcement said it will choose 19 seagoing captains and four engineerng or aeronautical engineering specialists for promotion to flag rank.

Under the law, the group must stay in session 10 days and carefully consider the records of those eligible for advancement.

Orders issued to the group designate Naval Academy class of 1921 "A"—the upper half of the class which graduated early—as forming the "promotion zone." That means that the board will go through the group, considering each member carefully, and either select or "pass over" him.

1500 Are Eligible

All Navy captains of the line with at least three years' service in grade—some 1500 in all—are eligible for promotion by the board. A few outstanding junior captains may be "jumped" over their seniors' heads, but the bulk of the promotions will come from the class of '21 A and above.

Besides Admiral Ramsey, the board will consist of Vice Admirals John L. Hall, William M. Fechteler, John D. Price, Francis S. Low and Harold B. Sallada during consideration of all of the eligibles. Rear Admirals Walter S. Delany, Frank G. Fahrion and James Fife, jr., sit in when seagoing captains are to be voted on. Three other rear admirals—Thorvald A. Solberg, Charles L. Brand and David H. Clark—take their place when engineering specialists are considered. Rear Admirals Donald Royce, Frederic W. Pennoyer and Theodore C. Lonnquest in turn replace them when aeronautical engineers are up for promotion.

The Navy said this will be the first of a series of selection boards to meet this winter. Promotion boards for junior line officers and the Staff Corps will be named later.

Submarine Tanker to Refuel A-Bomb Flying Boat Proposed

By the United Press

A new means of waging atomic war with a combination of submarines and flying boat bombers has been proposed to air admirals by a retired Navy officer, it was disclosed yesterday.

The officer is Capt. C. H. Schildhauer, who entered naval aviation in 1921, was a flying boat pioneer, organized the Naval Air Transport Service in World War II, and now is associated with the Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore, manufacturer of seaplanes and other aircraft.

Briefly, Schildhauer has proposed to admirals, who say the idea is "not impractical," that:

A flying boat bomber could take off from United States or other ports distant from enemy targets, be refueled at sea from submarine tankers, take on an atomic bomb from the last submarine in the chain, and drop it deep in enemy territory.

Reporting this proposal in its edition for today, the trade magazine Aviation Week attributes absence of Navy comment to a belief "that official indorsement of the project might be construed as a violation of the Newport agreement in which the joint chiefs of staff gave the Air Force primary responsibility for strategic bombing."

Being retired, "Dutch" Schildhauer is less inhibited. He told the United Press in an exclusive interview that the Newport agreement should not have been made if it can prevent progress in the art of war—progress such as he thinks his concept could bring about.

He said he had taken up the proposal with the reasearch and development board of the national military establishment as well as with the air admirals.

Submarine Tanker Due

Navy officers questioned privately said the concept has possibilities. They pointed out that an experimental submarine tanker now is being developed and that new flying boats are coming along with the necessary speed and range.

Schildhauer said the submersible bases and flying boats could provide a relatively economical and effective means of mounting surprise attacks. The concept was not intended as a replacement for land or carrier-based bombing but as a supplement, he said.

The idea fits in with known Navy views that no target in the world is more than 1700 miles from water. Therefore, Naval aviation's role in the future will increase rather than diminish in importance.

Schildhauer said he threw out the idea to stimulate air war thinking so that "we can be properly prepared."

Jury Decision On Thomas Likely Today

By the United Press

The Federal grand jury which has been investigating "kickback" charges against Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), probably will reach a decision on the matter today, it was reported yesterday.

There was no indication what action the jury may take. Its decision will be announced in Federal District Court.

Thomas, 53-year-old chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, is accused of putting certain individuals on his congressional payroll and then pocketing all or part of their salaries. These individuals allegedly did no work.

The charges were first raised by radio and newspaer columnist Drew Pearson. The grand jury began looking into them after the FBI had investigated.

Thomas has made no statement about the truth or falsity of Pearson's accusation. But he has accused the Justice Department of instigating the grand jury inquiry to hurt him politically. The department has denied this formally.

Thomas, a veteran of over 11 years' service in the House, was reelected to his seventh term Tuesday.

The grand jury investigation, which was begun October 22, has been under the supervision of United States Attorney George Morris Fay and Assistant Attorney General Alex Campbell. High point came when Thomas demanded the right to testify. The grand jury granted his request, but when Thomas appeared last Thursday, he refused to testify on the grounds that he might incriminate himself.

ITU Apparently Rejects Boosts In Council's Pay

Indianapolis, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—The members of the AFL International Typographical Union have voted against giving their executive council salary increases, unofficial tabulations of a referendum showed today.

Secretary-Treasurer Don Hurd said the ITU membership turned down by a majority of "about 5000" a proposal to boost the salaries of five national officers. He said official results of the October 27 referendum would be announced by a canvassing board which met today here at ITU headquarters.

The proposed boosts called for increases from $10,000 to $12,000 each for Hurd and President Woodruff Randolph and from $7500 to $9500 for Vice Presidents Larry Taylor, Elmer Brown and Joseph Bailey.

T-H Repeal to Get Priority

By the United Press

The White House has promised organized labor that outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act will be among the first three things asked of the new Democratic Congress in January, it was revealed yesterday.

Administration sources said that only anti-inflation legislation will take precedence over a flat demand by President Truman that the disputed labor management law be stricken from the books, as pledged in his election campaign.

Present plans are that Mr. Truman will send a "labor message" to the new Congress after it convenes. He will recommend outright repeal of the statute, and spell out in detail a new and "fair" labor law.

Mr. Truman has directed Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin to draft the new measure. Tobin was assigned the job at last Friday's Cabinet meeting and already has put Labor Department lawyers to work on it.

No one knows, at this time, exactly what the new labor bill will contain, but many Government labor experts are convinced that several seections of the Taft-Hartley Act will have to be kept, although some will be recommended in modified form.

The sections likely to be kept are:

1. Curbs on secondary boycotts and jurisdictional strikes. The Taft-Hartley Act bans such activities by unions completely. When he vetoed the present law, which he termed "vicious," Mr. Truman said he felt "something should be done" to stop certain kinds of secondary boycotts and provide a legal solution for jurisdictional disputes.

Periods of Delay

2. Cooling-off periods. Under the Taft-Hartley Act, the President has authority to stop, for about 80 days, any strike he believes might endanger the national health or welfare.

3. Good-faith bargaining. The Taft-Hartley Act forces labor to bargain in good faith with employers. Most Federal officials believe this section should be written into any new law.

4. Non-Communist affidavits. This is bound to be one of the touchiest problems confronting the bill framers. Under the present law, no labor union can use the services of the National Labor Relations Board unless its officers first sign sworn affidavits that they are not Communists.

was there an election MYSTERY ?

Even before the national conventions of both political parties . . . at a time when very few people gave Harry S. Truman any chance to win the election . . . and when the Republican Party was already announcing what it would do in Washington come January 20th, 1949 . . . this is what one man wrote:

"To begin with, numerous signs at the end of 1947 pointed to another presidential term for the Democrats."

"The evidence is clear that the year 1947 will go down in our political history as marking the end of the downward trend of the New Deal tide and the beginning of a new one."

"All these indications prior to the 1948 nominations could be taken as pointing to victory for the Democratic candidate in 1948 with a popular vote of 54 to 55 per cent . . . in a two-party contest . . . giving them (the Democrats) about 55 per cent of the seats."

(Actually Mr. Truman got nearly 54 per cent of the two-party vote . . . and the Democratic Party about 55 per cent of the seats in Congress!)

These are excerpts from a book published in July 1948, just before the nominating conventions. It was written by Louis H. Bean, economic adviser to the Secretary of Agriculture. It called the turn not only on the Democratic presidential victory but on the strong popular surge which restored to the Democratic Party control of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

The name of the book is "How to Predict Elections." A better title would have been "An Insight into Presidential Elections." We recommend it as required reading not only for those who would like to know exactly why the Republicans were mistaken in thinking this was their year . . . but for those who would like a clearer concept of the forces of social, economic and religious significance which activate the American people . . . and which will continue to activate them in the elections to come.

Mr. Bean's regular business is economic arithmetic. But rather than arrange numbers to suit the conclusions he would like to draw, he has the rare talent of interpreting numbers in terms of trends and activating forces. And to Mr. Bean the study of the voting statistics revealed positive evidence that a Democratic president would this year be elected by a substantial majority.

Mr. Bean has discovered from his study of the voting records that there is a direct and parallel relationship between the way people vote for Congress, and the way they vote for a President. From 1882 to now, with the sole exception of the year 1934, the party which gained a majority of the seats in Congress invariably succeeded two years later in putting its candidate into the White House. He pointed out, however, this pattern could mislead many people since this formula would not work in the face of 1948 prosperity.

Democrat or Republican in 1952?

What the numbers reveal for the future is extremely interesting . . . and vital to all of us.

The trend toward Democratic control of Congress under the two-party system has shown increasing strength for many decades . . . such strength that if the trend continues, by 1952 the Democratic Party will have a towering advantage . . . and it will again put its own candidate into the White House. Going still further, Mr. Bean warns against the common notion that the New Deal period of "Liberalism" has to be followed now by a period of "Conservatism."

For the chart-minded there is on page 167 a chart of the next political cycle and a discussion of the conditions that could bring about the Democratic upsurge in the 1950's.

The voting record was available to all. It took Mr. Bean's analytical mind to read sound conclusions into them. It turns out now that Mr. Truman had to win the presidential election, with such strong forces working for him.

In "How to Predict Elections" there's a library of valuable information for every citizen in this democracy.

which published special six-page holiday editions. The front pages also displayed large pictures of Stalin.

Inside, the newspapers carried the full text of Molotov's speech last night at the Bolshoi Theater. The speech also was being read on the Soviet radio.

Izvestia published telegrams of congratulation from several heads of foreign governments, including Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China, who sent his "most sincere and best congratulations" on the anniversary. Others were received from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India and Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion of Israel.

At the Red Square ceremonies the United States was represented by Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith and the American military, naval and air attaches, Maj. Gen. John O'Daniel, Rear Admiral Leslie Stevens and Brig. Gen. Russell Randall.

The occasion the Russians are celebrating is what is known as the "October Revolution." A switch in calendars complicates reference to it by this name.

U. S. Sends Greetings To 'Russian People'

The United States sent the "greetings of the American people to the Russian people" on the thirty-first anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, a State Department spokesman said yesterday.

He said the greetings were delivered by United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith in Moscow, who wrote them himself on instructions from the State Department.

The message was expected to follow the form of last year's brief, formal note from President Truman to Soviet President Nikolai Shvernik, which said simply:

"On this national anniversary of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, please convey to the people of the Soviet Union the sincere greetings of the people of the United States."

Czech Sees Communism Throughout World

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—Communist Minister of Education Zdenek Nejedly predicted last night that Russian socialism would spread throughout the world.

Nejedly told a mass meeting commemorating the thirty-first anniversary of the Russian October Revolution that, "thanks to the USSR, no iron curtain really exists—certainly none which could conceal socialism and socialist progress.

West Plotting Russian War, Togliatti Says

Rome, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—Palmiro Togliatti, Italian Communist leader, told a crowd of 100,000 in Milan today that the western powers were threatening "peace-loving" Russia with atomic war.

"One can never tell," he said, whether atomic weapons will not be used against other countries also.

Togliatto and other speakers, at an observance of the anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, urged Communists to march to "new social victories" in Europe. Europe, they said, was ripe for a "Socialist revolution."

Togliatti pledged for close Italian unity with Russia, which he said was the only country with "a strong will to peace."

Communist Senator Umberto Terracini said at a meeting that "if Italians want to solve innumerable problems, they must follow the path which the Soviets have opened."

James Clement Dunn, United States Ambassador, addressing the Chamber of Commerce at Cosenza, said Americans had confidence in the ability of Italians "to see through the pernicious blandishments of self-appointed unifiers of Europe."

Peiping officers of the Chinese civilian air lines announced they were booked solid until the middle of 1949 and could accept no more reservations for passage south.

Peiping and Tientsin were full of rumors that three government divisions had deserted to the Reds at Chinwangtao, near the Manchurian border. Communications to Chinwangtao remained open, however, and nothing untoward was reported from there.

International Status For Shanghai Hinted

New York, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—National Broadcasting Co. Correspondent George Folster reported today in a broadcast from Tokyo that the Chinese government had offered to declare Shanghai an international city if the United States would guarantee to protect it.

Folster said the offer had been made to Vice Admiral Oscar Badger, United States naval commander in the western Pacific, and reportedly was asked to relay it to Washington.

The Nanking government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek requested that the United States fleet in China waters be kept there to protect Shanghai should it become an international city, Folster reported.

Austria Desires Withdrawal Of Allied Units, Report Says

By The Associated Press

Austrians overwhelmingly want the four occupying armies to pull out, a Foreign Policy Association report said yesterday. It spoke of Austria's three years of "uncertainty and frustration."

Non-Communist Austrians concede that Russia might begin putting on the pressure if the Allies leave, the report said. But they feel that Austria will remain united against communism and are certain that "Russia would be obliged to employ outright force in bringing the country into the Soviet sphere," it added.

"If this happened," they contend, "Russian aggression would be as clear as though the Red army had attacked th Western Powers' occupation forces, and the West could not avoid coming to Austria's aid," the report said.

It was prepared by Winifred Hadsel, research associate for the Foreign Policy Association, a private organization.

The report said that the primary concern of the United States must be to help Austria hold recovery and independence gains, and prevent internal economic difficulties from shrinking her anti-Communist majority.

The National Infantile Paralysis Foundation has given the Montgomery County Council of Legion posts permission to conduct the drives for the next three years, it was announced yesterday.

The council has been sponsoring the "March of Dimes" in the county since 1937.

Last year the Legion raised $22,000 in its campaign, the highest amount raised by any Maryland county. Half the amount raised remained within the county for local polio work.

Prices Paid Farmer Show October Drop

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Prices paid to farmers for foodstuffs in October were lower than for the same month a year ago, the Bureau of Agricultural Statistics reported yesterday—the first month this year showing such a decline.

On October 15, prices received by farmers averaged 4 per cent below mid-September, and 10 per cent below the peak of last January, BAS stated.

Prices of meat animals declined, due to seasonal increases in livestock marketing.

"Prices of butter and cheese also declined sharply and in mid-October were lower than in October last year," BAS reported.

"Corn prices declined much more than seasonally during September and October and in mid-October averaged 6 cents below the average United States local rate.

"Prices of wheat in October were generally at about loan levels.

"Domestic mill consumption of cotton in September was slightly above August this year and September 1947. Flue-cured tobacco auction prices this season will probably average near 50 cents a pound compared with 41.3 cents last season.

"Average prices of livestock and livestock products declined 6 per cent between mid-September and mid-October, as a result of sharp declines in meat animal and butterfat prices."

On the other hand, BAS reported that demand for farm products shows no sign of slowing down.

Chief among the factors maintaining this high demand, it said, is the increasing income of the Nation. The seasonally adjusted annual rate of personal income increased in August to 215.1 billion dollars, 2.2 billions larger than in July.

"Increase in wages to some factory workers and Government employes plus increased employment accounted for most of the rise in the total.

"Gross average weekly earnings of production workers in manufacturing industries increased to a new high of $53.86 in August. The increase reflects for the most part continued gains in hourly earnings, particularly in the durable goods industries, where average hourly earnings increased from 140.6 cents in July to 142.2 cents in August."

attack on the United States from the Eurasian land mass. Any enemy seizing Newfoundland bases would be in a position to carry out heavy aerial attacks on the vital industrial centers of the Eastern Seaboard.

The fleet is now spread out over a vast area from the entrance of Placentia Bay, off the southern tip of Newfoundland, to a point 90 miles south of Argentina. It is divided into three task forces:

1. The hunter-killer, antisubmarine force of destroyers and escort carriers.
2. Assault forces, including amphibious ships and transports.
3. Carriers and battleships, including the Missouri.

Still another task force, composed of tankers, repair and supply vessels, was steaming northward to rendezvous later with the fleet and replenish its supplies.

Since November 5 the fleet has been under concentrated attacks from the air and from eight submarines of the latest Schnorkel type, which can stay submerged indefinitely. These attacks will continue through November 8.

British Fleet to Test Atomic Bomb Defenses

London, Nov. 7 (AP).—The British navy's defenses against atomic bombs will be tested in exercises off the southern English coast when the home fleet returns from a cruise to South Africa and the West Indies early in December.

The special problem of the war games will be to determine whether a power with a strong air force and many submarines can defend itself effectively against a strong maritime power.

Israel Denies Russian Aid

thirty-first anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

The Israeli cabinet met this afternoon to consider the United Nations Security Council resolution asking the Jews and the Egyptians to return to the front lines in the Negev which existed before the outbreak of the recent battle there. The cabinet formulated no answer before it adjourned.

Termed Inconceivable

Israel's attitude, however, was expressed in an editorial in "Davar," a labor paper which reflects the government's views. "It is inconceivable," the paper said, "that the Israeli government should agree to withdraw. It cannot do so even if withdrawal is given the cloak of demilitarized areas or stretches of no-man's land, which would mean creating a military and political vacuum."

Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok left unexpectedly today for Paris, where he will plead the Jewish case before the political committee of the U. N. General Assembly.

His departure precipitated another rash of peace talk rumors, but the Foreign Ministry said flatly: "There are no peace talks going on now with Egypt, anywhere."

The nation-wide blackout which was imposed October 14, when Israel started the Negev offensive was lifted tonight—a good indication that the truce has once again became relatively secure. Monday Israel will hold its first national registration as a prelude to elections, which have been postponed until late December or early January.

in the Donaldson death pending further police investigation.

Donaldson, who formerly worked in Syracuse for the Herald-Journal, had been employed by the James J. Butler News Agency for the past 18 months. He covered mostly assignments for Syracuse and other newspapers in that section.

Butler, his bureau chief, said Donaldson appeared to be in fine spirits when he quit work early, about 11:30 a. m., on Saturday. He was a fine reporter and a good writer, with a fine future ahead of him, Butler said.

While Syracuse friends said Donaldson had not been in good health, Butler said he had not been away from the office for health reasons during the past several months. He was quiet and a great reader, Butler said, with an intense interest in newspaper work.

Possibly an Accident

While police said the plunge could have been accidental, the window ledge in the Butler office is about 3 feet above the floor and the window is of the divided type, swinging open horizontally toward the inside of the room.

Donaldson had left his office early on Saturday because there was something he wanted to do in the afternoon, according to Butler, and had apparently purchased some new clothes during that time. The news service chief, who identified the body at the District Morgue, had been at the office until about 11 a. m. yesterday, and while there noted that Donaldson had left a story to be filed. Donaldson was not scheduled to work yesterday.

No Notes Are Found

No notes were found either at the office or at Donaldson's room at 5904 Connecticut ave. nw. His pocketbook, keys, change and a ring were recovered from the body. His landlady told police Donaldson had left home Sunday after being home Saturday night.

Donaldson began his newspaper work as a copy boy for the Herald-Journal after graduating from St. Brigid's High School in Syracuse in 1940. He became a reporter in 1942 and worked on general assignments until 1947, when the paper sent him to Washington to cover a national spelling bee. He joined the news bureau that summer.

He was described as an outstanding student and while in school served as an altar boy in St. Brigid's Church.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Mary Donaldson, a sister, Mrs. Walter J. Jackson, and a brother, James R. Donaldson, all of Syracuse.

guerillas tried to win control of the country.

Officials made the figures public today with the explanation they were compiled from records in Athens at American request to counter Communist propaganda.

Through the Moscow and satellite radios and at the United Nations General Assembly the Soviet bloc has been hammering at the idea that Greece is a police state carrying on a reign of terror against "democratic elements."

The Athens government figures, checked in part by American officials, recorded that legal executions of all kinds since the 1945 liberation of Greece through last September 30 numbered 1951.

Of these, 233 were listed as common criminals, four as Axis war criminals, 25 as Nazi wartime collaborators and 1689 as persons sentenced by Greek army courts-martial. Virtually all the latter group were followers of Rebel Gen. Markos Vafiades, but were shown to have been convicted of specific crimes and not executed merely as captured rebels.

Motif Hints Elizabeth Expects Boy

London, Nov. 7 (AP).—If blue satin bows mean anything, Princess Elizabeth is expecting a boy.

With the royal infant's birth expected in a matter of days—anytime between November 13 and 18—the family has disclosed details of a temporary nursery set up in Buckingham Palace.

The center piece is a cradle with blue satin bows. Of course, the bows could be changed to pink in a hurry if it's a girl.

The cradle, lent by Queen Mother Mary, was once used by Princess Elizabeth herself. It is fitted with head curtains and is trimmed in peach satin under a deep cream net with frills. The bows are fastened to this net cover. A peach satin eiderdown is covered with net to match.

Although the baby will have many new toys of its own, Princess Elizabeth has treasured carefully some of her own baby things. These—including rattles and soft, cuddly dolls—are waiting in the nursery.

The Columbia Historical Society will meet Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. at the Mayflower Hotel.

It was also announced that at their last meeting the society indorsed plans of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and the National Commission of Fine Arts to the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission. On November 22 the society will complete dedicating bronze plaques to the memory of the chief justices of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Deadliest New Cancer Type Was Developed at Nagasaki

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—A new kind of cancer, the fastest killer of all, produced in rats by Japanese scientists in Nagasaki shortly before the atomic bomb destroyed their laboratories, was described to the American Cancer Society today.

This cancer contains a milky fluid, injected into rats, causes death within one to three weeks, with cancer of enormous size.

The new cancer was not reported merely because it is many times faster than any other, but because it appears to be due to a virus, a very small particle. Scientists all over the world are studying the possibility that such virus particles may be at least part of the cause of human cancers.

All that is known about viruses is their existence, and that they cause many different diseases. Virus particles cause common colds and infantile paralysis.

Today's report was made by Dr. Riojun Kinoshita, president of Osaka Municipal University and of the Japanese Cancer Society.

He discovered the new cancer and the apparent virus cause in a single rat that was sent him by the Nagasaki scientists.

New Police Station Hailed

The new "lower side" Fairfax County police station yesterday was hailed as a boon to safety on U. S. Highway No. 1.

Open only three days, the new station's police personnel already had arrested 25 traffic violators on the county's most dangerous highway.

Lieut. Richard Utz of the Fairfax County force, said the arrests did not represent "any concerted drive" and were made although the new station is still in the process of "getting organized."

The new station has 15 officers assigned to it, providing for the first time adequate patrols for the heavily traveled highway.

Work of county police along the highway south of Alexandria, is supplemented by Virginia State Police, who did the policing of the road before the Fairfax station opened.

The new Fairfax substation is located on King's Highway, about 100 yards west of Route 1. Commanding officer of the station is newly promoted Capt. James Mahoney, assisted by Lieut. Utz and Sergts. James Dodson and James Thomas.

Voice of U. S. Most Potent, Pastor Says

The most potent voice in the world today is the voice of America, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris declared yesterday in a sermon at Foundry Methodist Church, 16th and P sts. nw.

The voice of America, he said, spoke through the ballots last Tuesday. To the listening world, including Russia, it said that "this free country is not divided as it faces the threat of regimented totalitarianism," he said.

"The votes for Dewey and the votes for Truman combined say America will have no part of atheistic communism," the Methodist clergyman asserted.

Freedom a Religious Concept

He pointed out that the State Department's Voice of America today is chiefly a means of opposing Soviet propaganda. In the coming crucial months, Dr. Harris stated, America must again proclaim her faith, and, in proclaiming it, must more nearly live up to it.

"The voice of America to all the earth must be the voice of liberty. This is the foundation of all our institutions. And let us never forget that human freedom is a religious concept," he told the congregation.

Dr. Harris stated that the Voice of America says that no government has any rights except those conferred upon it by the consent of the individuals who live under it. "Freedom," he said, "is the ancient, eternal and implacable foe of totalitarianism, and every form of tyranny over the bodies and minds of men."

"When America speaks to the world we must ever be mindful of the implications of that sentence by a great American, Emerson, who said, 'What you are speaks so loudly I cannot hear what you say.'

"The Voice of America has really little to say to the nations unless America listens to the voice of the God who hath made and preserved us as a Nation," Dr. Harris continued. "The weakness of America now, in this great hour when she has been thrust into world leadership, is that we have no great faith in God.

"The Voice of America will never accomplish its purpose until humbly at her altars America bows, saying, 'Speak, for thy servant heareth,'" he said.

Young Parolee Gives Up After 2½-Hour Siege

Gastonia, N. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—A paroled convict surrendered to police surrounding his family home today after a 2½-hour gun battle in which four persons were wounded.

Ray Aldridge, 21, paroled twice from prison terms for larceny and robbery, walked from his father's home with his hands in the air, after officers had peppered the two-story frame dwelling with rifle, pistol and machine gun fire and tear gas.

"I wish they had killed me," Aldridge told his father, Parris Aldridge, who had pleaded with his son, by telephone shortly before.

The elder Aldridge said his son became angered when refused use of the family automobile. The boy obtained a rifle and chased his parents and relatives from the house. They called police.

National Flower Week Opens

National Flower Week, originated in 1945 by the Society of American Florists to stress "the importance of flowers in the art of present day living," was ushered into Greater Washington yesterday.

From now until November 14, when the "week" ends, members of garden clubs in Greater Washington will place flowers, in hospitals, schools, homes of shut-ins, churches and similar places where they can be most enjoyed.

Among events planned in conjunction with the week is a corsage-making demonstration at 8 p. m. Tuesday by the Newman Club at the University of Maryland. Members of the organization—branch of a national group of Catholic college students—are learning to make corsages to sell them on Mother's Day for the benefit of their treasury.

Radio and television programs planned for the week include a demonstration of corsage etiquette on a program over WMAL-TV at 7:15 p. m. A series of flower arrangements for the home will be discussed over the "Meet Mrs. Markel" program at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday over WTTG. On Wednesday NBC will demonstrate methods of propagating African violets over WNBW at 6:15.

At 11:30 a. m. Wednesday, Mrs. Lilian Wright Smith, Washington gardening lecturer, will be interviewed over WMAL-TV on methods of planting roses. On Monday at 11:55 a. m. Mrs. Fred Lang, vice chairman of the Garden Club Section, will discuss the week's significance over WBCC.

Garden clubs participating in National Flower Week in Greater Washington are under the chairmanship of Mrs. Roy W. Crampton, president of the Forest Hills Garden Club.

Man's Bailiwick

Despite all the upsets the election brought, men have retained their overwhelming dominance of numbers in Congress. Only nine women, one of them a Senator, were elected. Women made an even lower mark in the Eightieth Congress, in which there were seven of their sex in the House. The Seventy-ninth Congress had 11 women Representatives, three having been appointed to fill unexpired terms of their husbands. In this Congress women hold about 1.7 per cent of the seats, well below feminine membership in legislative bodies of most other nations. In the new Indian Constitutional Assembly women occupy 5 per cent of the seats.

True, a woman, Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith, crashed the Senate, and she was the first of her sex to do so without having been given a foot in the door by means of an appointment. She is rated a first-rate choice. And the two new women Representatives, Judge Reva Beck Bosone, Democrat, of Utah, and Mrs. Cecil M. Harden, Republican, of Indiana, a former school teacher who won in a hard fight, will bring the same high ability to the House, as will the five women members who were reelected together with Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, a member of the Seventy-ninth Congress. At least this is their reputation.

The question remains: Why in a country in which women constitute the majority of eligible voters, where they control the purchasing power, and are dominant in the home, church, cultural and social life, do they express such a weak voice in making the Federal laws? Why in such critical times as these is Congress denied the balancing contribution of their viewpoints and special talents?

One reason so few women run for Congress is that they have more difficulty than men in getting money to finance their campaigns. Also some of the best qualified women recoil from the rough and tumble of electioneering. An even greater deterrent is the cold shoulder that men organization leaders turn on them, especially in districts where parties are strongly entrenched. Women experienced in running for office say they seldom meet prejudice from the man voter—or from the woman voter—but rather from the sachems, major and minor, of the party. Probably all these obstacles would be swept aside by American women if they ever became faced with and aroused over such dire realities as confront their sex in most other countries.

Gerontocracy

It was a Democratic Congress—the Seventy-ninth—which enacted the congressional reorganization plan. In the months ahead another Democratic Congress will have a great opportunity to extend and strengthen these reforms in the interest of prompt and responsible legislation. Only part of the modernization urged by the La Follette-Monroney Committee in 1946 was ever put into effect. Most of the changes thus effected have been constructive. Where weaknesses have shown up, as in the operation of the legislative budget, they can be corrected while further steps are being taken to make Congress a more responsive instrument of the popular will.

As the leadership on Capitol Hill shifts from Republican to Democratic hands, reform of the seniority system of selecting committee chairmen looms up as the most urgent step to be taken. The people think they have elected a new Congress. When they look at the committee line-ups under the seniority system, however, they see the same old perennials at the top regardless of their ability, responsiveness to public opinion or even their capacity to carry the heavy load of a committee chairman. No one would expect new men coming to the House and Senate for the first time to be given committee chairmanships, except possibly in unusual circumstances. But the people do expect chairmen to be chosen for their ability to lead, to knit the majority party together and to carry out the programs that the people have approved at the polls.

To be sure, the seniority system turns up some outstanding men, such as Senator O'Mahoney of the Senate's Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, Senator Elbert D. Thomas of the Labor and Public Welfare Committee and Senator George of the Finance Committee. At the same time it gives enormous powers to such misfits as the aged and ailing Senator McKellar, who will be head of Appropriations, and Senator Olin D. Johnston, who is apparently scheduled to take over Civil Service. On the House side the seniority rule will again put the powerful Ways and Means Committee under the chairmanship of Representative Doughton, who observed his eighty-fifth birthday yesterday, and the vital Foreign Affairs Committee under Representative Bloom who is 78. It will put the Un-American Activities Committee under the unenlightened domination of John S. Wood or John E. Rankin.

Adherence to blind choice under the seniority rule not only tends to give us a gerontocracy but also makes a farce out of the democratic principle. The seniority rule has been perpetuated because of the supposed difficulty of choosing committee chairmen in any other way. The election of committee chairmen is admittedly difficult, but little more so than the choice of committee members in the first place. For example, the Democratic Steering Committee will have several places to fill on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Because of the influence of this committee, there is certain to be a scramble for these posts. It should be no more difficult for a well-functioning party organization in the Senate to select committee chairmen than it is for it to select committee members. Precisely the same principle is involved. In addition to giving the committees more active and responsible chairmen, the elective method would also tend to knit the party together and help it to function as a unit in carrying out the program outlined in its platform. To consider nothing but length of service in the choice of chairmen is to put Congress under a crippling handicap that is almost certain to blunt the edge of the victory that has been won.

Dixiecrat Votes

Fortunately the country escaped an indecisive election that would have thrown the choice of President into the House of Representatives. Such a catastrophe would have put Congressmen with Dixiecrat sympathies in a strategic position to barter votes in exchange for concessions in respect to the civil rights program. Although the 38 electoral votes of the four States in the Thurmond column were not sufficient to defeat President Truman, the fact that the regular Democratic Party machinery was captured by the Dixiecrats in four States, and that the Thurmond adherents polled substantial votes in several other Southern States, gives warning of a bitter battle ahead should the President attempt to push his civil rights program.

Effective opposition to the civil rights program cannot be gauged by the number of votes cast for Thurmond, since that vote was so concentrated as virtually to insure that members of Congress representing the disaffected areas will present a united front on this controversial issue. Moreover, Representatives from Dixiecrat States can no doubt count on the sympathetic support of a good many members from the Southern States who clung to the party, though sharing the opinions of the Dixiecrats.

Predictions that the schism in the ranks of the Southern Democrats would result in the creation of a third party that would constitute a permanent challenge to the regular organizations appear unlikely of fulfillment. The Southern Democrats have, however, learned from their experience that it is possible to put pressure on the regular party organization by separatist movements that serve bad as well as good causes. This kind of protest voting is not calculated to further efforts to break the stranglehold of party regularity that has handicapped the South, but rather to enable the South to exploit a docile electorate that is a product of the region's traditional adherence to a single party.

False Equality

There is something profoundly heartrending about the efforts of authorities in King George County, Va., to equalize school facilities for white and Negro students. What the officials have done is to equalize on the lowest common denominator. The Negro King George Training School does not offer certain courses given at the white high school. Consequently, these courses are to be dropped from the white curriculum. They include such essential subjects as physics, chemistry, biology, geometry and advanced algebra.

The purpose of these gyrations is a "show cause" order issued by a Federal Court, under which officials would have been liable to contempt citations if the facilities had not been "equalized" by Friday. Technically, what has been done may be compliance with the order at least with respect to courses offered, but it is the kind of compliance in which no one, not even the bitterest foe of segregation, can take any pride. It is conceivable that the change may result in the disaccreditation of the white high school. And certainly the dropping of these elective courses is likely to cause resentment among white students and their parents.

There is no doubt that the abolition of all educational discrimination presents a real problem in King George County. This is one of the more impoverished Virginia counties, and the financial burden of additional facilities for Negroes at this time may seem staggering. This is a realistic demonstration of the fact that the burden of maintaining segregated facilities falls most heavily on the localities least able to pay for them. The moral is one which Virginians ought to take to heart. If there is to be any positive improvement in Virginia schools, then it is obvious that this improvement will have to encompass students of both races. The mounting cost of segregation in education is the one factor which, above and beyond all other considerations, ultimately is most likely to lead to its abolition.

Doing Something In China

At last the opportunity is available for doing something in a military way for China that will not alienate the Chinese people and arm the Communists. It is presented by the news that Chiang Kai-shek has persuaded himself that his high perch is no longer tenable after the drubbing he has had in Manchuria. The generalissimo has granted Fu Tso-yi, commander of the frontier forces in northern China, full and independent power of action. Fu Tso-yi happens to be the only general in the anti-Communist coalition capable of making full use of American aid. With Chiang's order, the way is now clear to come directly to his support, and the opportunity should be seized without delay.

Hitherto Fu Tso-yi has been appealing in vain for American assistance. The United States declined the few dollars he had scraped together with which to buy American arms. The refusal was due to fear of the susceptibilities of Chiang Kai-shek, who, jealous of his own personal power, has dealt with Fu Tso-yi at arm's length, and kept him on short rations. Taking Chiang at his face value, this country has been wasting its substance in subsidizing Nanking. It has been the worst Operation Rathole in American experience—a rathole down which the United States has poured a legion of dollars into the pockets of Nationalist corruptionists and tons of arms into Communist possession through the surrender of fightless Chiang Kai-shek divisions. It has been a business as witless as it has been immoral. There has been no policy and no plan in this game of subsidizing Chiang, and he has gone his own foolish way, keeping his hand out, Oliver Twist fashion, to Uncle Sam and ignoring all the advice available from the thousand-odd American military mission in Nanking. Nothing has done more to offend the harassed people of China than this propping up of Chiang Kai-shek and his overweening pretensions to control all China.

Now there is a bare chance of getting our money's worth out of military help to China. Fu Tso-yi, besides being one of the few non-Communist generals who can and will fight, has the support of the countryside, for he deals justly with the people in the areas he controls. It is from the hard climate of the north that he has recruited his men, and they are as tough as any in China, bound together, moreover, in devotion to their commander. "Yellow River Bend Babies" they are called, and hitherto they have been penned within the long north China corridor by lack of arms, Communist pressure, and nominal support from Chiang Kai-shek. With him, unless he is utterly disgusted by the turn of events, the United States could cooperate, for he represents not weakness and hopelessness, but potential strength and promise.

Chiang Kai-shek's order releasing Fu Tso-yi for independent action should be capitalized at once by the establishment of a Chinese-American Ordnance Board. This board should have full authority to distribute arms only where they will be employed in tangling with the Communists instead of in negotiating a resale with them. There is a precedent in the Chinese-American board which is at present disbursing surplus property other than arms. Having got this board together, the United States, under the board's authority, should set up a supply base at key coastal ports, particularly at Tientsin. Between Tientsin and Fu Tso-yi's men are the Communists streaming down from Manchuria. But, with a plane service such as the one operated by General Chennault, General Fu could be supplied at his home base, which is Taiyuanfu, capital of Shansi Province. Taiyuanfu happens, furthermore, to be one of the main arsenal cities of China, but is starved for machine tools. Tools could be air-borne, as well as needed rifle ammunition, and, unless all reports about Fu are wrong, there would soon be an improvement in the military situation. A little help now might stop the rout in north China. If Fu could capture Shiachiachwang, the junction of the Peking-Hankow and Cheng-Tai railroad, he could be supplied by rail.

This is the way militarily to aid China—to stop the senseless subsidy of Nanking which simply puts a premium on Nationalist surrender and to help the men on the spot who can and will fight according to some prearranged strategical plan. It is a gamble, as all aid to China is, but it is the only gamble that has the slightest chance of paying off. And it has been made possible at last by Chiang's order—evidence that the generalissimo has now seen the light, thanks not to American Chiang-aiders, who kept him in a fool's paradise, but to the harsh lesson of experience.

AUTUMN NIGHT

His muzzle lifted to the moon
Whitening on the lakeside dune

The old dog carves a silver grief
From the burning autumn leaf,

From the lost warm winds of spring
Blown southward on a summer wing.

He has no midnight pain to bear,
No scar of thought he yet must wear,

But in his sense the long white light
That leans upon the jeweled night

Is emblem of an old unrest
He keeps unnamed deep in his breast:

A passion and a terror born
Before the petal or the thorn,

Before the gaunt and glacial lake
Or the tall heron in the brake.

His master indoors hears the sound
Leap hollowly along the ground

And leans to stir the charring logs,
His dark mind fearful as the dog's.

"Some Cabinet Remodeling Too, Boss?"

Midwestern Shift

By Mark Sullivan

The Farmers' Defection

THE SWING of six Midwest farm States to President Truman was by far the largest single factor in the unexpectedness of the election results. A condensation is here repeated, with additions, for a further purpose—to show the bearing of this swing on the coming Congress, and especially on the trend of the country in the broadest sense.

The six Midwest farm States have a total electoral vote of 101, almost a third of Mr. Truman's strength, without them he would have been beaten rather badly. The six States have been strongly Republican, 11 of their 12 Senators were Republican. They had gone heavily Republican in the congressional elections two years ago. Out of their 87 seats in the House of Representatives, 72 were Republican. In two of the States, Iowa and Wisconsin, the entire delegations in Congress were Republican.

The swing of the farm Midwest away from Mr. Dewey accounted for his defeat. This is shown by one statistic. In the Midwest farm belt as a whole (12 States) Mr. Dewey received this year some 1,200,000 less votes than when he ran four years ago. And—this is the point—this falling off in the farm belt was almost exactly the same as his falling off in the country as a whole.

No such falling off took place in the labor vote in industrial States. The early and widespread postelection assumption that the labor vote defeated Mr. Dewey was a fallacy. Actually Mr. Dewey carried this year six industrial States which he had lost in 1944, including large ones with big electoral votes—New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey. While labor was conspicuous in the election, through defeating a number of Republican Congressmen against whom it focused locally, it had little part in defeating Mr. Dewey. It was the farm vote mainly that did that.

The reason for the swing of farm votes to Mr. Truman is important as a deciding factor in a national election, and is further important in its future consequences in its bearing on the trend of the country. It needs to be understood.

Corn was selling in the ordinary markets, to private buyers, at prices ranging about $1 a bushel. At the same time the Department of Agriculture had a "support price" of $1.53. The Government would loan any farmer $1.53 a bushel, with his corn pledged as security—which loan the farmer did not need to repay, and of course would not unless at some future time the market price should rise to the Government's support figure. The farmer could just let the Government keep the pledged corn—the loans were in effect sales.

But farmers could not take advantage of the Government's support price unless they had facilities to store the corn until such time as the Government would take it over. This brings us to the precipitating cause of the farm swing to Mr. Truman. The Republican Congress about a year ago took a step which prevented the Department of Agriculture from continuing a detail of its price-support program—the department could no longer use Government funds to build storage facilities for farmers. This action of the Republican Congress was denounced and exploited by President Truman. It was the cause of the farm swing to him.

The consequences are obvious, and ominous. Congress, and both political parties, and every political leader, have been warned to follow the price support policy, in all its spreading details and such additions as may be proposed. Farmers themselves little understand what this leads toward. They are the most conservative group in the country, the most depended upon, to support private ownership. But they are moving toward an end which may be understood by following the policy of the present British government looking toward socialization of land. The English farmer no longer has true ownership of his land, he is only a tenant by sufferance, he can be dispossessed whenever the government says he is not farming as the government tells him to. The justification given for this was that when the government assures the farmer of prices for his crops and otherwise favors him, he cannot complain if the government requires him to cultivate his land as the government directs. If he does not, the consequence is put in words of a publication of the British government when the agricultural bill was pending, in February last year: "In the case of an owner, the land would be purchased compulsorily. An owner-occupier might be required to let his land to an approved tenant."

Religion In Spain

A day or so ago The Washington Post (issue of November 2) carried a news item stating that the Most Reverend Patrick A. O'Boyle, Catholic Archbishop of Washington, in a speech lashed out at Soviet Russia for its "three-fold anti-Catholic program" in Poland. In this connection it is interesting to note that one of The Washington Post's contemporary Washington dailies published an Associated Press dispatch from Spain quoting Cardinal Segura y Saenz as saying that 40 new Protestant churches have been started in Spain in recent months and "if this grave evil is not stopped, there will be an eruption of the enemies of God and Spain very difficult to contain."

"Higher Transit"

In taking sides with the Capital Transit Co. and the decision of the Public Utilities Commission your editorial "Higher Transit" of November 2 ignores the interests of the majority of Washingtonians who are seriously squeezed by the fare raise, but have little choice about it. In contrast the D. C. Chapter of Americans For Democratic Action and the Washington Committee For Consumer Protection led a vain but sincere fight on a legal plane for the people of the community.

People have become so used to accepting decisions handed down from above that the company probably knew it could get away with it and may be already planning the next increase. There is, however, an effective way of self-help for consumers to defend their right to a reasonably low fare, and that is to substitute automobile rides for those of the Capital Transit.

A sample of a few hundred automobiles observed in the early morning hours showed that 8 out of 10 cars rode empty except for the driver. It is, therefore, suggested to seriously consider interesting motorists to take riders downtown for a moderate amount. The rides should not be door to door so as not to compete with taxis and not to inconvenience the car owners. The organization conducting such a campaign needs only a mimeograph machine and the cooperation of those interested; to cover expenses a small amount could be charged for listings.

Your editorial "Higher Transit" is both an argument for public ownership, and a reminder that national Government must end the conditions which give transit companies and other public utilities an excuse for raising charges.

With public ownership interest rates would be much lower, and so would reduce this operating cost.

Where could any Public Utility Commission get the idea that any public utility is entitled to earn 7½ per cent on "investment?"

Maybe the next Administration and Congress will try ending special privileges, for a change. That would end inflation.

"Wesley Clair Mitchell"

Your October 31 editorial evaluating the contribution of the late Wesley Clair Mitchell justly accorded public recognition to a great man and a great economist. In the course of the editorial, however, you made some grevious errors on the nature of science.

The basic misconception is revealed in the statement that Dr. Mitchell based "his generalizations on what he knew rather than on preconceived beliefs." This statement needs interpretation, because on its face it merely states an obvious proposition, namely, that Dr. Mitchell based his generalizations on what he believed to be true while other economists based their generalizations on what they believed to be true. What you probably meant to say was that Dr. Mitchell attempted to form generalizations from careful statistical observations by means of inductive logic, in contrast to other scientific economists who attempted to arrive at meaningful hypotheses by deduction from previously induced generalizations. The restatement of your proposition in this manner reveals that there is no basis for methodological conflict, since both induction and deduction are required in any science.

One can pay a deserved tribute to Dr. Mitchell by crediting him with some interesting suggestions which offer a starting point for deductive economists, and other economists concerned with verification and application. To imply, as your editorial did, that science consists of the collection and analysis of "facts" betrays an unfamiliarity with the great scientific contributions and contributors of the past. The scientific method combines observation, induction, deduction and verification in intricate pattern, and there are few men in any one science who are experts in all types of scientific inquiry. To the great credit of Dr. Mitchell, he was an indefatigable worker in one of the aspects of economics, but his work was neither the first nor the last scientific contribution to economics.

Education Philosophy

After reading the letter of October 25 entitled "Philosophy of Education," I felt moved to write my views on the philosophy behind the Montgomery County school program. Ever since my children entered the school system six years ago, I have made it my concern to know what and how they were taught. I am firmly convinced that democratic principles as "a way of life" are the backbone of the whole school program.

This school system has been established as a result of the work of many educators who have evolved the point of view through specific scientific study and observation. Children do have to learn to live together so that as adults they can work together, plan, and function toward the greatest good for the greatest number. In the past, that phase of education was left mainly to home, church, and community services.

I, for one, am looking toward a better world when the schools, a common meeting place for all children, can insure the opportunity to learn many things that their homes and communities may not be prepared to teach them. To me, it is as much an aspect of Americanism that people work together for the common good despite race, religion or political affiliations, as it is that they know specific historical precepts (which, incidentally, our children certainly are taught, not necessarily in the sequence that we learned the facts 20 years ago).

In addition to teaching children to share in the responsibilities of community living, the basic philosophy of the Montgomery County school system includes the precepts that the only true learning comes through experience, and that each child is an individual who should have a chance to develop his innate potentialities to a maximum degree.

The staff of the Board of Education is hampered to some extent in fulfilling these goals by overcrowded classrooms and by an inadequate budget. However, the goals are seen by the educators responsible for fulfilling them and, to me, this seems a hope for better citizens in the world of tomorrow.

Hope Springs Eternal

Now that the election is over, I expect to read in the news that election night at all Progressive Party headquarters consisted of wakes. I was at the D. C. headquarters until late Tuesday night and the place was still buzzing with people when I left. It was noticeable in early election reports that the radio announcers deliberately refrained from reporting Wallace returns as they came in. Later all the withheld figures were given reluctantly.

We Progressives did not expect to win but we expected and got strong support for our 6-month-old party toward 1952. The Progressive Party is just starting its fight, and we'll be right on hand to block further antilabor legislation and any Mundt bill revival attempts. Henry Wallace is still going strong.

More Traffic

I find it impossible to reconcile the movement for fringe parking lots to prevent motorists from driving their cars downtown with the activities of the highway engineers in, for example, building the Dupont Circle underpass. Is not the only purpose of this underpass to facilitate the movement of automobile traffic into downtown Washington and is not the purpose of the "fringe parking lots" to keep them out?

It seems to me—no expert—that the elevated highways, wide streets, underpasses, etc., that make it so easy to reach downtown area, serve only to increase congestion. Are there not many "marginal" drivers who would stay away from downtown if it were not easy to get there?

Those of us who live downtown in Washington — suffer from the growing noisy traffic, with the one-way streets and the upsets caused by the construction work on these projects—must feel impelled, as I do, to move away from the traffic's speedways, to nearby Maryland or Virginia, being assured that the District will provide bridges, elevated highways, underpasses and wide boulevards to bring us into the District painlessly at least to us, if not to the residents.

Religion In The Schools

A simple layman can not hope to understand how our judicial magicians pull out of the Constitution what they pretend to find there. For example: The United States Supreme Court has decided that the State of Illinois may not allow religious instruction in public school buildings. Now the Constitution does not mention either religion or public instruction except to say, in the First Amendment, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." That is all. It can hardly be supposed that this proviso was intended to limit any rights of the States; and to safeguard those rights a subsequent amendment declared that "the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

A certain politician once asked, "what is the Constitution between friends?" I prefer his candid cynicism to the intellectual dishonesty of liberal construction, so-called. I presume that the judges decide these matters in the public interest, as they see it, but I do not believe they have a right to do so.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Government Is People

SOME POINTS about the second Truman Administration are clear already. For example, the President means to have a second New Deal if he can. But government is people, as some sage has remarked. In his second term, Truman will really stand or fall by the men he hires as his subordinates.

Very roughly speaking, this vital problem of the personnel of the new Administration may be divided into two parts, foreign and domestic. The foreign part is the more important, for the peculiar reason that the campaign tensions poisoned the relations between the President and the ablest men on his present foreign and defense team. The White House currently is a constant source of rumors that the days of Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett are numbered. In a lesser degree, the same hints are given about Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal. And even Secretary of State George C. Marshall's standing is being openly called into question.

The men disseminating these rumors are, of course, such White House advisers as David K. Niles, who have fought the Marshall-Lovett-Forrestal policies, on Palestine particularly. The sources of the rumors are suspect. Yet the peculiarly well-integrated committee of brilliant men who have directed our foreign and defense affairs is nonetheless about to be dissolved; Forrestal may stay on for a transitional period, although he desires to leave. But Lovett has long intended to get out on January 20, whatever the President may wish, and the same apparently applies to Secretary Marshall. Thus replacements must be found, at least for Lovett and Marshall, and perhaps for Forrestal as well.

FOR THE STATE DEPARTMENT, Chief Justice Vinson, Averell Harriman, Dean G. Acheson, Will Clayton and Sumner Welles (whom the Zionists are pressing), are the names most often mentioned. The insiders are betting on Vinson if he will consent to leave the Supreme Court. For the Defense Department, a long list is offered—former Secretary of War Harry Woodring, Woodring's bitter enemy, former Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, who was Democratic fund-raiser in this campaign; Secretaries of War, Navy and Air Royall, Sullivan and Symington, who are all active candidates; and the President's crony, the lame duck Governor of Washington, Mon C. Wallgren. The insiders seem to have no choice among these alternatives.

The reported candidates for the State Department are all conspicuously able men, but at least two thirds of the names on the Defense Department list are downright hair-raising. This, in turn, suggests the nature of the biggest danger now ahead.

Human mediocrity has been spreading over the Administration like a rather nasty fungus disease over infected skin, ever since the original Truman Cabinet began to disintegrate. The question is whether mediocrity is now to be promoted to rule over the really crucial fields of policy-making. And even although the President names a Vinson, Harriman or an Acheson to the State Department, the choice will not counterbalance the appointment of a Woodring or a Wallgren to the Defense Department.

In the field of domestic administration, the problem is approximately the same, although complicated by a political factor. The complication is that in the domestic field, none of the President's subordinates had the slightest excuse for sitting on their hands throughout the campaign. Several of them, led by the President's special crony, Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder, nevertheless held themselves rather glaringly aloof from all the awful hurly-burly. Their line was that they would write checks but would not make speeches.

THE COMPLICATION is important, because the hand-sitters, by an understandable coincidence, also comprise most of the Truman subordinates who have consistently opposed the left-wing policies on which the President won the election. But the fact remains that when the President returned to Washington in triumph, Secretary Snyder was triumphing right next to him in the receiving line. The President's nature is to keep by him these men who are personally close, while he gladly lets such men as Lovett go. Thus the betting is that the political Laodiceans will stay on if Truman likes them, unless they prefer such prosperous private employment as the Bank of America position which Snyder would have taken if the election had gone the other way.

There are those in the White House who strongly oppose this tendency, urging that if the President wants a second New Deal, he had better hire some New Dealers. For this reason men like Wilson Wyatt and Paul Porter will no doubt be brought in for such special jobs as housing and stand-by price controls. But here again, the betting is that the general, basic character of the Administration will be unchanged.

The President will decide these prroblems probably while he is at Key West. He may again confound the political bookmakers. But one thing at least is certain. In view of his own character and experience, the choices of men he must now make are likely to be among his biggest choices of the coming four years.

Tighter Grip On Controls Held Unsafe

By the United Press

Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) said yesterday that "what the Government can do to end inflation is limited," and that stricter credit controls may be dangerous.

The New England industrialist, a member of the Senate Banking Committee, said in an interview he thought the Government has "gone as far as you can safely with credit controls."

"Inflation can be cured by drastic credit controls, but you can't do it without unemployment," he added.

Flanders, former president of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank, said one helpful thing the Government could do would be some form of tax exemption for private capital spent on labor-saving machinery. That, he predicted, would increase production and strike at the cause of inflation.

He said that industry is lagging on new labor-saving devices because profits spent for developing such machines are not exempt from taxes.

Flanders, who last year introduced a meat rationing bill that did not pass, said he is opposed to rationing and price controls at the present.

"They treat only the symptoms and not the cause," the Vermont Republican commented. He said he proposed meat rationing last winter because he hoped it might help forestall a third round of wage increases that would send prices higher. But, he observed, the situation is different today, and rationing would be of little real value.

Flanders also said he thought inflation was reaching a leveling-off "plateau."

The Vermonter, who several times has voted with the Democrats on the Banking Committee, said while he opposes price controls, he would "meet them more than halfway" in any helpful efforts to solve inflation.

Food Potential In Case of War Under Study

By the United Press

The Government is trying to determine how far United States food supplies will go in the event of another war.

The Agriculture Department is preparing mobilization plans for farmers if wartime production is called for again. It is working with the National Security Resources Board. One plans to marshal the Nation's entire human, industrial and natural resources.

"Food is not one of our pressing problems at the moment," an Agriculture spokesman said. "But you must remember that next year's crop can't be guaranteed. We want to be ready for the worst situation as well as the best."

From Four Points of View

The department is looking at the food picture from four points of view — production, manpower, marketing and general economic planning. This last would include rationing, price control, subsidy payments and the like.

Experts are trying to determine what crops should be grown if war threatens and how they can be used to best advantage.

The board is drawing up four long-range plans that will include the department's ideas and those of other Government agencies. They are designed to keep the President continually up to date on the country's capacity to get things done.

In addition, there is now in the mill an emergency fourfold plan designed to go into effect overnight if necessary. This may be completed in six months or so.

One of the biggest problems is to relate the four plans to each other, a spokesman said. If a region offers possibilities for growing a certain crop abundantly, the board must find out where harvest workers are coming from, as well as transportation, storage and possibly processing facilities.

Eisenhower Tells Of Early War Days

general situation, naval and military, in the western Pacific.

General Marshall took perhaps 20 minutes to describe all this and then abruptly asked, "What should be our general line of action?"

I thought a second and, hoping I was showing a poker face, answered, "Give me a few hours."

"All right," he said, and I was dismissed.

Significantly and characteristically, he did not even hint at one of the most important factors in the problem: the psychological effects of the Philippine battle upon people in the United States and throughout the Pacific. Clearly he felt that any one stupid enough to overlook this consideration had no business wearing the star of a brigadier general.

I took my problem to a desk assigned me in the division of the War Department then known as "War Plans," headed by my old friend, Brig. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow. Obviously, if I were to be of any service to General Marshall in the War Department, I would have to earn his confidence; the logic of this, my first answer, would have to be unimpeachable, and the answer would have to be prompt.

For three years, soon after the First World War, I served under one of the most accomplished soldiers of our time, Maj. Gen. Fox Conner. One of the subjects on which he talked to me most was allied command, its difficulties and its problems. Another was George C. Marshall.

Again and again General Conner said to me, "We cannot escape another great war. When we go into that war it will be in company with allies. Systems of single command will have to be worked out. We must not accept the 'coordination' concept under which Foch was compelled to work. We must insist on individual and single responsibility—leaders will have to learn how to overcome nationalistic considerations in the conduct of campaigns. One man who can do it is Marshall—he is close to being a genius."

With that memory I determined that my answer should be short, emphatic, and based on reasoning in which I honestly believed. No oratory, plausible argument or glittering generality would impress anyone entitled to be labeled genius by Fox Conner.

The question before me was almost unlimited in its implications, and my qualifications for approaching it were probably those of the average hard working Army officer of my age. Naturally, I had pursued the military courses of the Army's school system. Soon after completing the War College in 1928 I went to serve as a special assistant in the office of the Assistant Secretary of War, where my duties were quickly expanded to include confidential work for the Chief of Staff of the Army.

The years devoted to work of this kind opened up to me an almost new world. During that time I met and worked with many people whose opinions I respected highly, in both military and civil life. Among these an outstanding figure was Mr. Bernard Baruch, for whom my admiration was and is profound. I still believe that if Mr. Baruch's recommendations for universal price fixing and his organizational plans had been completely and promptly adopted in December, 1941, this country would have saved billions in money—possibly much in time and therefore in lives.

From tasks such as these I had gone, in 1935, to the Philippines. Now, six years later, I was back in the War Department, the Nation was at war, and the Philippines were in deadly danger.

With bleak conclusions I marched back to the Chief of Staff. "General," I said, "it will be a long time before major reinforcements can go to the Philippines, longer than the garrison can hold out with any driblet assistance, if the enemy commits major forces to their reduction. But we must do everything for them that is humanly possible. The people of China, of the Philippines, of the Dutch East Indies will be watching us. They may excuse failure but they will not excuse abandonment. Their trust and friendship are important to us. Our base must be Australia, and we must start at once to expand it and to secure our communications to it. In this last we dare not fail. We must take great risks and spend any amount of money required."

"Do Your Best to Save Them"

He merely replied, "I agree with you." His tone implied that I had been given the problem as a check to an answer he had already reached. He added, "Do your best to save them." With that I went to work.

On my desk memorandum pad, which by accident survived, I find this note, made on January 1, 1942: "I've been insisting that the Far East is critical—and no sideshows should be undertaken until air and ground there are in satisfactory state. Instead we are taking on Magnet, Gymnast, etc."

Three days later appeared: "At last we're getting some things on the road to Australia. The air plan includes four pursuit groups, and two heavy, two medium, and one light bombardment groups. But we've got to have ships—and we need them now! Tempers are short. There are lots of amateur strategists on the job. I'd give anything to be back in the field." My obvious irritation was possibly caused by the knowledge that much time would elapse before the "air plan" could be implemented.

Fortunately for me, at this hectic time my youngster brother, Milton, and his wife, Helen, were living just outside Washington at Falls Church. During the weeks following my arrival in the War Department, until my wife could pack our belongings at San Antonio and re-establish a home in Washington, they insisted that their home be mine.

My brother was already in war work in the Government and his hours were scarcely less exhausting than mine. Yet every night when I reached their house, regardless of the hour, which averaged something around midnight, both would be waiting up for me with a snack of midnight supper and a pot of coffee. I cannot remember ever seeing their house in daylight during all the months I served in Washington.

As early as December, 1941, we determined to try a system of blockade running into the Philippines. We sent officers to Australia with money to hire, at no matter what fantastic prices, the men and ships needed to carry supplies into the islands and to smuggle them into the beleaguered garrison.

Hurley Directs Export

The man we sent to Australia to head up this particular effort was a former Secretary of War, Colonel, soon Brigadier General, Patrick J. Hurley. He had reported to the Operations Division one noon to volunteer his services to the Government. At that moment we were in search of a man of his known energy and fearlessness to invigorate our filibustering attempts out of Australia and his offer was immediately accepted.

I asked him, "When can you be ready to report for duty?"

"Now."

"Be back here at midnight," I instructed him, "prepared for extended field service."

Although he seemed to change color slightly, he never batted an eye but replied, "That will give me time to see my lawyers and change my will." At 1 o'clock that night he was on a plane for Australia.

Mr. Quezon, then in Corregidor with General MacArthur, radioed to President Roosevelt in early February a plea for him to seek the neutralization of the Philippines, with each contestant agreeing to withdraw its troops. In view of our helpless situation there at that time, neutralization of the islands would have been an immediate military advantage and would, of course, have prevented tremendous suffering and privation on the part of the defending garrison and the population.

However, its public proposal would not only have been greeted with scorn by the Japanese; such a confession of weakness would have had unfortunate psychological reverberations. None of us believed for a moment that the proposal represented a betrayal on the part of President Quezon. We felt that he was sturdily loyal but merely submitting for consideration a plan that, in his helpless situation, appeared to him as the possible salvation of his country. Receipt of the proposal was a bombshell—but the idea was instantly repudiated by the President and the Chief of Staff.

Churchill in Washington

In late December, Prime Minister Churchill came to Washington, accompanied by the British Chiefs of Staff. These were Admiral Sir Dudley Pound for the navy, General Sir Alan Brooke for the army, and Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal for the air force. At that time the old War Plans Division, under General Gerow, was still in existence and most of the staff liaison work with the British group was carried on by him and other members of the staff.

The conference had two principal purposes, the first of which was to organize a workable system by which the American and British Chiefs of Staff could operate effectively as a team.

A second purpose of the conference was to confirm earlier agreements upon the region in which should first be concentrated major forces of the two nations. The staffs saw no reason to change prior conclusions that the European enemy should be the first object of our attacks.

As far as I know, the wisdom of the plan to turn the weight of our power against the European enemy before attempting an all-out campaign against Japan has never been questioned by any real student of strategy. However—and here was the rub—it was easy enough to state this purpose as a principle but it was to prove difficult indeed to develop a feasible plan to implement the idea and to secure its approval by the military staffs of two nations.

Within the War Department staff basic plans for European invasion began slowly to take shape during January and February, 1942. As always, time was the critical element in the problem. Yet everywhere delay was imposed upon us! It profited nothing to wail about unpreparedness. It is a characteristic of military problems that they yield to nothing but harsh reality; things must be reduced to elemental simplicity and answers must be clear, almost obvious.

Need Is Desperate

Everywhere men and materials were needed. The wave of Japanese aggression had not then reached full tide, and everything upon which we in the United States could lay our hands had necessarily to go to the Southwest Pacific to prevent complete inundation. Aside from preserving lines of air and sea communications to Australia, we had to hold the Indian bastion at all costs; otherwise a junction between Japanese and German forces would be accomplished through the Persian Gulf. Prevention of this catastrophe became the chief preoccupation of our British partners.

We had to do the best we could, with almost nothing to distribute but deficits, in stemming the onslaughts of our enemies, but plans for victory had to look far ahead to the day when the airplanes, the battle fleets, the shipping, the landing craft, and the fighting formations would allow us to pass to the offensive and to maintain it. It was in this realm of the future—a future so uncertain as to be one almost of make-believe—that the projected plan for European invasion had to take its initial form.

Throughout the first winter of war the news from the East Indian region was increasingly bad and the Navy did not have sufficient strength to undertake major operations far from a friendly base. Every troop and cargo ship upon which we could lay our hands was dispatched hurriedly to the Southwest Pacific. But we had so little!

The transport of personnel without heavy equipment did not involve elaborate arrangements when fast ships were available. These vessels depended solely on their speed for safety against the submarine. The British gave us the use of some of the fastest and largest passenger ships afloat. Among these was the Queen Mary.

One day we dispatched her, without escort, from an Eastern port in the United States to Australia, loaded with 14,000 American troops. It would have been only bad luck of the worst kind if a submarine had got close enough to attack her successfully.

On that trip the Queen Mary had to put into a Brazilian port for fuel. We were horrified to intercept a radio from an Italian in Rio who reported her presence to the Italian government and upon her departure actually gave the direction upon which she set out to sea.

For the next week we lived in terror, fearing that the Axis might be able to plant across her path such a nest of submarines in the South Atlantic as to make it almost impossible for her to evade them completely.

I do not remember whether General Marshall knew of this incident at the time, but it was the type of thing that we kept from him when possible. There was no use burdening his mind with the worries that we were forced to carry to bed with us. He had enough of his own.

The Operations Division of the War Department General Staff was set up in Washington in March, 1942, three months after Pearl Harbor. It was a command post for General Marshall, from which he could direct American forces on all the fighting fronts. General Eisenhower, promoted to a temporary major generalcy, was the first chief of this crucial division.

Tomorrow's installment of "Crusade in Europe" describes how the division was organized. It includes a summary of how General Marshall picked his chief subordinates, and an outline of the great debate which was already shaping up among them on the best way to invade Hitler's "Festung Europa."

This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It contains highlights of the book to be published November 22, 1948, by Doubleday & Co. Copyrighted by Doubleday & Co., Inc.

ACTING BY BRAILLE: Mrs. Dorothy O'Day is a slight, soft-spoken young lady whose voice you may have heard in her capacity as a telephone solicitor for this paper . . . When she was 10 Dorothy was blinded for life by a pair of scissors . . . On Friday night, the 19th, Dorothy will step out on the stage of Lisner Auditorium as one of the leads in "Arsenic and Old Lace." . . . What makes this extraordinary is the fact that not only is Dorothy blind, but every other member of the cast is, too . . . One or two have partial vision, which means they can tell light from darkness . . . But, as Mrs. O'Day—who has a normal 10-year-old son—will laughingly tell you: "Even the cops are blind." . . . The gruesome comedy of the two Brooklyn sisters who take to discriminating murder is being presented in Lisner by members of the District Association of Workers for the Blind . . . Proceeds from the play will go toward a fund for a permanent camp site and recreation center for blind persons in this locale.

HOW HAVE THESE blind players learned their parts? . . . Each has been prepared in braille by Mrs. Franklin A. Stenko and the players have tackled their roles with the same remarkable abilitiy with which they all earn their daily bread . . . Mrs. Lenora Marquis, who plays sister Martha, for instance, is a dictaphone-typist at the Veterans Administration . . . Mrs. Lola Ball, the daffy Abby, is a vending stand operator, as are many of her associates: William Garrett, the Mortimer; Jerome Beuchert, the Dr. Einstein; John Schroth, Gustave Johnson, Vernon Creamer, Irvin Bast, John Paul Jones and Bernard Nichols . . . Edmund Browning, jr., who was a darn good student in his GW, days and is now a respected lawyer, has the happy role of the canal-digging Teddy . . . David Thomas plays the drama critic-nephew but during the day he works in the Division for the Blind at the Library of Congress . . . And Edward Bailey, who disappears quickly as Dr. Harper, is a salesman for home products.

SO ALL 14 of these performers have an independence that is deeply heartening to those of us who may sometimes wonder how we could possibly exist without our eyesight . . . Coaching the performance is Mrs. Ruth Shnider, who took to directing while she was at the University of Chicago . . . Endless patience goes into preparation for this single performance and the players have been working out their moves for months . . . The venture was discussed well over a year, ago by Leonard Robinson of the Federal Security Administration.

REHEARSALS are held Tuesday and Thursday nights in one of the parish rooms of the Ephiphany Church on G st. . . . Here the players have become accustomed to their positions, exactly where they stand at a given moment, how, at a certain cue, they should look in another direction . . . It is fascinating, for instance, to see Mrs. Ball and Mrs. Marquis, as the two elderly loonies, setting their table, pouring their elderberry wine; you watch them move china and glassware and you have to reassure yourself by asking Mrs. Shnider if both the ladies are truly blind . . . When the players move onto the large stage at Lisner, there will be small foot guides which will tell the players their exact position on the stage; the audience won't notice these, but to the sensitive toes of the actors they'll be reassurance that direction is being followed.

ONE MORE THING about this performance: The players are proud, independent folk and they're not looking for sympathy. . . . Their play is no stunt to to them (they did another short play a year or so ago at Cafritz Auditorium). . . . The performance is, to them, a practical venture. . . . They want to get money for that recreation center fund. . . . And it's moving to think that they've found a way to do it in a practical sense which at the same time will show the rest of us what can be acomplished by determination, by licking what would seem a handicap. . . . Mrs. Harold H. Burton, wife of the Supreme Court justice, is heading a special advisory committee for the performance with Mrs. Truman, Mrs. Vinson and Mrs. Rutledge among the many community leaders on the board. . . . The association's headquarters is in Albee Building and its phone is District 7697.

BLIND PROFESSIONAL actors, to be sure, are rare, but it just happens that one player who has overcome the tragedy is to be seen these days in both "Hamlet" at the Playhouse and the Little and "Henry V," at the Hippodrome. . . . He is Esmond Knight, Bernardo to Olivier's Hamlet, who before the war was one of England's most promising actors . . . All but totally blinded while serving in the Britist navy, Knight has returned to stage and screen, though it is in the latter medium he is more comfortable.

Can a man still become His Own Boss?

AMERICAN FAMILY CLOSE-UP
As they go, so goes the nation!

J. Brower Hall searches for signs of damaging apple rust at his 175-acre orchard on Grand Isle, Vermont.

FROM the time they married in 1926, Brower and Helen Hall dreamed of having their own farm. Like many another American, Brower Hall wanted to be his own boss. But at 19, with $25 in the bank, and a job on a summer estate, it looked like a long row to hoe! For 20 years, the Halls regularly saved all they could, while he learned by managing orchards and dairy farms for other people.

Then last year Hall had the chance to buy the place he wanted . . . an orchard of 8,000 apple trees, a modern cold-storage plant. But was the goal of a lifetime really within reach?

With money from these systematic savings and some small investments, Brower and Helen Hall managed to buy their orchard. And he was on his own! If all went well, the Halls would make a go of it! But they hadn't figured on fire . . .

Last spring the packing plant burned! But with only two helpers, the Halls rebuilt in time for fall harvest. So now they can smile again! Independence is wonderful, they say.

Like Father, son George, 19, cherishes independence. To make sure of continuing his pre-med studies at Vermont U. he worked a soft drink route last summer. His sister Jean, 18, helped the family pocketbook, too, as waitress at a resort hotel.

Moderator of town meetings for Grand Isle, his island town on Lake Champlain, Brower Hall has been active in civic affairs for 14 years. For three years he served in the Vermont Senate—won removal of bridge tolls to Grand Isle.

For Baby Jared, life looks grand! His father is determined to improve his own farm as best he can regardless of the difficulties we all face today. Earning about $5,000 a year now, Hall is steadily building up an estate through life insurance. He bought his first policy soon after marriage, now has $13,000 of protection, which he budgets at a fixed monthly cost of $35.21. "We're managing to feed and clothe the family and have our share of inexpensive fun on about $50 a week," Mr. Hall explains. "Working together we'll keep the independence we've all helped win."

The Halls look forward to the fun of developing the lake shore into summer camps. Dad hopes, too, for more time for politics, his hobby. George's is hunting with his dog.

THE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES AND THEIR AGENTS

BRING YOU THIS STORY BECAUSE... families like the Halls show us one way that happiness is earned! You, yourself, probably know a family, right in your own town, that is getting ahead in the same typically American way. Such families prove to all of us that we can solve our own problems by our own efforts.... Their example shows too why it is so important for us to hold to our rights to think for ourselves, to work at what we like, to live as we choose. For what this country amounts to depends upon what happens to its homes!

Democrats Studying Organization Here

A proposal to organize District Democrats by city blocks, precincts and larger divisions equivalent to wards will be discussed Tuesday night by the Democratic Central Committee of Washington.

Committee members see a possibility the new Democrat-controlled Congress will pass the Auchincloss bill or some other District suffrage measure next year. In view of this, they feel it's time to start building an organization of Democrats here.

Nucleus for Organization.

They see a big nucleus for an organization in the more than 100,000 Democratic absentee ballots handled by the committee's headquarters for the election of President last Tuesday.

Committeemen believe Washington Democrats who mailed or cast ballots are fewer than half the number who would vote here if the District had the franchise. They want to get them listed by name and address, with a captain in each block familiar with every Democratic family.

Drive for Suffrage

A vigorous drive for District suffrage and for representation in Congress will be outlined in a report the committee will hear tomorrow night from Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley and J. C. Turner, Democratic leaders. All Democratic Congressmen will be reminded of the 1948 Democratic national platform pledge for "an extension of the right of suffrage for the people of the District of Columbia."

A. L. Wheeler, committee chairman, and Melvin D. Hildreth, national committeeman, will announce plans at the meeting to raise $10,000 at a "victory dinner" soon to set up a District Democratic headquarters, possibly in the Ring Building, where the national headquarters are housed.

The more than 100,000 absentee Democratic ballots sent from the District for this year's election compares with a high of 30,000 in previous elections. All will be called on to fight for District suffrage in the Eighty-first Congress.

Redskins Find Yanks Tougher to Beat in Mud, 23-7

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THIS WEEK'S guinea pig, Indiana. Lo, the poor Hoosiers, caught in the middle of the Notre Dame-Michigan frenzy for national football honors. The Irish operated on Indiana last Saturday, 42 to 6. Who can beat Indiana the most, or the worst? That's this week's question with Michigan moving in for the bigger killing.

POVICH

The Michigan-Notre Dame game debate has been raging for two seasons now, with both unbeaten. It goes round and round, as long as Michigan side-steps a game with the Irish, perhaps discreetly. The Wolverines know how to attain top ranking. Beat their common opposition by wider margins than the Irish do. Like last year when they moved into the Rose Bowl and slapped down Southern California by a bigger score than Notre Dame did.

Comparative scores may be nonsense, indeed, but the Wolverines like to outscore Notre Dame for the satisfaction of it, and some people may be impressed. The Irish may be taking a bum rap, though. Nearly always they have been the first to take on the teams also on Michigan's schedule. The Wolverines knew what they had to shoot for, how many touchdowns they needed to eclipse the Irish. That has been a huge advantage.

Take that Navy game of last Saturday at Ann Arbor. A week before the Irish beat the Middies by 34 points, 41-7. So the Wolverines beat the hapless Midshipmen, 35-0, enough to take a bow. Michigan obviously was trying to pour it on and surpass the Irish score against Navy. Indiana is now in Navy's unhappy spot, taking on Notre Dame and Michigan on consecutive Saturdays.

THERE WAS a slight suspicion that Notre Dame let up on Navy a bit. Certainly it was significant that Frank Leahy kept his passing ace, Frank Tripucka, out of the entire second half and that the Irish didn't throw a pass in either of the final two quarters. That was nice of 'em, although gallant Navy was asking no mercy. But the Irish were playing Navy under somewhat different circumstances than Michigan.

Notre Dame never wants to humiliate the Naval Academy. Their game is a fixture, and more important to the Irish now that Army has run out on them and they are feeling a schedule squeeze. Michigan was in no such spot. It doesn't have to court Navy. The game Saturday was going to be the last between them for five years, anyway.

Michigan had no need for pulling any punches, and besides it was a Navy team that had handed Fritz Crisler his worse defeat in 10 years of coaching at Michigan.

THE WOLVERINES can crow a bit. The Navy team that marched 36 yards to a touchdown against Notre Dame and was in Irish territory frequently, never could penetrate within Michigan's 38-yard line. That's evidence, perhaps, of a superior Michigan defense, but using the Navy game as a yardstick, the Irish can boast of a superior offense, at least by the figures.

Notre Dame gained a total of 351 yards rushing against the Middies, to the 231 yards of Michigan. And when the Irish did choose to pass in that first half with Tripucka throwing the ball, they completed nine of their 11 pitches. Michigan was passing all afternoon and completed only six of their 18 throws, indicating that Notre Dame's aerial game is sharper.

But Navy played better football against Michigan than against the Irish. George Sauer had his team hitting its hardest of the season and the Middies for the first time this year looked like a tough outfit in spots. Navy was demoralized against Notre Dame. They stood up and battled against the Wolverines, however futile it was. Playing Notre Dame and Navy on consecutive Saturdays is rough, anyway. They're so differently powerful.

WHO'D WIN in a Notre Dame-Michigan game? Who knows? It would be a beaut—the finest test of the T-formation versus the single-wing. Michigan has none of the explosive qualities of the Irish offense, nothing to match Red Sitko's fiery bursts through the line and nothing to compare with the sharpness of Tripucka's passing. But Michigan has a lot going for it otherwise.

It's a trickier, flashier team than Notre Dame. It has more good backs than the Irish. In Dick Rifenberg it has an end who can break a game wide open, either with his pass-catching or his end-around gallops. Tailback Charley Ortmann, Fullback Tom Peterson and Halfback Leo Koceski and Walt Teninga gallop like pros. Teninga can outpunt any Notre Damer.

Michigan gives the defensive ends more of a going-over, with its reverses and pitch-outs than any Notre Dame, and like the Irish have the threats to expand and contract the enemy's defenses at will. It wouldn't be merely a test of the single wing vs. the T. You'd be betting on Notre Dame's ability to move through the air, or you'd be betting on all that stuff Michigan throws at everybody My prediction: A lot would happen.

Eagles Cuff Giants, 35-14; Thompson Leads Way

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Philadelphia Eagles riddled the New York Giants defense today with a 35-14 victory on the accurate right arm of Tommy Thompson and the churning legs of Steve Van Buren before 24,983 spectators.

It was the fifth straight victory for the Eastern Division leading Eagles, recent winner over the Chicago Bears. They lost their opener and tied the next before they got hot.

Van Buren, blasting the Giant line with powerful thrusts inside the tackles, bulled for 143 yards on the ground, the best day of his pro career. He racked up two touchdowns on plunges of 6 and 3 yards.

The accurate Thompson hit his target for the day—Pete Pihos—with two touchdown tosses on 36 and 34 yard plays in the first half. During the long sunshiny afternoon he completed 9 of 19 for 189 yards.

Pritchard Goes 69 Yards

Bosh Pritchard accounted for the biggest chunk of the Eagles' 269-yard total along the ground with an exciting 65-yard dash in the third period.

Almost trapped behind the line when Don Ettinger missed a diving tackle, Pritchard circled his left end and went all the way with the help of a key block by John McGee.

The Giants, completely bottled up on the ground, went to the air with Charley Conerly tossing for their first score, an 11-yard pitch to Joe Scott midway in the third period. At the time they trailed 21-0. Late in the final period after Pritchard and Van Buren had boosted the Eagles score, Ray Coats passed to John Atwood for the final score with only 56 seconds to play.

Van Buren's big day boosted his season ground gaining total to 516 yards on 137 attempts.

Conerly's passes represented the Giants' only consistent offense. He threw 25 for 176 yards although that big Eagle line was riding on his neck most of the day. Paul Governali, passing out of the T formation, hit his mark with 6 of 13.

The Giants ran from the T only when Governali was playing.

Johnny Bulla, Phoenix, Ariz., duplicated his last year's feat, snaring second place with a 277. He fired 70 today.

Baugh Hurt But Hurls 2 Touchdowns Before 9867

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Boston, Nov. 7.—They carried "old" Sammy Baugh from the field today in the first quarter but the 34-year-old passing wizard came back to pitch two touchdown strikes and clinch a 23-7 victory for the Washington Redskins over the Boston Yanks.

Slingin' Sam's ankle gave way as he tried to run the ball in the first quarter. Tommy Mont took over and with the most spectacular run of the day gave the 'Skins a lead they never lost.

Dick Poillon booted a field goal that held Boston in check until Baugh could get patched up. Then the Slinger was back, sealing the 'Skins second triumph in eight days over the Boston, with second half scoring passes to Poillon and Tom Farmer.

The win retained second place for Washington in the Eastern Division, National Football League race.

Only 9867 Bostonians turned out for the muddy Fenway Park clash, which may have been the Redskins' last one here. Persistent rumors claim Owners Ted Collins and Kate Smith will give up their franchise or move it after the 1948 season.

With today's victory the 'Skins were credited with their fifth of the season, one more than they collected all last season, and equaling the production of 1946. Boston was suffering its fifth setback in seven games.

Bagarus Sees Little Action

Steve Bagarus, star of 1943-46, got back into the Redskin lineup, looked much like the Bagarus of old, but was used sparingly. He was thrown only one pass, good for 5 yards, and didn't run with the ball at all.

In contrast to last week's wide-open, 59-21 victory against the Yanks, the Redskins this time had to do more plugging. They jumped into a lead midway of the first period and held 2 points of it until a 68-yard drive paid off in the third period and a Boston fumble set up a decisive score in the fourth.

With a little more luck, plus a tighter grip on the ball and less motion in their backfield, the Redskins might have held a lead of 20 points or so at halftime. As it was, they led by a mere 9-7.

Mont Dashes to 34-yard Score

It was after Poillon's beautiful kick out of bounds in the Boston 6 that the scoring wheels started turning for Washington the first time. Zimmerman retaliated with a quick kick when Sandifer ran back to the Boston 46.

Baugh's second pass of the game, to Hartley, went for a first down but on his third, trying to escape converging Yanks, he tried a dash through center. His weak ankle collapsed as he was tackled. Two mates carried him off the field.

Mont went back in at quarter while the Redskin bench worried about losing their big scoring threat, it was wasted worry.

On the next play Mont dropped back to pass from behind the Boston 34. Running seemed a better idea and Maryland Tommy took off

Bears Score On First Play Rams Lose, 21-6

Los Angeles, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Chicago Bears scored on a 64-yard pass on the first play from scrimmage and rolled on to defeat the Los Angeles Rams, 21 to 6, in a National Football League battle before 56,263 fans today.

The crowd, hardly settled down when Notre Dame's Johnny Lujack faded back, sailed a long pass to his rangy left end, Ken Kavanaugh, who took it on the Ram 35 and ran to score.

That happened 39 seconds after the game got under way.

Their passing attack throttled, the Rams scored six points in the third period when Jim Hardy completed a 21-yard pass to Don Currivan a matter of two feet inside the end zone corner.

The Bears clinched the game with two touchdowns in the fourth period.

Jack Rabbit Boone scampered 35 yards for one touchdown after the Rams' Milan Lazetich roughed up veteran Sid Luckman and advanced the Rams deep into Los Angeles territory.

The last tally came on the Bears' lone sustained long drive of the afternoon—43 yards in 12 plays, with Luckman in the driver's seat. Boone went through tackle from the 2 for the touchdown.

Lujack was knocked out of the bruising game late in the third period when he collided headon with Ram Tackle Dick Huffman. Allen Lawler stepped in and placekicked the points after the last two touchdowns.

The Rams were never out of the game until the penalty break gave the Bears the ball on their own 38 for Chicago's second touchdown.

Steelers Run Wild Against Packers, 38-7

Pittsburgh, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Steelers ran a dogged jinx out of Forbes Field today and overwhelmed the Green Bay Packers, 38-7, in the process.

A crowd of 26,058 saw the Steelers end a three-game losing streak and hand Curly Lambeau's Packers their third loss in a row.

Coach Johnny Michelosen mixed deception into his single wing today—and the result was terrific. Rookie Ray Evans finally lived up to his $20,000 salary tag by running and passing the Steelers into a 24-0 half-time lead.

Joe Glamp, normally a placekicking specialist, unreeled a twisting 55-yard touchdown run in the third period.

Fullback Tony Campagno intercepted a pass by Jack Jacobs and ran 82 yards for a fourth quarter touchdown. That run was the longest with an interception in the National League this year.

The Packers were hopeless and helpless in the Steeler fury until Jug Girard finally hit End Clyde Goodnight with a 14-yard touchdown pass with only 50 seconds left.

A blocked punt gave the Steelers possession on the Packer 48 in the first period and a minute later Evans pitched a 7-yard touchdown pass to End Val Jansante.

In the second period, Glamp booted a 33-yard field goal. Full-

Cards Wallop Lions; Trippi, Angsman Each Score 3 Times

Chicago, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—The Chicago Cardinals' touchdown twins, Elmer Angsman and Charley Trippi, each scored three times today, steamrollering the National Football League champions to a 56-20 victory over the Detroit Lions before 24,051 fans in Comiskey Park.

It was the Cardinals' sixth triumph in seven starts.

Paul Christman completed 10 out of 15 passes for 204 yards and three touchdowns. One of his throws went to Trippi who faked a half dozen tacklers out of his way to dash 31 yards and score.

Another Christman throw was good for 38 yards to Angsman for another touchdown, and still another toss covered 71 yards to Mal Kutner, for a tally.

The Lions scored first on the opening kickoff when Trippi fumbled and the visitors recovered on the 30, after which Clyde LeForce scored on a pass. But Angsman quickly made that up with a 73-yard dash around left end for a touchdown seconds later.

The Cards went ahead to stay early in the second period when Red Cochran intercepted a Lion pass and Angsman tallied on a 1-yard plunge.

Detroit scored again, moving 73 yards in 12 plays, but though Merv Pregulman converted after this march to give the Cardinals only a 14-to-13 edge, the Chicagoans made it 21 to 13 in a 73-yard push in which Trippi tallied his first touchdown of the day.

Then he pulled in Christman's pass to make it 28 to 13 at the half. Only one score came in the third, on the long throw to Kutner, but in the final period Angsman made his third score, Trippi romped 50 yards for his third, and Charlie Eikenberg passed to Billy Dewell for 2 yards for the final Cardinal touchdown.

The final Lions' score was a 51-yard throw from Enke to John Greene in the closing minutes.

49ers Whip Rockets, 44-21

San Francisco, Nov. 7 (AP).—The high-flying San Francisco 49ers scored their tenth consecutive All-America Conference victory today at the expense of the Chicago Rockets, 44-21, before a crowd of 25,306.

Only five minutes after the kickoff, the 49ers drove from their 35 for the opening score, Forest Hall breaking away for a sensational splurge through left tackle for 65 yards. Joe Vetrano converted.

The next time they got their hands on the ball, the 49ers went from their 47 to the Rockets' 32, where Joe Vetrano booted a neat field goal for three more points.

Perry Scores One

Joe Perry culminated a 62-yard push to go over from the 3-yard line in the second quarter.

Starting another drive after a Chicago punt was partly blocked, the 49ers started upfield from their 45 and capped the thrust with Frankie Albert's sharp pass to End Alyn Beals in the end zone.

Near the end of the half, a 20-yard pass from Albert passed to Beals put the ball on the 1-yard line. Len Eshmont hit left tackle for the score and Vetrano converted. The half ended with the 49ers leading 30 to 0.

Standlee Goes 58 Yards

Starting the third quarter, the 245-pound Norm Standlee raced right end from his own 42 and with scarcely a Rocket laying a hand on him, went all the way for the 49ers' fifth touchdown.

The Rockets with Jess Freitas passing breezed to a score early in the fourth quarter against the 49er reserves. Bob Jensen took a Freitas pass in the end zone.

The 49er reserves took charge again a moment later, going 73 yards for the sixth 49er touchdown. Verl Lillywhite went around right end 27 yards for the score and Vetrano kicked the extra point.

The second Chicago touchdown was scored immediately after the kickoff. Freitas passed 18 yards to End LaFayette King, over the goal. Their last score was also a Freitas pass to King from the 12-yard line.

Broncos Win, 14-0

Santa Clara Stops Nevada, High-Scoring Stan Heath

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP).—Nevada's dream of a football empire and likely bid to a post-season bowl game crumbled today before a charging Santa Clara eleven that racked up one of the prime upsets of the year, 14-0.

The Broncos, blocking and running in inspired fashion, smashed over a first period touchdown to climax a 77-yard ground drive and turned a recovered fumble into another score in the second quarter.

They place-kicked both extra points then met every Nevada challenge in the second half to protect the lead.

Nevada's quarterback, Stan Heath, who set the national collegiate record for yardage from completed passes, found himself bottled up, his tosses deflected or blocked.

He was rushed so hard he had to get the throws off hurriedly much of the time. He connected with some, especially in a desperate second half try, but the Broncos bobbed up to halt the threats in the nick of time.

An overflow crowd of 25,000 largest to see a football contest in this city, cheered the play. Among the enthusiastic rooters were Gov. and Mrs. Earl Warren, of California. Gov. Vail Pittman of Nevada sat among the large delegation from the Silver State.

At least Heath went down trying. He completed 15 out of 38 attempts for a net gain of 113 yards. He had one intercepted and carried the ball once, a rarity, for a 1-yard gain.

This was the same Nevada team that had rolled up box car scores in winning its previous six games. Last week, for instance, a 79-13 rout of Oklahoma City College, and before that a 65-14 win over University of Tulsa.

Santa Clara, previously defeated by University of California and Southern Methodist, chalked up its sixth victory of the season.

Touchdowners Honor Cook

The Touchdown Club will honor Arthur Cook, 20, Olympic and national rifle champion, as the Washington area's "Youth of the Year" today at its weekly luncheon at 12:30 o'clock.

"Cookie," a junior at the University of Maryland, will discuss the outstanding performance of American athletes and those of other nations in the Olympic games.

Head Football Coaches Jim Tatum, Maryland; Jack Hagerty, Georgetown, and John H. (Bo) Rowland, George Washington, will review their victorious week-end games.

Bonnies Upset By Canisius

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 7 (U.P.).—Previously unbeaten and untied St. Bonaventure was upset by Canisius, 14 to 6, today. Canisius thereby successfully defended its "Little Three" championship of upstate New York.

Howie Willie, the little All-American nominee from Philadelphia, passed for one touchdown, converted twice, and helped set up the other Canisius score with his running and passing.

After Willis had pitched a 26-yard touchdown heave to End Jack Sweeney in the first quarter, St. Bonaventure came back to capitalize on a Griffin misplay.

Early in the second quarter, Halfback Norm Castine took a Bonaventure punt on his own 6-yard line instead of allowing the ball to roll into the end zone. He was dropped in his tracks. Two plays later Tony Bolognese's punt attempt was blocked and bonnie Tackle Joe Romanowsky fell on it in the end zone for a 6-pointer.

Canisius snapped back and became the first team this year to score twice against the conquerors of William and Mary, Wayne, Dayton and St. Louis. Castine, a thorn in the losers' side all day with his smashing spins into the line, plunged over from the 1-yard line to culminate the drive.

"13" Unlucky Again for Tar Heels

W&M Duplicated Duke's Feat in '35

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

COACH CARL SNAVELY, whose North Carolina Tar Heels weren't fit to be tied Saturday but who were (7-7), last night was probably cursing the luck the figure "13" had brought him again.

Thirteen years ago, in November of 1935, the dour Dutchman of Lebanon Valley brought his all-conquering Tar Heels up to the season's semifinal against a so-so Duke team needing only a victory over the Blue Devils to sew up a Rose Bowl invitation.

Duke, a two-touchdown underdog, blotted out the Tar Heels, 25-6.

Saturday in Chapel Hill, Snavely's Tar Heels brought a 13-game winning streak and an unofficial Sugar Bowl bid into Kenan Stadium against a W. and M. team doped to lose by 27 points.

The Indians, playing an inspired game, held the Tar Heels to a 7-7 stalemate and were only eight yards away from a sensational victory when the game ended.

The draw with William and Mary was bitter, indeed, for Snavely. This Choo-Choo Justice creation was his best team, he confided to friends. This was to be the team which was to parade into the Sugar Bowl January 1 with not a blemish on its schedule, the most murderous any Carolina team has played.

Snavely and the uninhibited Tar Heel rah-rah corps of thousands were struck a hard, cruel blow by William and Mary Saturday. The effects of the 7-7 tie were felt all over Tar Heelia and even penetrated as far as College Park, Md.

There, in an office atop Ritchie Coliseum last night, James M. Tatum, who played tackle for Snavely at Carolina in 1934, and his staff met to map their battle plans for Saturday's Griffith Stadium joust with Carolina.

"That was the worst thing that could have happened to us," Tatum said, with his line coach, George Barclay, another Snavely product, echoing the same sentiment.

"We were hoping Carolina would murder William & Mary and maybe when we caught them Saturday they'd be a little overconfident," Split-T Tatum continued. "But instead, we'll face an aroused, mad team."

Tatum Fearful of Reaction on Carolina

Tatum was repeating what GW Coach Bo Rowland said a few weeks ago when he was preparing his Colonials for the Maryland game.

Someone suggested to Rowland that since Maryland had lost to Duke the week before the Terps would probably be down for the GW game.

"Listen," said Rowland, "teams which are supposed to be disheartened and down, have an awful habit of bouncing up and kicking the devil out of their next opponent."

Mr. Rowland was eminently correct. The "disheartened" Ter-

Bills Squeeze Past Dodgers By 26 to 21

New York, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—George Ratterman, who used to play second fiddle at Notre Dame, today led Buffalo to a 26 to 21 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers and undisputed first place in the All-America Conference Eastern Division before 7805 spectators.

Ratterman's quarterbacking overshadowed a conference passing record set by rookie Bob Chappuis of Brooklyn. The former Michigan All-America halfback, earning his keep for the first time, threw 51 passes and completed 26, shattering the former mark of 23 completions in 40 tries set by Glenn Dobbs in 1946.

Ratterman got the Bills off to a two-touchdown lead in the first quarter. With the ball on his own 31, Ratterman sent Chet Mutryn through center and the league's leading scorer went all the way.

A few plays later Ratterman engineered another score. Lou Tomasetti working from an elegant Ratterman fake, went to the 34, then he went all the way

In the second quarter, Chappuis passed to the ends Dan Edwards and Saxon Judd to take the ball from the Dodger 40 to the Bill's three, with Colmer going over center from one yard out.

The Bills got a quick touchdown in the third quarter when they took the kickoff and scored in 10 plays. Mutryn got the score, going 10 yards through center as Ratterman again caught the Brooklyn defense napping.

Buffalo slammed over another quick score in the final quarter and they needed it. Chuck Schuette picked off one of Chappuis' passes on the Dodger 45 and went to the Dodger 2-yard line, where he fumbled. Buffalo End Vince Mazza pounced on the ball in the end zone for a touchdown.

Then the Dodgers got two quick ones. Dodger End Hank Foldberg recovered a Buffalo fumble on the Buffalo 43-yard line and five plays later Chappuis threw a 33-yard touchdown pass to Judd.

Brooklyn Halfback Ray Ramsey got the final score for a lost cause a few plays later when he took Jim Still's kick on the Brooklyn 30-yard line and went 70 yards to score.

Edgar Jones Scores Twice For Champs

By Harry Smith

Cleveland, Nov. 7 (AP).—Cleveland's champion Browns rolled to their ninth straight All-America Conference triumph of the season today, spanking the Baltimore Colts, 28 to 7, before 32,314.

The Brownies tallied in every period, with Edgar (Special Delivery) Jones carrying the mail across twice.

The Browns thus will enter their all-important struggle for Western Division leadership against the San Francisco Forty-niners here next Sunday with a record of 12 straight victories over a two-year period. They now have gone 18 games without a defeat and have dropped only one of their last 30 games.

Cleveland notched its first touchdown with eight minutes of the opening quarter remaining. The Colts had the ball on their own 28 on fourth down with a yard and a half to go and gambled on making the necessary yardage. Lucien Gambino failed to make it on a plunge into the line and the Browns took over on the Colts' 29.

Otto Graham hurled to Mac Speedie, who was run out on the 4. Jones scampered over from the 2 there.

Cleveland advanced 72 yards for its second score with Graham passing and Marion Motley tearing through the line. Motley covered the final 22 yards on a power drive through the middle.

Graham pitched to Motley and Speedie as the Browns marched down the field again in the third period. A 37-yarder to Speedie put the Browns on the Baltimore 4, from where Graham tossed to Jones for the tally.

Cleveland cashed in again in the third quarter. Lin Houston recovered Bus Mertes' fumble on the Baltimore 20, from where Freshman Halfback Ara Parsghian carried the ball over on a power play through the middle.

The Colts finally dented the scoreboard with seven minutes to play. Billy Hillenbrand gathered in a heave from Y. A. Tittle and did a tight-rope act as he raced down the sideline for a 69-yard scoring play.

Texans Lead Yankees Over Dons by 38 to 6

By Harold Claussen

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—A quartet of Texans, wearing New York Yankee uniforms, combined to annihilate the Los Angeles Dons, 38 to 6, in a bruising and rough All-America Football Conference game today.

Pete Layden, one-time Texas University great, did the most damage to the Californians, pitching for the first three New York touchdowns. He tossed two scoring markers to Jack Russell and one to Bruce Alford, both Texans.

Late in the game, Spec Sanders, Layden's understudy at Texas, came into the action and manufactured two touchdowns in two plays.

By the time Sanders came on to the field the contest had become almost a free-for-all with the officials dealing out three 15-yard penalties.

Nelson Greene of the Yankees and Walt Clay of the Dons, were sent out for getting in several solid blows.

The first of the Layden-to-Russell touchdown plays, with the latecomers among the 17,386 paying fans hardly in their seats, went for 69 yards. The next one was only for 7 yards but the loss to Alford came from 20 yards out.

Sanders rambled 6 yards on his first play at the start of the fourth quarter to score and when the Yankees again got possession he lobbed a short pass to Buddy Young, who sped 28 more yards for the counter. Harvey Johnson, who also registered a field goal, converted all five touchdowns to run his consecutive string to 65.

The Los Angeles score, also a fourth period production, was the personal property of Glenn Dobbs and Len Ford. Dobbs pitched from his own 40 to Ford on the Yank 35. The big end caught it with one hand and jogged to the 10 before he was downed. Four plays later the Dons had their lone tally with Mike Graham blasting over.

Area Horses Near Titles In N. Y. Show

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Jumpers from the Middleburg, Va., barns of Morton W. (Cappy) Smith strengthened their bid for the championship at the National Horse Show tonight when they finished first and third in the triple bar event.

Lariat, a 6-year-old chestnut gelding, captured the blue ribbon in the event, his first triumph of the show. But a third-place performance by Request, prize jumper of the Smith string, gave him two points and boosted him into the lead for the open Jumper title with a total of 10. Smith rode both horses.

Three Jumpoffs Necessary

Competition in the event was so close that three jumpoffs were necessary after the preliminaries and finals to decide the places, yet it was Cappy Smith's show all the way.

Request and Lariat were among a dozen jumpers who qualified for the finals without a fault. Lariat also went clear in the finals, but Flamingo had one fault carried over from the preliminaries.

That gave the blue ribbon to Lariat, while Flamingo Request, the Rover and Black Watch went into the jumpoff with only one fault against each. They toiled through the subsequent jumpoffs before final placings were determined.

Velvet Lassie, tied with request for the lead until tonight, finished out of the money, as did Golden Chance, tied with Flamingo for third place with seven points, and Sun Beau, the reserve champion of 1947.

Portmaker Takes Lead

The lead in the battle for the open hunter championship also changed hands tonight as Portmaker, the 1946 titlist and runner-up last year, moved ahead of Adventure, the star of Mrs. E. Cooper Person's Llangollen Farms at Upperville, Va.

Portmaker teamed with Bright Light, from the Seven Stars Table at Southern Pines, N. C., to win the competition for pairs of hunters abreast. It was worth 2½ points to each of them.

For Portmaker, an 8-year-old brown gelding, it boosted his total to 14½ points, 2 more than Adventure, who slid to second place. Bright Light moved into third place with 9½ points.

Celtics Defeat Warriors, 85-77

Boston, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Celtics made their first home start of the Basketball Association of America season a classy one tonight by defeating the Philadelphia Warriors, 85-77, before 4028 fans.

Joe Fulks, who went out in the fourth period with six personals, was the top scorer of the evening with 20 points, while Chuck Halbert and Gene Stump led in the Boston cause with 19 points each.

The Philadelphia hopes went aglimmer when Big Ed Sadowski was retired in the third period on personals. Sadowski, who last year played with Boston and who was roundly booed at the start of the game, collected 12 points during his abbreviated stay.

Stribling, Blackwood Fight Here Tonight

A middleweight elimination tournament begins tonight at Turner's Arena when Joe Blackwood meets Washington's Ken Stribling in the ten-round feature.

Gabe Menendez, looking to next spring when he may be able to lure Middleweight Champ Marcel Cerdan to Washington for a non-title bout, has lined up a number of worthy 160-pounders from whom he'll choose Cerdan's opponent.

Tonight's bout starts it off. Later in the season, Steve Belloise, Smuggy Hursey, Johnny Hansbury, Lavern Roach and Pete Mead will all appear as part of the elimination.

Blackwood, on the basis of a record which includes victories over Coley Welch and Al Priest, will enter the ring a 7-5 favorite. This will be his first appearance in Washington.

Stribling gained respect locally after he sopped up the murderous flurries of Jake La Motta here recently.

The other fights on tonight's card find Joe Lindsay against Al Edwards in a six-rounder, and three four-rounders matching Puggy King against Walter Ham, Bobby Suma against Puggy Lyons, and Rufus Berry against Ben Harrison.

Rodgers, Cloud Duel Inconclusive

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

IF ANYTHING, the personal duel at Chapel Hill Saturday between William and Mary's Jack Cloud and North Carolina's Hosea Rodgers served only to intensify heated discussion as to who is No. 1 fullback in the Southern Conference.

On paper, Cloud and Rodgers were about as close as the final scores of their respective teams in that titanic 7-7 tie.

Rogers carried the ball 24 times for a net gain of 90 yards; Cloud took it 12 times for 44. How even can they get?

Supporters of Cloud, 210-pounder from Norfolk, are quick to point out a few pertinent facts that aren't covered by cold statistics. They remind he was operating behind his second-team line because canny Rube McCray mainly used his first-stringers on defense.

CLOUD DIDN'T LOSE an inch, although his team gained only 19 yards net. Rodgers lost 10 yards. Rodgers threw four wild passes, one being intercepted. Cloud completed his one pass for a one-yard gain.

Rodgers made two damaging fumbles, one set up the Indians' touchdown pass. Cloud played his usual magnificent defensive game—Rodgers wasn't used on defense.

Briefly, that was the story. Take you pick, no matter who you choose, you can get a good, convincing argument.

It's much easier to pick the game's—if not the country's outstanding center. William and Mary's Tommy Thompson rugged 218-pounder from Woodbridge, N. J., certainly was that.

THOMPSON, who called offensive and defensive signals, was the key man in McCray's defensive strategy. He made it work with his superb play in backing up the line. In all probability, Thompson will be chosen lineman of the week.

Principal competition should come from Teammate Lou Hoitsma. After the game, an official said Hoitsma played the greatest game at end that he's seen in 30 years in the business.

In addition to making a great catch of Tommy Korczowski's touchdown pass, Hoitsma time and again stopped Charley Justice and other would-be running backs at the line of scrimmage.

Almost equalling Hoitsma's defensive skill was another Indian end, Pat Haggerty, a converted wingback.

Northeast Body Works became the 160-pound Eastern Division champions of the Metropolitan Amateur Football League yesterday by defeating Arrow Linen, 7-6, at Gonzaga.

The final whistle caught the Northeast on the Arrow's 1-yard line.

By winning Northeast qualified for the doubleheader championship playoffs at Griffith Stadium November 21 which will involve the Brookland-Woodridge Merchants, 160-pound Western division champs; Car Credit, unlimited Eastern Division titleholders and Anacostia Lions winners in the unlimited Western Division.

Phil Cocimano, Northeast center, broke through to block and recover Quarterback George Munson's punt in the first quarter, and raced 35 yards for the first score. Les Bradshaw place-kicked the all-important extra score.

The Arrowmen drove to Northeast's 1-yard line in the third period, but Body Works held. Northeast then punted to its 40, and Jim Horan of Arrow passed to Maury Parker on the 2. Joe Costanzo carried over for the touchdown, but Horan missed his try for extra point.

In other 160-pound contests ending the regulation 1948 Metro League, Brookland-Woodridge trounced Maryland Mohawks at Turkey Thicket, 45-0, and Riverside Rollers rolled over Southwest Merchants at Hearst Playground, 20-0.

Car Credit remained undefeated, untied and unscored on while winning its fifth straight Metro League unlimited game from Silver Spring, 54-0.

George Newman was credited with three touchdowns, "Skeeter" Nichols with two and Ernie Bertolini, "Ham" Right and Dave Carroll one each. Bill Poms kicked five extra scores and Willie Brown another.

Dave Garner's 25-yard run off-tackle and "Monk" McGonigal's placement of extra point in the first quarter enabled Falls Church Garage to defeat Arlington Merchants in the other unlimited contest at Palisades Playground, 7-0.

Poillon Boots Field Goal

The tiny gathering was sure Washington was off to another touchdown when Roy Zimmerman's kick into the strong wind was good for only 9 yards and gave the 'Skins possession on Boston's 35.

Washington, led by Mont, moved on the strength of Poillon's power smashes to the Boston 8 in seven plays but then ran out of downs. It needed 6 yards on fourth down, so Poillon went back to the 16 and booted the field goal which made it 9-0, Redskins.

Fullback Jim Castiglia was trying his second straight bit of jiggling through tackle when he fumbled at the midmark of the second quarter. Francis Barzilauskas recovered on the 'Skin 42 in exactly one play Boston was within winning distance.

Zimmerman flipped a long one to Ralph Heywood at the 30 and after a beautiful block by Bill Chipley, taking Howie Livingston out of it, Heywood was over handily. Zimmerman kicked the point to make it 9-7.

From their own 30, the 'Skins moved down to a touchdown that was called back just before the half ended. Baugh, back in the game but limping slightly, completed four straight tosses, the last going to Bob Nussbaumer for 31 yards as the former Michigan great dived into the end zone.

Officials ruled the 'Skins were in motion, however, and after four straight heaves by Baugh the Burgundy and Gold was no nearer a score than the 23.

It was a determined Washington squad that came on the field in the second half. Its determination, along with Poillon's running, a 37-yard pass from Baugh to Nussbaumer, and finally a Baugh-to-Poillon play, paid off after a 68-yard march in Redskin touchdown No. 2.

Poillon, who did everything well all afternoon, took Baugh's offering at his knees and went over. It was a 4-yard play.

Farmer Scores On Pass

Boston made one more or less serious bid for a score shortly afterward when it marched to the Redskin 32. It lost the ball on Bill Paschal's fumble at that point. As the final session started it was Washington's turn for a threat to evaporate, this one carrying to Boston's 21. Neither club was getting anywhere until Poillon's punt rolled dead at the Yank 21 and Seno, a former George Washington ace, obliged by fumbling on the 13. Big John Adams was on the ball like a Mack truck and in three plays Washington had things sewed up.

Poillon rushed for 4 yards, Baugh lost yard when he fumbled and recovered. Then it was a typical Slingin' Sammy creation that spelled six points for Washington.

Baugh whipped a hard shot directly between the goal posts and Farmer risked a painful bruise by taking it in his stomach a couple of yards across the goal line.

That did it. Boston, with Frank Nelson hurling for a change, moved 54 yards with the next kickoff to the Redskin 13, but there Redskin Interception Specialist Dan Sandifer finally got in the act. On the last play of the game he grabbed Nelson's desperation toss into the end zone and grounded the ball for a touchback.

Maryland has helped swell Carolina attendance to record proportions this year. The Terps have had scouts at every Carolina game and had no less than eight in the stands Saturday when the Tar Heels were tied.

Mournful Tatum, for whom life would be complete if he could beat his alma mater, appeared calmly confident last night.

McFerren Wins Title At Indian Spring

By Sy Fishbein
Post Reporter

The pursuit of turkeys, club championships, and holes-in-one occupied Washington golfers yesterday, as the season was slowly petering out toward the winter doldrums.

INDIAN SPRING — William McFerren flew in from Egypt Thursday, practiced Friday, went three-up in 18 holes on Eddie Ault Saturday and won the club championship yesterday. McFerren pulled away from Ault in yesterday's round to win 7 and 5. Ault, the favorite, had an off weekend and couldn't match McFerren's four-over par for the 31 holes. The tournament medalist was also determined yesterday, Doug Jackson coming through with a 72 to beat McFerren by one stroke. Buddy Sharkey, the other member of the three-way tie in the qualifying round, was out of town and did not play... The lower flights finished their championships yesterday also. The winners: Second flight, Harry Gershenson defeated C. B. Hartman, 1 up. Third flight, Dan Arnold defeated Denny Hevenor, 2 and 1. Fourth flight, Hank Dietz defeated J. B. Robertson, 1 up. Fifth flight, Howard Scherer defeated Phil Berman, 4 and 3. Sixth flight, Lew Ward defeated Mike Fera, 6 and 4. Seventh flight, Joe Gottlieb defeated Dr. Ben Isaacson, 4 and 2. Eighth flight, Dr. Herman Brodie defeated Sol Reiter, 2 up.

ANACOSTIA—Danny Burton, a former Army-Navy Country Club pro, defeated W. W. Seay, 6 and 4, yesterday, to win the club championship. Burton and Seay played 33 holes last week, were stopped by darkness as Burton led, 1 up, and decided to carry over only 18 of them. At that point Burton led, 3-up, gained a hole at the tenth yesterday and closed out the match with birdies on the thirteenth and fourteenth.

KENWOOD—Sam DelVecchio got his first hole-in-one in 29 years of trying yesterday and Sam couldn't have ordered it on a better day. He scored the ace on the 152-yard third hole with his five-iron while playing in a sixsome, no less. Looking on were the club pro, George Diffenbaugh, along with Bob Cook, Larry Imhoff, Dutch Fahrenwald and Roy Tuerke.

BETHESDA — Charles Kendall, a golfing freshmen, won a hole-in-one contest, laying a drive 3 feet, 7 inches from the 150-yard No. 7 hole pin. Joe Seegmuller was 4 feet, 8 inches away from second place, and Les Arries, jr., was 10 inches further for third place.

PRINCE GEORGES — Mrs. Joseph Conover won the women's Turkey Tournament yesterday for her 110—32—78, the low net score. Marie Walper shot the best gross score, an 88. Second low net was a three-way tie between Mrs. Burton Kintz, 98—17—79; Mrs. George Voigt, 96—17—79, and Mrs. Tracy Fairchild, 104—25—79.

Democratic Victory Upsets Calculations Of Hoover Commission

The Hoover Commission meets today in an air of where-do-we-go-from-here? To put it another way, last Tuesday's remarkable election returns will have a sobering effect on the group which was set up to study Government reorganization.

It's no secret that the Hoover staff has been working on plans that would narrow Uncle Sam's social and economic activities. But the people last week voted, in effect, for more housing, more social security, and more New Deal measures in general. It's safe to say that both the President and the new "Truman Congress" would reject any plan that would wipe out or cripple social and economic reforms.

Actually, the 12-man committee headed by former President Herbert Hoover has made no flat decisions. It will be meeting here all this week and most of the time for the next two months. There is some feeling that Mr. Hoover should have a talk with the President to get his ideas before the final report is written.

ARMY: Unfortunately, some of its officers can't help from acting like the blatant and arrogant militarists pictured in the cartoons. The other day, for example, officers in the department's Criminal Investigation Division began a crackdown on people—military and civilian alike—who parked their cars in certain Pentagon areas.

Cars were broken into to get their serial numbers; offending officers were threatened with court-martial and civilians with the loss of their jobs; lie-detector tests were ordered for some people who denied parking violations, and unnecessary hell was generally raised. Won't the Army ever learn that people are human beings?

HOLIDAY: Don't forget, Thursday, November 11, is a holiday and Federal offices will be closed on that day. You can take off Wednesday after work and have a four-day weekend at the cost of only 8 hours of leave.

BOUQUETS: Several former Federal workers who were rocketed to fame in Tuesday's election were:

G. Mennen Williams, the former Justice Department attorney, who was elected Governor of Michigan; Hubert Humphrey, a former employe of both WPA and War Manpower, who was elected Senator from Minnesota, and, of course, Chester Bowles, the new Governor of Connecticut, who is a former boss of OPA. Also, Hugh Mitchell, the son of President Harry B. Mitchell of the Civil Service Commission, was elected to the House from Washington State. A former member of the Senate, he also served as a secretary to a Senator for several years.

CAA: A management survey of the Civil Aeronautics Administration is being made by the Wallace Clark Co., a private firm. It will go into work methods and other executive problems. It will not be concerned with jobs or the classification of them. The same organization is making a study for the Patent Office. However, CAA has its own Office of Business Management which has a good work record.

CENSUS: Cash awards for work-saving suggestions have been given to these employes: Lenore Tucker, Alfreda A. Lapanne, William H. Killings, Elmer F. Stanford, and Nathaniel Swersky . . . BS: At the Bureau of Standards, Dr. L. L. Marton is the new chief of the electron physics section . . . AF: The Military Air Transport Service at Air Force Annex No. 1 at Gravelly Point has a number of jobs open such as CAF-9 public relations officer, P-2 librarian, P-2 statistician, CPC-3 messenger among other jobs . . . PHS: An exam is open for biologists and physiologists ($2974 to $10,305) for openings at the Public Health Service's National Institute of Health in Bethesda.

POSTOFFICE: A week from today the city postoffice here begins to hire upwards of 4000 temporary employes to handle the Christmas deluge of mail. Most of the new workers won't be taken on until early in December. Applications for the jobs can be made in the main postoffice building near Union Station.

JAPAN: President Luther C. Steward of the National Federation of Federal Employes left yesterday to look over Civil Service problems in Japan. From all accounts, he'll have a troublesome job on his hands.

We gave the Japanese civil servants, for example, the opportunity to form unions. And boy, have they abused the privilege? A report which was sent back here makes these charges:

That thousands of the Japanese have remained on the payroll while devoting full time to union activities. A check showed that 7000 employes in one department alone worked solely on union activities. In another agency the number was 2000. In addition, the union workers used government offices, desks, autos, etc.

What's worse, the union has attempted to dictate government policy. A work stoppage was threatened in one agency recently because the Diet passed its budget without consulting the union. Some time ago the tax collectors refused to work because they opposed a government policy.

Firemen Save Invalid in Home Blaze

Retired Professor Calmly Summons Aid by Phone From His Wheelchair

A retired Catholic University professor was rescued by firemen yesterday after he calmly summoned aid from his wheelchair and then proceeded to measure his chances of escaping unaided.

Dr. John J. Clarke, 52, sat alone in his invalid's chair, playing records in the first-floor bedroom at his home, 6806 Meadow lane, Chevy Chase, Md.. He heard a crackling sound and smelled smoke.

Dr. Clarke wheeled himself to the door of the adjoining dining room and found it already was filled with smoke.

Then, calmly, he wheeled himself to his bedroom window and raised it to keep from suffiocating. After that, he called police and firemen from a telephone extension in his room.

He propelled his wheelchair back to the window, this time to measure the speed of the fire against his own chances of working his paralyzed body through the window. At that point, members of the Chevy Chase Fire Department crashed into the house.

"It was a wonderful example of efficiency," he remarked. "I had hardly hung up the phone when I heard those sirens coming. They sure sounded wonderful."

Taking Dr. Clarke to safety, the firemen returned to the house and battered through to the kitchen where the fire was centered.

Origin of the fire was undetermined. Damage was estimated at $2000.

Dr. Clarke was alone in the house when Dr. Dale C. Braungart and Dr. Braungart's mother went to the National Airport to meet a friend. They did not know about the fire until their return late at night.

Dr. Clarke attended Catholic University as a student, 1921 to 1925. His three-year baseball pitching record led the New York Giants to offer to sign him up for big league baseball. As a professor, he taught for 20 years before he became invalided by sclerosis, which has paralyzed his body from the waist down.

Probably Eight

Polio Death Toll Climbs To 7 in Area

Greater Washington's death toll from polio went up to seven and probably eight over the weekend, it was learned yesterday.

Recorded as a polio victim was a 24-year-old Fairfax County mother, Mrs. Kathleen C. Ferencik, who died in Walter Reed Hospital after a week's illness.

Suspected as a polio victim was 5-year-old Calvin J. Friedlander, jr., of 1825 P st. se., who Deputy District Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg said yesterday probably died of the dread malady.

Mrs. Ferencik, whose illness was diagnosed as burbar polio, was born in Washington but moved to Miami with her parents when she was a child. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd R. Cooper; a sister, Miss Evangline Cooper, and a brother, Randolph Cooper, are now living in Atlanta.

Became Ill on October 30

Mrs. Ferencik of 405 Edgehill dr., Jefferson Manor, whose husbant, Lieut. Robert E. Ferencik, is an instructor at the Fort Belvoir Engineering School, became ill on October 30. She was admitted to the Fort Belvoir Hospital and was transferred to Walter Reed Hospital October 30. In addition to her husband and members of her family, she is survived by a son, Robert E. Ferencik, jr., nearly 16 months old.

Funeral services will be held at 12 noon Tuesday at the Wheatley funeral home, Alexandria. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Deputy Coroner Rosenberg said yesterday he already had begun an investigation of the Friedlander boy's death on information furnished him by Dr. Aaron Nimetz, 5501 16th st. nw., who attended the lad.

He said results of tests would not be complete for "several days."

Fever Began Rising

According to the boy's father, the child complained of a sore throat Saturday morning, but ate a hearty lunch downtown. Later, Friedlander said, his son began spitting, refused supper and complained of a high fever. He said young Calvin went to bed about 7:30 but awoke hours later with his fever rising. Efforts of both parents to relieve his suffering with aspirin were fruitless. Dr. Nimitz was summoned early yesterday at about 5:30 a. m. The boy died a few hours later.

In addition to his parents, Calvin is survived by a sister, Harriet, 9.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. today at Danzansky's funeral home, 3501 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Beth Sholom Cemetery, Capitol Heights, Md.

Purse Thief Fells Woman, Surrenders To Police

Porter Gives Self Up Because He Thought He 'Really Hurt Her'; Victim Recovering

A 24-year-old porter struck down a woman while stealing her purse Saturday night, then surrendered to police because he thought he had "really hurt her."

The woman, Mrs. Grace Dubac, 43, of 1616 16th st. nw., was struck on the back of the neck while walking past Meridian Park on 16th st. nw. about 6 p. m. Her assailant fled with her pocketbook, containing papers, keys, a baby's shoe and tooth.

Police said he told them that as he ran he looked back and saw the woman hadn't moved.

He then took a cab, but at 2d and H sts. ne. he got out to tell Pvt. Robert L. Smalling of the Ninth Precinct: "I just grabbed a woman's pocketbook after knocking her down. I think I really hurt her."

The man, identified by police as Leroy Roach, a porter, of Readsville, Va., was charged with robbery and will appear in Municipal Court today.

Mrs. Dubac, who had been found and removed to Garfield Hospital before Roach's confession, was reported to be recovering from temporary paralysis.

In another weekend robbery, a taxi driver, Herbert Stanley Marine, 23, of 508 Mansfield rd., Silver Spring, reported that three soldiers he drove from Thomas Circle nw. to the parking lot at Pennsylvania ave. and John Marshall pl. nw., assaulted and robbed him of $19 in cash and fled on foot. Marine described the men as wearing barracks caps and green raincoats.

$3500 in Gems Stolen While Family Is Out

Jewelry valued at more than $3500 was stolen from the home of Harry Bennett, 1108 Allison st. nw., while the family was away from home Saturday evening, police were told yesterday.

A $2500 platinum bracelet set with diamonds and sapphires, two gold wedding bands and 10 silver dollars were taken from a second-floor bedroom dresser, Bennet reported, and family heilrooms valued at $1000 from a locked drawer in another dresser. Police said the front door lock apparently had been jimmied open.

Mark Weiss, 3910 5th st. nw., reported he returned home after five days' absence to discover $400 cash had been stolen from a clothes closet in a second-floor bedroom.

Dr. Motley Wields Dental Drill Or Artist's Brush Equally Well

A dental drill or a delicate artist's brush—it's all the same to Dr. Robert E. Motley.

Four days a week he uses the drill. On weekends and vacations—and any other time he has free—he paints.

Dr. Motley

Now, close to 30 mountain and country scenes adorn his sixth-floor office in the Farragut Medical Building, turning what might be a drab dental office into a one-man art show.

Most of the paintings are of the Poconos, but now and then he exhibits one painted in Rock Creek Park or somewhere else nearby.

The 61-year-old dentist, a bachelor, who lives at 1401 N. Greenbrier st., Arlington, took up painting 25 years ago when he was teaching dentistry at Georgetown University here.

He was attending a faculty meeting, he recalls, and the paintings on the meeting room wall reminded him that he'd always had a yearning to paint.

Before long, he was studying at Corcoran Art School and turning out about 25 oil landscapes a year, making his own frames on the side.

He paints only in oils, he explains, and sticks strictly to nature because he started late and figured he'd keep to one thing. Besides, he says, he likes the outdoors.

His specialty is waterfalls. But waterfalls and mountains go together, and you see both in his paintings. A few of his paintings show barns or other houses framed by tree limbs.

As for abstract modern art, "I have no patience with it," he says. "It's entirely capricious . . . all right for linoleum blocks, but that's all."

The dentist, who has two pictures on exhibit now at the Washington Arts Club, plus three that are owned by Walter Reed Hospital, often has persons wander into his waiting room, take a look around the informal gallery, and then go out.

He sells about 10 paintings a year, often to patients or their friends, for prices ranging from $15 to $250.

An art firm which distributes reproductions nationally purchased two of his paintings for reprint. One of these, titled "Sunlit Hills," was spotted recently in a Philadelphia store by a friend Dr. Motley hadn't seen since his school days. The man bought the print, he wrote the dentist, "because it is so damn pretty."

That's the way Dr. Motley likes people to feel.

"I want to make them happy," he says.

'Indian Fantasy' Taxes Pianist In National Symphony Concert

By Richard Keith

Marjorie Mitchell, talented young Virginia pianist, appeared as soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra yesterday afternoon at Constitution Hall. She played a seldom heard composition by Busoni called "Indian Fantasy." Her playing, while not brilliant, was finely wrought, technically sound, and as sensitive as a very ungrateful piece of music would allow. She managed the extremely difficult passage work easily and without useless stage gestures.

As yet, she lacks the power to cope successfully with full orchestra. Although many of the piano passages were completely obscured, it was not really regrettable; probably very little of musical value was lost.

The "Indian Fantasy", based on American Indian themes, might easily arouse curiosity in a musician, but a half-hour spent looking at the score should satisfy that curiosity once and for all.

In writing a musical patchwork of practically every style from Beethoven to Debussy, Busoni was not content to take them one at a time, but frequently wrote such blends as a Debussy-like melody over a Brahms-like bass. Creeping thirds and ominous tremolos lead the listener to expect honest-to-goodness savage Indians but they turn out to be just the cigar-store variety.

The concert opened with a suite arranged from music by Corelli. Here the string section of the orchestra demonstrated what real tonal possibilities it possesses. One might easily object to the liberties taken with the Corelli style, but the result was effective.

The Second Symphony of Brahms closed the program. It was well worth sitting through a rather uncomfortable performance of the first three and part of the fourth movements, due to fluctuating tempi, uncertain brass entrances, and occasional bad intonation, to hear the final coda. At this point both the orchestra and its conductor were caught up by the tremendous power of the music and brought the concert to a truly thrilling close.

Maria Kopulos in Recital

Maria Kopulos, pianist, appeared at the National Gallery last evening in a recital of commonly heard compositions. The one exception was a sonata (No. 1) by Anis Fuleihan. Her playing was full of vim and vigor and sometimes brilliant.

If she could overcome the habit of working so hard at making music, much of the stiffness and harshness would disappear. That she has a fine facility was apparent from her reading of the Fuleihan sonata which is an extremely taxing work. Musically it is weak melodically and monotonous.

GOP to Select Candidates For Council

Democrats May Do Likewise Under New Montgomery Charter

Montgomery County Republican leaders will meet this week to propose candidates for the first Montgomery County Council to be elected under the county's new charter form of government in January.

The Republican State central committee for Montgomery County met yesterday at the office of Anders R. Lofstrand, jr., in Silver Spring.

Walter W. Dawson, chairman of the committee, issued the following statement:

"The Republican State Central Committee met in executive session to discuss possible candidates for the county council since the adoption of a charter form of government in Montomery County. The charter movement was instigated in the county for the purpose of eliminating a political boss and a self-perpetuating political machine. In 1946, the Democratic Party fought the charter movement. On the other hand, the Republicans believed that the people of Montgomery County were entitled to choose their own form of government.

To Cooperate in Mandate

"Since the election of a Republican Administration in 1946, they have proven that good government is possible without subjection to any political boss. The voters have spoken. Although our county commissioners will not have an opportunity to carry out the constructive program which they have started, we will cooperate to see that the mandate of the people is carried out.

"I have received a letter from the Charter Committee requesting suggestions for possible candidates for the county council. The State Central Committee will further discuss this question with members of the delegation to Annapolis and other leaders with a view to having a list of qualified candidates to recommend."

Dawson said the meeting would be held "within the next few days."

Democrats May Offer List

Meanwhile, Democratic leaders are planning to meet on whether to submit a list of candidates for the council. This meeting is expected to be held Tuesday.

Attorney General Hall Hammond of Maryland has been asked by the county Board of Election Supervisors to rule upon several points connected with the charter election. One of these is whether the party designation of each candidate must be placed on the ballot beside his name as required under the Lindsay law.

The Charter Committee has announced that it will indorse seven candidates for the council without regard to party affiliation but on basis of demonstrated ability and unquestioned integrity. However, any person who obtains 500 signatures on a qualifying petition may become a candidate.

Write, Don't Phone

Hotel Books Fill Rapidly With Inauguration Guests

If you want hotel accommodations for the presidential inauguration in January, write—do not phone—your favorite hostelry.

That was the word yesterday from most downtown hotels, which are prepared for a booming business and—in some cases—are even selling window space for January 20.

Some local hotels are requiring reservations for three or four days during the inauguration period.

The Willard Hotel, at the corner of 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., with one of the better views of the probable parade route, was booked up solid by the Republicans until last Tuesday. As soon as election results were known, it was booked up solid by the Democrats.

The Statler, Carlton, Dodge, and Plaza are booked up solid and do not expect cancellations.

The Washington Hotel, where guests would have two chances to view the inaugural route—on Pennsylvania ave. opposite the United States Information Center or on 15th st. opposite the Treasury—is taking no telephone reservations. Those who wish rooms must write the management. Preference will be given the Washington's more frequent guests—those with "seniority," so to speak. Hotel officials said they are selling "window space" in their lobby.

At the Raleigh Hotel, one must write for reservations, and must reserve accommodations for January 18, 19 and 20.

At the Hamilton Hotel, reservations must be made from January 19 through 22, and bills are payable in advance on December 15.

The Continental Hotel, which also wants written reservation requests, is asking for the four days January 18 through 22 to cinch the deal.

At three other large hotels, the Mayflower, the Shoreham and the Ambassador, no arrangements had been made for taking inauguration reservations on Sunday. A representative of The Washington Post was asked to call during weekdays, but was told by the Mayflower, "We really can't promise you a thing."

Second Batch of Draftees To Be Called Up Tuesday

The District's second batch of draftees—11 Selective Service registrants who have passed their preinduction mental and physical examinations—will be called up by the Army Tuesday.

Already in training at Camp Pickett, Va., and Fort Dix, N. J., are seven Washington men who led off District inductions last Tuesday. Throughout this month, a total of 55 1-A registrants will be drafted here, with 25 men to be taken November 16 and 12 on the 23d.

According to Frank D. Norton, deputy District draft director, local draft headquarters already has a pool of 40 to 50 men "available for military service" who will be applied toward the December call for 76 draftees. In January, the Army has asked for 101 District men.

The first Prince Georges County registrants to be drafted will enter the Army on Monday at the Silver Spring Army and Air Force recruiting station. All of Hyattsvill, they are:

Matthew J. Largen, 6011 44th ave., mechanic apprentice; James W. Mitchell, 4705 Edmonston rd., merchant seaman; and James R. Sleeth, jr. 4308 Tuckerman st., library assistant at the Library of Congress.

All white draftees from the District, Maryland and Virginia are receiving basic training at Camp Pickett. Negro inductees are trained at Fort Dix.

Area News in Brief

Grazing Bullet Dulls Curiosity of Boy, 13

With the speed of a bullet, 13-year-old Merrill Flood, jr., of 3806 Kanawha st. nw., last night exchanged his considerable curiosity about guns for an equally large, and slightly painful, respect.

That was about 9 p. m., in the living room of the J. Scott Milne residence across the street at 3811 Kanawha, when he let his brother, Walter, 12, hold a .38-caliber pistol while he and young "Scottie" Milne looked on.

The weapon went off and a bullet ripped past Merrill's right shoulder, grazing it. The boy walked home, was treated by the Floods' physician for a "superficial wound—just a scratch," and put to bed.

According to Walter, his brother had acquired the gun from another boy "who found it in a closet." The parents di dnot know of the "find" until after the gun went off

Mrs. Ruth L. Steed, 30, of 328 Tennessee ave. ne., thought it was a costume prank when, looking through the house from the living room about 9 p. m. Saturday, she saw the kitchen door open and a man enter with a coat covering his head.

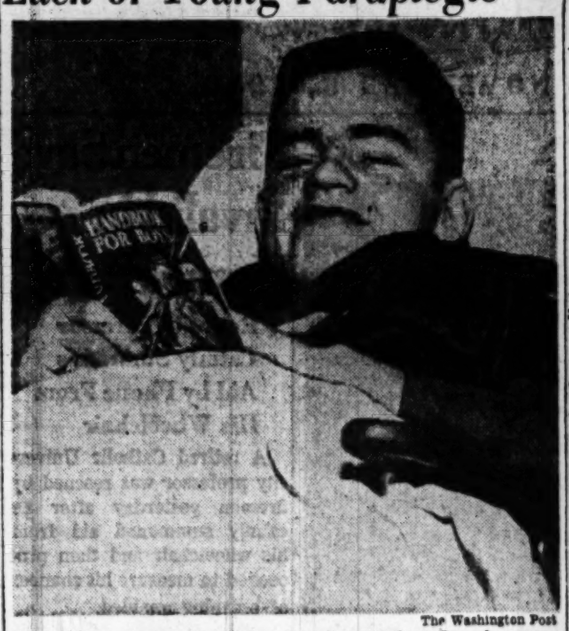
Scout's Helping Hand Turns Luck of Young Paraplegic



The Washington Post

WAITING TO WALK AGAIN—Boy Scout Robert Baruch, paralyzed from the waist down as the result of an injury received in diving, reads many books to while away the hours in the crippled children's ward at Gallinger Hospital. Bob thinks his luck could be worse and is grateful for the help he has received from the Community Chest

It's pretty tough to be 17 years old and have to lie flat on your back with your legs paralyzed from the waist down. Especially during football season, when the kids laugh and play in the vacant lot across the street.

It makes reading and collecting goldfish pretty tame stuff. But Robert Baruch, in the crippled children's ward at Gallinger Hospital, has done that for more than a year now, and he thinks that in a lot of ways he's still a pretty lucky fellow.

Bob's parents died when he was a few months old Since then he has lived in one foster home after another. Last summer at a foster home he went swimming with a friend. He dived off a wharf into shallow water and fractured three vertebrae.

He recovered consciousness in Baltimore General Hospital, paralyzed then from the neck down. Four months later, since he is a District resident, he was transferred to Gallinger. Here he was put into a "stryker frame," a stretcher on wheels, that let him lie on his back or stomach. Once in a while he's allowed to half-sit in a wheel chair for a few minutes.

According to Bob, his biggest break came the day Armiger Jagoe, jr., scoutmaster of Washington Troop No. 31, stopped in to see him after visiting another scout in the hospital. A few weeks later they were busily tying knots, learning first aid, tree identification and scout laws. Now Bob's a first-class scout with several merit badges.

From tying knots it was a small jump to begin writing again and doing school lessons. This year, thanks to Government visiting instruction courses, he's a senior and can get his diploma next June.

The scoutmaster's visit with Bob wasn't purely chance. The Boy Scouts of America, largely supported by funds from the Community Chest, maintain a program designed to train Scout leaders who make scouting possible for thousands of boys.

That's why Bob thinks he's lucky. Instead of a dull hospital routine, his day is crammed with activity. Awake at 7 a. m. breakfast, physiotherapy, books, lessons, tropical fish collection, handicraft work, Scout work, and answering cards and letters, it all keeps him busy

Bob's chances to walk again lie at the end of a long, hard road. He knows it will be difficult, and that he needs help. He's really grateful that Scoutmaster Jagoe, through the work of the Scouts and the Community Chest, have reached out to give him aid.

Chest Section To Recanvass Its Members

More than 50,000 persons in the Government Community Chest unit have not yet contributed to the Red Feather drive, according to Assistant Secretary of the Interior C. Girard Davidson, unit chairman. He asked 8000 volunteers in the Federal Government to solicit employes again.

The Government unit, which reached 80.41 per cent of its $1,524,537 goal last Friday, leads eight other Chest units in Greater Washington's 1949 campaign for $4,566,790. The Chest has collected 59.19 per cent of its quota, with gifts totaling $2,703,212.

Meanwhile, Fairfax Community Chest leaders followed a special campaign strategy meeting last week with the announcement that only 1000 contributions have been received so far from more than 100,000 county residents, or about 30,000 family groups.

23.2 Per Cent Collected

The Fairfax unit has collected 23.2 per cent of its $44,775 quota to date, with gifts of $10,423.46, most of which was turned in by residential solicitors.

Both the business unit and special gifts solicitation has been slow, said Fairfax Chest Director George Stewart, who pointed out that many country businessmen are reluctant to let Chest representatives collect within their firms.

Fairfax agencies are scheduled to receive a total of $60,668 from the Chest next year if the drive is successful, plus an estimated $56,000 to be administered by the Hospital Service Agency for hospitalization and clinic visits for Fairfax County persons.

Two general report luncheons are scheduled for Tuesday and Friday of this week by Chest leaders, both at 12:15 p. m. in the Washington Hotel.

Henry Wallace Attends Soviet Embassy Party

By Marie McNair

Henry Wallace, Progressive presidential candidate, whose trip to Washington yesterday was to see his daughter, Mrs. Leslie Douglas, stayed to be the star guest at the reception yesterday afternoon at the Soviet Embassy.

This annual fete which celebrated the great October revolution, was marked by its usual lavishness, drew an even greater number of front-page names than at any previous party since the war.

Mr. Wallace, whose platform included a be-kind-to-Russia plank, came early to the party, ate, not "crow," but cold turkey, posed obligingly for the photographers. He chatted with an old friend, Charles C. Rohrer, Indiana farmer, who came to Washington for the occasion on the invitation of the Minister Counselor of the Soviet Embassy, Semen Tsarapkin.

Ruddy-cheeked, county-fed Mr. Rohrer who ran for the Lieutenant Governorship of Indiana on the Progressive ticket, believes that the way to make friends with Russia is "to shake hands, not fists."

"I've been to many farm feasts," said the gentleman from Indiana, "but I've never seen anything like this." He was referring to the two buffets of pates, the aspics, turkeys and hams, the lobsters and shrimp, vegetable salads, and to top it all ice cream smothered in strawberries.

But I'm getting ahead of my story.

Diplomatic Uniform

The Soviet Ambassador, Alexander Panyushkin, in his black diplomatic uniform worked with gold braid had the Naval Attache and Mme. Glinkov, and the Assistant Military Attache—there is no Military Attache—Col. Anatoly Galkovsky, and Mme Galkovsky, standing with him to greet the guests. Mme. Panyushkin who returned to Russia in the summer, is still away.

Mme. Glinkov's gown of hunter's green crepe was made with a long skirt short, cap sleeves and the bodice embroidered in dull gold threads. Mme. Galkovsky who is petite with light brown hair was in a straight gown of shining black satin with appliqued bands of crepe on the high necked bodice and running down the floor-length skirt.

Practically all of the European Chiefs of Mission showed up and from the State Department came the Acting Secretary, Robert Lovett, and handsome Mrs. Lovett in a full skirted crisp taffeta frock in a smoky gray tone. A wee hat of gray and mauve velvet bows rested on her fair hair.

Cameras were leveled to the eye, and there was a general stir of excitement as a smallish rotund gentleman and his wife came up the red-carpeted winding stairway. "It's Dr. Condon," someone said, as the head of the Bureau of Standards, recently accused by the House Un-American Activities Committee of association with Communists, walked through the wide hallway.

Wives were among the missing yesterday for the French Ambassador, Henri Bonnet; the Greek Ambassador, Vassili Dendramis; the Ambassador of Iran, Hussein Ala; the Netherlands Ambassador, Eelco Van Kleffens; the Egyptian Ambassador, Kamil Abdul Rahim.

I saw the tall, fresh-cheeked British Ambassador, with Lady Frank in a long black gown worn with an oyster-white jacket embroidered in black jet; the Canadian Ambassador and Mrs. Hume Wrong; the New Zealand Minister, Sir Carl Berendsen, just named Ambassador, and Lady Berendsen.

The Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani were there and also the Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Charge d'Affairs of Mexico and Senora de la Colina, talking with Luis Quintanilla Mexican Ambassador to the Pan American Union, and former Mexican Ambassador to Russia.

Then there were the Argentine Ambassador, Dr. Jeronimo Remorino, Brigadier Chaudhuri, Military and Air Attache of the Indian Embassy, with Mme. Chaudhuri in a burnt orange sari; the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. LeGallais in a group which included former Ambassador to the Soviet Union, Joseph Davies and Mrs. Davies. Easily one of the "best dressed," Mrs. Davies, wore stiff black taffeta with a side and back winglike drape, ropes of pearls, a sable scarf and a heavy dotted veil to keep her beautifully coiffed gray hair in place.

"I ran a hotel all summer," she told a friend, speaking of Camp Topridge, her Adirondacks estate which a succession of guests kept filled during the season.

Mrs. John Steelman came alone, as her husband, the presidential assistant, took off with President Truman yesterday for Key West. Mrs. Stanley Woodward, wife of the Chief of Protocol, was also a "widow," Mr. Woodward, being in the President's party.

The Finnish Minister and Mme. Jutila were there and other names that make news were Ray Muir, Asisstant Chief of Protocol; the Irish Minister and Mrs. Sean Nunan, the Danish Ambassador, Henrik de Kauffmann, without Mme. de Kauffmann; the Charge d'Affaires of Siam and Mme. Kridakon, the Second Secretary of the Yugoslav Embassy, Vasilije Perendija, and Mme. Mica Trbojevic, Attache of the Yugoslav Embassy, and cousin of the Yugoslav Ambassador, who left last week for Europe.

Eric Johnston, head of the Motion Picture Association of America, author of "We're All in It," and recently back from Russia, came with Mrs. Johnston and their daughter, Elizabeth.

Attorney General There

Only member of the Cabinet who seemed to turn up was Attorney General Tom Clark, accompanied by Mrs. Clark, wearing her favorite brown.

Most pictorial figure was the Archbishop Adam of the Russian Orthodox patriarchal church, in priestly robes with a great silver cross and filigree medallion suspended from a waist-length silver chain.

The British Naval Attache, tall, good-looking Capt. John Holmes, and Mrs. Holmes were there, and from our own military were Gen. John Greely, with Mrs. Greely, and with them Mme. Vladimir Rybar, and Gen. Ray McLain, wearing the old semiformal dark blue uniform, who was accompanied by Mrs. McLain.

And!!! Capt. Floyd Ferris, USN. Maj. Al Heiberg, who had left his Louise at home, Mrs. Heiberg being too busy for parties now that she's remodeling the old Jouett Shouse house in Georgetown.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Ancher were also in the throng, which must have numbered 1500 and filled the three-drawing room suite as well as the long paneled dining room.

This year there was music, a stringed trio playing melodies by old and new Russian composers. And gone this year was the lighted Kremlin tower which on other occasions was the centerpiece on the buffet table. Instead, there was a magnificent bouquet of chrysanthemums in white, rust and yellow shades.

Jane Wyatt Feted at Tea By Sister

Down from New York for the weekend, Miss Jane Wyatt was entertained Saturday afternoon at a large cocktail tea by her sister Miss Laura Belle Wyatt. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wyatt received the guests with their daughters, who greeted well over 100 of their young friends.

Miss Laura Belle Wyatt wore a long taffeta frock of off-white, and Miss Jane Wyatt was in a long rose taffeta gown. Both girls wore orchid corsages. Mrs. Wyatt received in a gown of beige lace.

Yellow white and orange flowers decorated the drawing rooms. Cocktails were passed, and in the dining room at a candlelit table tea and coffee were served. Ladies who took turns pouring were Lady Berendsen, wife of the New Zealand Minister, Mrs. Harry B. Smith, sister of Mrs. Wyatt, Mrs. William O. Douglas, Mrs. Frank Stephens, Mrs. Robert Marshall, Mme. Nehru, wife of the Indian Minister and Mme. Chopra, wife of the First Secretary of the Indian Embassy.

At the buffet were a selection of hors d'oeuvres, and small sandwiches and cakes. As a special treat, fish fritters were served made of New Zealand white bait, a gift from Lady Berendsen.

Mme. Nehru is already saying farewell to her friends, as her husband has been appointed Minister to Sweden, and they will be leaving soon for Stockholm. Miss Jane Lingo was at the tea, looking unusually well in becoming steel blue satin. She said she had stayed up until 4 in the morning on election night, and needless to say, she said so with a big smile on her face.

Among other guests in the pleasant gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Jean Guy Marcouyeux, Barry Freer, brother of Jocelyn Keith, who will be in Washington this week, Mr. and Mrs. Drew Dudley, Marvin Coles, Paul Devine, just back from pheasant shooting at Southampton and squiring Miss Jane Beam; Mr. and Mrs. William Sasscer Hill, Miss Dorothy Rutherford, Gregg Romulo, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Clarke and Marvin Ely.

Girl, 16, Is Hurt and Confused by School Counselor's Advice to Stop Chasing Young Lad Who Loves Her and Takes Lead in Court

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 16, in good health, and people say I am attractive. I have several hobbies, enjoy sports and belong to two social clubs in school. I have many friends, both in and out of school, who have been my friends for years.

I was born and reared in a large Eastern city, but my family and I have traveled much, and at present we live in a small town on the Pacific Coast. During my first year in the local high school I went to games, dances and school affairs, had two beaux and was normally active.

In my sophomore year a girl told me I didn't have the right clothes and that many of the students didn't like the way I walked or talked or did things; otherwise I would have many more friends. At the time I had several boy friends but no serious crushes.

Counselor Says, 'Let Man Chase'

THE FOLLOWING summer my mother got me a satisfactory wardrobe and this year in school I met John, a new classmate, and we are in love. He is 16, nice looking and a very decent person, the only son of fine parents. Every day he tells me how much he loves me, he knows I love him just as much, and we plan to marry in a few years.

We exchange notes before our first-period classes, and sometimes after the second class; and at lunch hour we eat together and walk around the school. Today the school counselor called me in and told me that girls are supposed to let boys chase them; that I shouldn't chase John; that he would come after me if he were interested.

I am very upset by what she said, and what puzzles me is this: How can I be chasing John when he made the first advances?

C. C.

Girl's Attitude Quite Wholesome

DEAR C. C.: It seems that you attract beaux as a flower draws bees, and that your response to their interest is artlessly wholesome—receptive to friendship, comradeship and affection,—which seems to be your attitude toward your own sex also. In brief, you are blessed with healthy emotional balance.

Having traveled much with your parents, the business of orienting yourself to new situations is an old story in your experience, hence you are casually versed in the civilized quality of taking people as you find them, without goggling insular prejudice against "ways of doing" not seen before; and in this you differ from certain females who eye you suspiciously in the small-town high school.

Moreover it's safe to say that you've never been a wallflower since first meeting boys on common ground in school; and this, combined with your naive good will toward all, has kept you innocent of the sly hostile sniping—activated by envious rancor—which less popular girls, those hard-put to catch and keep a beau, aim at natural belles, such as you are.

Girl Is Target of Feline Envy

IN ALL PROBABILITY men will always be more your friends, more unbiased, perceptive and appreciative in appraising your merits, than women will—with the possible exception of a wise mother, maybe. And any advice you've received so far, from feminine sources in the local high school, on "how to win friends and avert criticism" has not been charitably motivated.

The girl who talked to you last year was trying to get your goat, I think; but thanks to your amiable nature, open mind and four-square emotional health, you innocently "fixed" her by turning the thrust to profit.

As for the counselor's lecture, it was a condensation of 18th century spinster philosophy, poorly stated in terms of moron-thinking; and the fact that she put you on the defensive without inviting the real story back of your candid preference for John's company, and summarily left you shamed and baffled, suggests latent ill will and lack of good grounding for her vocation.

For advice: discuss your dismay with your mother, whose past helpfulness proves her loyal, sympathetic good sense; and always have more faith in yourself than in the disparaging dictums of hasty critics. Don't ever let unkind tongues cripple your spontaneity or incite guilt-feelings about innately honorable conduct.

Schreiner plans a real turkey dinner, with all the "trimmings." All of the usual bazaar tables will be in evidence, but with many unusual and useful articles, accented particularly this year by hand-made children's things.

How to Restore Cowhide Box

What would you use to restore an old cowhide box which is in very dry condition? F. D.

The first step in reconditioning a dressed cowhide box would be to clean it thoroughly with saddle soap. Use a well-wrung-out cloth or sponge to apply the soap. Don't allow the leather to become really wet as water-soaked leather dries stiffer and harder than before. After washing, dry immediately with a soft cloth.

When leather is thoroughly dry, apply a conditioner and preservative. Commercial preparations of this type are sold in leathercraft shops and in the housewares section of some department stores. You can also prepare a conditioner at home by mixing two parts of lanolin and three parts of neat's foot oil. Mixing should be over a gentle heat in a double boiler. When cool, apply the mixture to the leather with a pad or soft brush Let stand for several hours, possibly overnight, until the oil is absorbed, then rub with a soft cloth. This treatment can be repeated if necessary. Bear in mind that all oil treatments will darken the leather to some extent.

Will you advise the approximate durability of broadfelt carpeting laid wall-to-wall in a room that has to be used by all members of the family, as compared with the new types of cotton shag rugs? Which would be easier to keep clean? G. H. W.

Since broadfelt is a pressed felt carpet, it is not as durable as the carpets which are woven. This type of carpet is not considered the most durable and it is usually not wise to go to the expense of having it laid wall-to-wall. Cotton shag rugs would probably be more durable. If the cotton shag rug is the same color as the broadfelt, there would be no appreciable difference in the ease with which both could be kept clean. For room-sized rugs of either kind, a vacuum cleaner could be used. The cotton shag rug would have the advantage of being washable.

Can you tell me a reliable place to send two lovely, soft, down bed pillows to be washed? My husband perspires so at night that they have become stained and also have a strong odor of perspiration. I air them daily in the sun, but believe the best answer is to have them washed. Or would you recommend dry cleaning? E. J. T.

Washing sometimes causes feathers to become dry and break readily. Also, there is some loss of feathers with washing so that new feathers must be added .The use of steam to sterilize and clean them is one recommended method. One firm which uses this method can be reached by calling Ordway 1812. When the feathers are cleaned, they should be placed in a new ticking. It is not wise to wash and use the old ticking. With washing, some of the body and sizing is lost and the feathers are apt to come through. When your pillows are renovated, I'd suggest you get a plastic cover with a zipper closing to protect the ticking and filling.

To the lady inquiring about hand-tied fringe: Why not make it herself? She should find instructions in a book sold by thread companies at the art department of local stores. May I suggest, however, that said fringe doesn't wash well, and never looks as pretty as when new? D. L. N.

My husband brought back from overseas some wooden shoes which I should like to use as hanging flower pots. How can I treat them so they will be waterproof? I would like to plant them with philodendron in dirt. Or can you suggest a plant which will require less water? M. B. L.

You could apply a coat of spar varnish to the shoes to make them waterproof. Another waterproofing which is not as permanent, but easy to put on and effective while it remains unbroken, is a coat of paraffin. Melt the paraffin over water and pour while liquid into the shoes. Tip and turn the shoes to coat all of the inside surface. Allow to stand until hard. About the philodendron, I'm sorry, but we do not answer plant questions in this column.

In regard to the reply sent in by another reader for M.M.A. concerning inquiries made as to where to purchase sock-tops and prices thereof, I have received the following information from the hosiery mills about existing conditions governing the purchase of these sock-tops or clips to persons outside Lynchburg:

"We have always shipped our waste out in carload lots," the Lynchburg Hosiery Mills writes, "though we do have in our retail salesroom as a cash-and-carry proposition clips which are used by a number of people for rug making. These are 15 cents per pound in the natural color mercerized clips and 20 cents per pound for the assorted colors in cotton clips. We could ship these out in 100-pound lots fob Lynchburg, Va." J. G. W.

Thank you so very much for sending us this clarification of the situation regarding the sock-tops.

I am interested in re-upholstering my sofa and occasional chairs, both period pieces. Can you suggest hard-wearing, long-lasting, attractive materials? (P. S. I have a small child.) L. I. S.

The most durable upholstery fabrics are those which are closely woven of hard, firmly twisted yarn. Fabrics of this type may be made of cotton, rayon, wool, mohair, or combinations of these yarns. These days, because of the expense of upholstery fabrics, you will find that most of the fabrics under $8 to $10 a yard are of cotton, rayon or a combination of these two. There is also on the market and sold by the yard a plastic product which resembles leather and is used for upholstery. It is very durable if applied correctly. (It will split and crack if fastened too tightly or unevenly). This would not be as suitable for period pieces as a brocade would be, for instance.

Have you considered using slip covers rather than upholstery while your child is small? Slip covers can be cleaned so readily and they would be less expensive than an upholstery job. You might even have slip covers made of a fabric such as corduroy so that they more nearly resemble upholstery.

Mr. Glasser also said that too much emphasis is given to the failures of agreement in the United Nations. We must take into consideration, he said, that nearly 2600 U. N. meetings have ended in agreement and that international unity is possible if we work to give basic securities to all peoples.

Mrs. Archibald Smith, unit president, presided at the breakfast and Mrs. Alice Ingersoll Thornton was chairman of arrangements. The W. O. S. L. is made up of women who served with the Government or welfare organizations in theaters of battle during the two World Wars.

Exercise for Pretty Figure

This bracing exercise illustrated by Warner Brothers' Joan Winfield is guaranteed to streamline the midriff, reduce the hips and beautify the legs. What more could a girl ask?

Blame Poor Posture Habits For Round, Uneven Shoulders

By Ida Jean Kain

No use blinking—round shoulders are out of sorts with fashion and one shoulder that dips lower than its mate stands out like a sore thumb. The continuation of the sloping shoulderline with little or no padding, to cover up, puts posture on the spot.

There you are, girls. All defects are shifted squarely onto your shoulders. And a good thing it is too. Those exaggerated, squared-off shoulders fostered bad posture by tending to conceal defects. Now it's up to posture to do something for fashion. You're on your own . . .

Try this favorite test to see if you can straighten up beautifully without discomfort . . .

Stand with back to wall, arms down at sides and backs of hands against the wall. That literally pulls the shoulders back into line. Now, pulling up firmly with the lower abdominal muscles to balance the figure properly, walk away from the wall, holding arms in this position, palms turned forward. Try it again—this time concentrate on keeping your shoulders down and freely relaxed while pulled back into lovely lines. Centering the up-pull through the midsection helps prevent shoulder rigidity and slims the waist.

To Be Effective

To make this exercise even more effective, bend arms at elbows, palms up, and place a long stick into the crook of the elbows and across shoulders in back. Now walk about the room . . . that's perfect alignment. Keep pulling up snugly with girdle muscles otherwise the small of the back tends to sway in.

When one shoulder droops, corrective calisthenics are in order. First, however, analyze the cause. Do you carry groceries, bundles, the baby or books on one side all the time? That pulls that shoulder down. Even an overloaded shoulder strap bag may be doing the damage. If you find yourself favoring one side following an illness or an operation consult with the doctor. It quickly gets to be habit and you grow that way.

Sales people say it's appalling how many women have uneven shoulder lines. Poor postural habits are to blame. The correction is to break the habit and to take exercises. Here's a good one . . .

Corrective Exercises

Position: Sit on straight chair or stool, in front of a mirror if possible. Flex arm and hold a dumbbell or book in your hand on the side of the low, sloping shoulder. Rest other hand on hip.

Movement: Extend arm upward as high as possible, then return slowly to starting position. The weight should be sufficiently heavy to give the arm and shoulder muscles a workout. But don't get body or head out of line. If the exercise is taken in front of a mirror, you can observe and check any tendency to bend the head or trunk to get the opposite shoulder out of line.

A serious abnormality of this kind requires medical aid, and in such cases corrective treatment should be taken under the supervision of a physiotherapist.

To Combat Fire's Fascination Teach Child to Handle Matches

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Fire and the matches which make it, are eternally fascinating to children. The light, the heat, the implied danger all appeal to their sense of adventurousness. The small child wants to use matches and turn on gas jets because he sees others do this and he is highly imitative. The older child wants to become master of this force which everyone tells him he has no right to handle.

Despite all warnings, children do not seem to be able to imagine the danger to themselves, so it remains for a parent to teach the safe way of handling fire rather than to depend entirely upon prohibition of its use.

For the small child who is too little to be educated, to keep the fire-making apparatus out of reach is the one safe plan. As the 2-year-old can climb on chairs, this means that matches must be higher than his reach from this vantage point.

Teach Safe Ways

The child of four or five is old enough to learn how to turn on the gas stove and how to use matches. He will use them, anyway, if he comes into possession of them, so he should know the safe way to manage this.

Let the child use matches usefully in the home. Go with him while he carries out the waste paper and sets fire to it in the incinerator. Let him light the pile of dead leaves to be burned. Suggest that he help daddy light his smokes, whatever they may be. In fact, designate him the fire-maker and call him in from play to attend to his duties. Light matches takes on a different aspect when it becomes a task and not just fun.

Fire Chores

If these chores do not satisfy him then give him a whole box of large, kitchen matches—not the safety type—let him sit down on a cement walk with a tin pan beside him and light each and every one. Stay close by and see that he lights each match, burns it to the very end and then throws it away. Long before he has finished that big box he will have had his fill of lighting matches.

Almost all mischievous fire-lighting springs from an inhibited desire to act as grownups do. Give the child the opportunity, stand by to see that he exhibits caution and he should learn to be as careful as it is necessary to be when dealing with this dangerous element.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Growing Independence

You may be quite right in feeling that your kindergarten or first-grade child needs to be helped across the busy streets between your home and his school for the first few months. Perhaps it is now time to begin to let him be a bit more on his own.

There are several ways of going about this without letting him be entirely without protection. In your neighborhood there may be an older, responsible child going to the same school who will be willing to escort his smaller neighbor. Or, if the school has not established safety patrols at the busy corners, the principal may consider the idea.

However, you go about it, your child will profit from not being thought to be a "mama's boy" or "mama's girl," because you are always tagging along. And in most instances, whether he's willing to tell you so or not, the child will like the feeling of being a bit more on his own, of beginning to grow up.

Missing Wife Of GI Found Ill in Woods

An Army master sergent's wife was found critically ill yesterday from an overdose of pills prescribed for her nervous condition. She had been missing for more than 24 hours.

Mother of two children, Mrs. Eleanora B. Lopez, 32, was found unconscious at 3 p. m. yesterday in a clearing in a woods about 100 feet east of South Dakota ave. ne., approximately 400 yards south of Riggs rd. ne. Her clothing was soaking wet, indicating she may have lain there throughout Saturday's heavy rain.

The clearing in the woods is a short walk from 1938 Quincy st. ne., where Mrs. Lopez had been living with her brother, Joseph Bergling, since she was discharged a month ago from Walter Reed Hospital. She had been under treatment there for a nervous condition.

Two hastily scribbled and almost illegible notes were in Mrs. Lopez"s purse when she was found by William T. Needham, 5032 Sargent rd. ne. Police said they indicated she was despondent and lonely. There was also an unmailed letter to her daughters, June, 12, and Janice, 10, away in a boarding school.

Her husband is Master Sergt. Oscar Lopez, who is with the occupying forces in Germany. She had been with him overseas, but was sent home last spring for treatment of a nervous condition. She had been working in a physician's office since two weeks ago.

Detective Sergt. Walter N. Cook, of the homicide squad, said she had taken an overdose of pills prescribed for her nervous condition.

Neurosyphilis Cases Cut in Recent Years

Between 5 and 6 per cent of the 6400 patients at St. Elizabeths Hospital are victims of neurosyphilis, or syphilis of the central nervous system, according to Dr. Theodore Fong, specialist at the hospital.

Almost all these sufferers are District residents and most of them have reached the stage of paresis, the general paralysis of the insane.

Although such incidence is considered high and represents a substantial burden on the local taxpayers, it shows substantial progress since 1922, according to the District Health Department.

At that time, 10 to 12 per cent of the hospital's patients were late syphilitics, according to records furnished by Dr. Fong for the Health Department's current campaign against venereal disease.

Dr. Fong attributed the decrease to two factors, the first being more emphasis on venereal disease education, resulting in earlier discovery and treatment; and the trend toward routine spinal fluid examination in all syphilis cases.

Because many cases of neurosyphilis show negative blood tests, he said, a number of cases are not discovered until late stages and often result in loss of muscular coordination, blindness, paralysis, insanity and probable death within a few years.

There are some indications that general paralysis induced by syphilis of the brain is greater among "white collar" workers than in laborers and among men rather than women. Since the disease is manifested from 5 to 20 years after the original syphilis infection, the greatest number of cases are in the 35-50 age group, Dr. Fong said. Five to 15 per cent of the inmates of institutions for the insane in this country are neurosyphilis paretics, his figures show.

Two Children Perish In Oil Stove Blaze

Freehold, N. J., Nov. 7 (U.P.).—Two children were burned to death early today in a flash fire which apparently started when an oil stove was overturned on the second floor of a frame house.

Slaying Case

Chicago Acts To Halt Sex Delinquency

AT CHICAGO — Raphael (Rocky) Villasenor, 15, is being held after he confessed to Juvenile Judge R. J. Dunne that he strangled his pal, William Gervais, 13. Judge Dunne said Villasenor admitted having unnatural sex relations with Gervais and declared the slaying followed a quarrel. Police said a score of boys and girls in their teens were involved in drinking and sex parties in the South Side park where the slaying occurred. City officials will ask $5,000,000 to hire 1192 additional police to patrol park areas

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP).—Chicago officials moved today against what they termed appalling juvenile sex delinquency conditions revealed by the slaying of a 13-year-old boy in a city park.

Judge Robert Jerome Dunne of the Juvenile Court said that Rafael (Rocky) Volasenor, 15, stated that he had choked William Gervais, 13, to death Thursday night with a belt and then hid the body in an abandoned electrical conduit manhole.

The boy's story, Judge Dunne said, was that he and Gervais had unnatural sex relations in a dark corner of Fuller Park on the South Side, and the slaying climaxed a struggle.

Police Capt. Frank Reynolds said that questioning of several of the two boys' playmates brought numerous assertions that upward of a score of youngsters—boys and girls—had taken part in drinking and sex parties in the park.

Reynolds said, "I am appalled at the conditions that have been revealed to exist. We were going to clean up the whole neighborhood."

Villasenor was held today in the Cook County Juvenile Home, but no charge had been filed against him. Richard B. Austin, assistant State's attorney, said he planned to present the slaying details to a grand jury Monday or Tuesday.

Draft Deferment For Chiropractic Students Urged

Baltimore, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Maryland Chiropractic Association today demanded that chiropractic students be deferred from the peacetime draft.

The association, which closed its two-day convention here today, adopted a resolution protesting Local Board Memorandum No. 7. That memorandum is a recommendation from Selective Service's healing arts educational advisory committee that medical, dental, veterinarian and osteopathic students be deferred.

The resolution protests the omission of chiropractic students, claiming that the profession of chiropractic "is the second largest . . . in the healing arts."

It also denounces Selective Service officials for failure to put a chiropractor on the healing arts advisory committee.

W. F. Sherman Is Found Dead In Hotel Bed

William F. Shrman, 57, an estimator for Criss Brothers & Co., was found dead in bed in a Hotel Statler room about 10:30 a. m. yesterday.

Police, who said he roomed at 5513 13th st. nw., found a partially consumed bottle of whisky and a pillbox that had apparently contained sleeping tablets in the room.

Deputy Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg has withheld a certificate of death pending results of a chemical analysis of stomach contents.

Sherman's death was discovered when a woman, who told police she had an appointment with him, received no answer when she knocked on the hotel room door and summoned a housekeeper, who entered with a duplicate key.

He had been employed by Criss Brothers, an ornamental iron company, about five weeks. He had previously been working as an estimator for Walter B. Avery, building contractor. He was born in Tampa, Fla., and came to Washington about 1910.

Sherman, who was divorced, is survived by three sons, Raymond C. Sherman of Washington, Vincent E. Sherman of Wheaton, Md., and William F. Sherman, jr., of Hilo, Hawaii.

Patient Succumbs Months After New Heart Operation

Canton, Ohio, Nov. 7 (AP).—Betty Woolridge, 22, who underwent a history-making heart operation in Columbia, S. C., last January, died today.

The operation, described as the first of its kind, involved opening her heart valve to permit circulation of an adequate blood supply.

The valve had been closed almost completely by scar tissue resulting from rheumatic fever. Prior to the operation, physicians had given her only a few months to live.

Miss Woolridge, who went to Columbia for the surgery, was operated on by Dr. Horace G. Smithy, 35-year-old University of South Carolina medical professor who was afflicted with the same ailment. Dr. Smithy died only 10 days ago.

Powers Ready To Map Ruhr Control Plan

London, Nov. 7 (AP).—An international authority to keep the Ruhr Valley from ever again building up a German war machine may take shape this month.

Representatives of the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg will meet Thursday to draft a statute for the governing body.

Agreement on the broad principles of international control of the Ruhr, Europe's mightiest center of coal mining and steel making, was reached last spring by the six allied powers. Now the technical experts will get to work to set up the machinery.

Under the agreement, the Ruhr will remain part of Germany and be goverened by any German regime to be set up, but an international commission will have the last word on distribution of all Ruhr coal, coke and steel.

The big problem is to devise an international control body with sufficient power to guarantee its absolute authority over Ruhr industry, even after Germany again becomes an independent power with the signing of a peace treaty.

ADD NAMES

A couple of Atlantic City dentists are named Ake Brothers. And another team of brothers, in Amarillo (Tex.) are funeral directors. They're the Boxwell Brothers.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

A couple of gripes and suggestions about Capital Transit:

1. When children ride free, should they occupy space which is needed for paying customers? If the car is crowded and the child is so young that he rides for nothing, can't mama hold him in her lap so that working people can sit down?

2. Block-long loading platforms cause endless confusion. During rush hours they're crowded with people who are trying to work their way forward or backward to maneuver into the proper position for boarding their car.

Anybody who guesses wrong is left stranded. Either you get there as the man slams the door in your face (and then he doesn't make any additional stops at that platform) or you discover, too late, that it wasn't your car at all, and you've lost out in the scramble for position.

Wouldn't a small extended "arm" (like a turn signal on a truck) be the ideal answer? The car number would be clearly visible, and a distinct service to patrons.

Mrs. Charles Johnson,

Dear Mrs. Johnson:

For my money, you make sense on both points. How much Capital Transit can do to improve these situations remains to be seen. Right now I don't think they're too keen about undertaking any but essential expenditures.

Bill.

OVERHEARD

(Waitress at Ceres Grill): "When I say AYE-pricot, the customer invariably says AP-ricot. When I say to-MAY-to, the customer says to-MAH-to. I'm never right."

(Note: According to Webster, she's right on both counts. The waitress' pronunciation is given as first choice in both instances).

HERE WE GO AGAIN

RONNIE SCORES NEAR-MISS

Mrs. Robert G. Winckler of 8602 Milford rd., Silver Spring, Md., reports that little Ronnie Radice recently greeted her with an excited:

"Guess what, Miz Winckler?"

"What?" asked his willing stooge.

"I saw the Statue of Liberty, and Benjamin Truman was on top."

PIED RETRACTION DEPT.

Harry Traub of 2743 N. Lorcom lane, Arlington, Va., wonders whether we've heard about the paper which ran a correction which stated:

"We regret that in yesterday's editions we referred to Mr. John Smith as a 'defective' on the police force. This was a typographical error. Mr. Smith is a detective on the police farce."

Harry's "correction" is a first-cousin to the classic which is supposed to have been published after a reporter's "battle-scarred" had appeared in print as "battle-scared." According to legend, the paper apologized with the statement:

"We regret that the gentleman was referred to as 'battle-scared.' We meant to say that he was 'bottle-scarred.'"

NEW YORK.—When Milton Shubert, the producer, read the election returns he rushed into Sardi's and announced to the showfolk there, "What a Third-Act" . . . The editors of Life didn't have a single photo of Truman in the election story for the issue due Friday. In the frenzied, last-minute scramble, however, a Truman photo finally was inserted . . . Governor-Elect Chester Bowles of Conn. and Senator-elect Hubert Humphrey of Minn. will meet with other Americans for Democratic Action leaders in N. Y. next month, to map their strategy.

Irving Berlin, and Robert E. Sherwood were in Shor's yesterday discussing "Miss Liberty," their forthcoming musical concerning American politics. "Do the election returns mean you'll have to change your script?" they were asked. Berlin replied: "Not unless something new has happened to Grover Cleveland" . . . "If I were a cartoonist," said Sherwood, "I'd draw a picture of Roosevelt's Tomb and caption it . . . 'And Still Champion'".

Judy Holliday, who has been playing the leading role in "Born Yesterday" since the show opened, will appear in the film adaptation only if Columbia Pictures can get Clark Gable for the starring role. If Gable's services are unavailable, then the studio—which paid a million dollars for the movie rights—will sign a name actress for the Holliday role, to protect the investment . . . A graphic symbol of the voting trend was the section of tables in the Stork's Club Room reserved by Dewey's staff for the victory celebration they thought would come by midnight. The tables remained empty.

Ed Corsi, the New York State industrial commissioner, was in Milan recently and visited the place where the bodies of Mussolini and his mistress were hanged. The place is a Standard Oil gas station, and the manager who was there that fateful day still works in the place. He told Corsi that the bodies were hanged only because the surging mobs couldn't see them lying on the ground and insisted on their being displayed for all to see . . . "Where is the steel beam from which the bodies were suspended?" Corsi asked him . . . "Standard Oil dismantled it," the manager said, "and had it shipped to New York."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

A Greater Victory Than FDR's

By Drew Pearson

My wife has been making things quite difficult for me ever since election day.

She talks about "that cute little Harry" and won't let me forget that I predicted he would not be reelected.

Pearson

"Such a nice little man," she says, "and he got no help from anyone. The liberals were against him, the conservatives were against him. Everybody was against him—but the people."

I have reminded her that at least I predicted a Democratic Senate and that I reaped a harvest of squawks and jeers even for doing that. But she isn't satisfied.

"No, you can't alibi," she says. "I know you too well. That poor little man fighting all alone, and you discouraged him by predicting he would lose. Such a nice man, I just love him."

"Listen," say I gruffly. "Mrs. Truman isn't going to like hearing you say that about her husband. And I don't either. Love and politics don't mix."

"This wasn't politics," replies Mrs. P. "This was a lot bigger. This was bigger than any victory Roosevelt ever won, because Roosevelt never had Wallace and the Dixiecrats running against him. I want you to tell everyone what a really great victory this was."

"They don't need me to tell 'em," I argue back. "They know it. Besides I tried to call the shots all during the campaign. I said a lot of nice things about the President. I was about the only one who defended his idea of sending Chief Justice Vinson to Moscow. I compared his courageous war record with Dewey's farm draft deferment. I told about his devout desire for peace and his reluctance to drop the atomic bomb. I defended him on a whole raft of things. But . . ."

"Yes, I know your alibi," says the wife, not even willing to let me finish what I was going to say. "The Republican editors cut all the nice things you said out of the column. So what? Then say them on the radio where you aren't censored.

"I want you to come out on the radio," she demands, "and give Harry a great big hand. You're chairman of 'Be Kind To Pussy Week'—why don't you start a 'Be Kind To Harry Week'?"

"Incidentally, you're always going in for democracy contests and slogans," continues Mrs. P., who is now really steamed up. "I'll give you a slogan free. You won't have to pay me $20,000 in prizes. Here it is: 'Don't Hamper Harry, Help Him.'"

Message to Truman

Well, that ended that. However, Mrs. P., who has good sense about most things (except pigs), hit the nail right on the head.

It was a great victory, in a sense greater than Roosevelt's victories because Truman fought it singlehanded, with a divided party, and with an extra quota of nonpaying deadheads dragging their feet on his bandwagon.

So, to the President of the United States I would like to say:

"Although I was wrong in predicting your defeat, I am glad I was wrong. And after that grand fight you put up, and regardless of any names you may have called me, I don't know anyone I would rather eat humble pie for than a good sport and a great battler like you.

"You, Mr. President, now have your own mandate from the people. You won it entirely on your own. You need feel no inferiority complex that you were a political accident who came into office through another man's choice.

"Nor need you feel any obligation to some of the Cabinet Judases who buttered you up to your face, while making deals with the enemy behind your back; nor to others in your official family who don't pull their full weight on the oar. The people will applaud if you get rid of them; if you banish entirely all Government by cronies.

"The Nation is expecting big things of you, Mr. President—big things in extemely trying times.

"For my part I would much rather write the good than the bad. And though I know you believe in fair criticism, I for one would like to urge that we work, strive, give as a united nation and 'help Harry, not hamper him' to make democracy live."

Election-Go-Round

Flushed friends of Harry Truman were talking with him at Independence, Mo., regarding the chief factor behind his victory. He said it was hard work. "I grew up on a farm where you have to work for what you get," remarked the President . . . While Truman's campaigning undoubtedly won him votes, Wallace's didn't. Here are the tell-tale figures: of Wallace's 986,771 votes, 844,189 came from eight States. The rest of the country where he gathered crowds just didn't vote for him. In other words, 40 States were not affected by his trips or his radio broadcasts . . . The only three Cabinet members who really worked for the reelection of their chief were Attorney General Tom Clark, Secretary of Agriculture Charlie Brannan and Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin. They rolled up their sleeves . . . New Speaker Sam Rayburn has grave doubts as to whether the new Congress will tolerate Congressman J. "Kickback" Thomas, regardless of whether he is convicted for taking salary kickbacks from clerks and stenographers . . . Republican Governor Kim Sigler of Michigan was defeated by a young protege of Justice Frank Murphy—Mennen Williams. Williams, whose grandfather founded the Williams soap and Mennen's baby-powder business, came to Washington as aide to Murphy when he was Attorney General.
